And One of Their Own Party

Put In. Toronto, Jan. 23 .- A peculiar story was told by Charles Law, a private detective, this morning, in the investigation of the charges made against Governor Van ant, of the Toronto jail. Law was employed by the Canadian Detective Agency and was told to go to the jail and make a private enquiry among the officials in regard to the conduct of Mr. Vanzant. Law did not know for whom he was making the enquiry, but, in his evidence this morning, he said that at the jail it was thought he was from the attorney-general's department. He testifiid that he had interviewed jail steward, John McMillan, deputy governor, Wilson, Engineer Brown, and other officials, and they all expressed a desire to have Vanzant out and one of "our party," as they put it, appointed as governor. It appeared in the examination that Law really had been engaged on behalf of Governor Vancent to go to the jail and find out the feelings of the officials there were towards the governor. This way admitted by Vanzant's counsel. Warden Gilmour of the Central Prison, was called as a witness and said that he heard nothing of Vanzant but good.

For a Deputy to Leave His Polling Sub-Division. The city solicitor reported to the city council, last evening, regarding the municipal elections on January 7th at No. 10 polling sub-division in tataraqui ward. Complaint had been made of irregularities there, and the city council instructed the solicitor to secure evidence and report his finding. Mr. McIntyre did so and his report showed that the deputy-returning officer at No. 10 received fifty extra ballots for use. These ballots he did not require, and were all returned to the city clerk. Before he received the extra ballots the deputy announced that he intended going to Frontenae ward to vote. DANGER LURKS IN DUST. Microbes of Various Diseases Float-Every Breeze-Experiments

Show Fast Traveling of Germs. Few persons realize the danger to health and life that lurks in dust. Already automobile sore throat has become a recognized disease. That its cause is dust is plain, from the fact that it is only those who drive near and in large towns who suffer. Some sharp particles inhaled; but, as a rule, these are real septic sore throats A fact which few of us recognize a turnpike road is composed not only and of germs of different kinds, some harmless, some deadly. In one puff of that dust may be meteoric dust from space, finely powdered diatoms, de-cayed animal matter, scales from the wings of insects, rotifers and micro organisms, including the germs of several different diseases.

Fill a pill box with this dust perfectly dry and apparently altogether lifeless and add to a pinch of it a few drops of distilled water. Then examine the result under a microscope. Almost immediately the particles be gin to stir, and presently the water is alive with rapidly moving, furiously

These dust creatures are most tenaguel proved this by an interesting experiment. He took some earth and dried it for two days in a temperature of about 100 degrees F. Then h placed the dust in hermetically sealed tubes in a corner of his laboratory and left it there for sixteen years. When that soil was first taken from the open it contained 6,500,000 bacteria per gram. When the tubes were opene sixteen years later there were still 3,500,000 and among them the germ c lockjaw, alive and able, as Dr. Miguel

More recently the Irish professo McWeeny, showed how rapidly germ travel. He took a number of easily recognized microbes and sprayed them upon a dust heap nearly 300 yards from a house where gelatin culture plates were exposed. The wind at the time was blowing across the dust heap toward the house, but the air was damp. Within three hours specimens of the microbes which had spread upon the refuse heap were recognized upon the plates.

Atomic Weight of Silver. One cannot be too often reminded of the fact that in science it is the little things, sometimes the littlest of things, that are frequently of the greatest importance. An instance is furnished by the recent redetermination, upon the invitation of the international committee on atomic weights, of the atomic weight of silver. The work was done by P. A. Guye and G. Ter-Gazian, who after many experiments have concluded that the atomic weight of silver should be expressed by the number 107.89 instead of 107.93. the number heretofore employed. This apparently insignificant change demands a corresponding alteration in the figures representing the atomic weights of many other substances, and by increasing the exactitude of chemical knowledge it may result in future discoveries of great importance .- minute weight to the mass which left Youth's Companion.
