Animal Maternal Instinct. "I have a young retriever, gentle well bred, handsome," says a corre spondent of an English paper. "He kindly disposition has won her much popularity, and she is loved by the family cat, the green Amazon parrot and the village children. A few days ago some poor little superfluous Aberdeen puppies had to be drowned. But when the man went to get the little bodies to give them a decent burial two had mysteriously vanished from the pail in which they had found a watery grave. For a long time we searched in vain, much puzzled at the unaccountable disappearance, until a servant volunteered the information that 'Maggie had two little dogs in her bed.' And here we found them, two little corpses, licked clean and dry and gently laid side by side on the straw. She had fished them out of the pail, carried them there and apparently done all she could to revive them. She has never had any puppie of her own, so this seems a curious in
