

CALLS HIS CURE A PERFECT MIRACLE

Suffered Tortures With Terrible Dry Eruptions Since Reaching Manhood—Doctors All Failed—Became Too Disfigured to Leave House—Now Well and Says:

CUTICURA REMEDIES WORTH WEIGHT IN GOLD

"I cannot help expressing to you my most sincere thanks for the benefit which I have derived from the use of Cuticura Remedies. They represent a perfect miracle and each set is worth its weight in gold to suffering humanity. Ever since the time I grew into manhood I have been suffering from a dry eruption which at times appeared very extensively, and at other times, but to a limited degree, on my body. I consulted a number of medical men without result, and last January I was afflicted with a terrible eruption on my hands, scalp, and face, which was so bad that I could not even leave the house, so I finally resorted to Cuticura.

A FRIGHT WITH PIMPLES

Cuticura Soon Makes Skin Clear. "My face, a few months ago, was covered with a fright with pimples. I heard about Cuticura Remedies, and got Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. In a short while my face was well and skin clear and clear. I advise every one whose skin is full of pimples and blackheads to use Cuticura Remedies. EDUCATED MEN AS LEADERS

By Rev. W. S. McEvoy, B.D., Ph. D., Kingston, Ont.

Into whose hands the reins of government are placed, much is required; and to whom men have committed much, of him will they ask the more. I desire to speak to-day to educated men, and to those who are sometimes called leaders. They are men who have been educated in the sciences, and they have been educated in the arts, and they have been educated in the professions, and they have been educated in the various branches of human knowledge.

Goethe was a scholar of the very first rank, and yet when we measure the influence of his life, and try to estimate his service to the cause of humanity, we feel there is some reason for Theodore Parker's stinging question, "Tell me, what did he ever do for the cause of men?" And the same Theodore Parker, when discussing the sad situation in which America found herself about half a century ago, with the alternative before her of slavery or civil war, said, "If our educated men had done their duty, we should not now be in the ghastly condition we bewail."

It is said that when England was in the throes of the civil war, Sir Thomas Browne remained in seclusion, as if utterly indifferent to the strife which was being waged. He was a man of great learning, and his name was a household word. He was a man of great influence, and his name was a household word. He was a man of great influence, and his name was a household word.

Further, God has a right to expect that educated men will play well their part in the work which He has committed to men. He expects that they will try to set right the wrongs which exist, to put out the cancers which threaten the life of the body politic, to extend the kingdom which is dear to Him, and advance the interests of the church which the Saviour purchased with His own blood.

Some of the most valuable franchises is given away for nothing. Consideration, and it not infrequently happens that when a corporation has acquired such a franchise, it seeks to become the master and not the servant of the people. Surely educated men who have read history and studied economics should know the value of a great franchise, and, knowing that, they should be willing to serve their fellow-men in the municipal council. If they really value the franchise, they should not give it away at the solicitation of a glib-tongued promoter.

There are others who can probably see beyond their own electoral district, but who cannot see beyond the confines of the dominion. Some of the legislation passed in Canada is exceedingly short-sighted. It may produce a temporary benefit to one section of the dominion, but in the end it is almost certain to lead to disastrous consequences unless it is repealed.

Take as an illustration, the Chinese exclusion act. It may appear the laudable exclusion act. It may appear the laudable exclusion act. It may appear the laudable exclusion act. It may appear the laudable exclusion act. It may appear the laudable exclusion act.

Queen Alexandra Carried a Cornet Home in Her Marriage With Deceased Wife's Sister is Legalized. London, March 16.—Being a great question does not prevent Queen Alexandra from taking a deep interest in homey kitchen matters. At the opening of the South African exposition in London by their majesties, the queen noticed among the exhibits some colonial-grown vegetables, and was attracted particularly by some very fine carrots.

Weak, Tired and Depressed People Need a Tonic to Put the Blood Right. Spring blood is bad blood. Indoor life during the winter months is replete with weakness, watery, impure blood. You need tonic to stir up the blood in spring just as much as the trees need new sap to give them vitality for the summer.

Marriage with one's deceased wife's sister may at last become legal in England. For the eighth time a bill embodying this principle has become before parliament and won academic approval, and owing to the liberal majority in the House of Commons it has a good chance now of getting into the statute book.

Lord Robert Cecil, leader of the latter in the House of Commons, made a fierce attack on the bill when it was introduced this session, comparing its morality with that of the promiscuous of ancient Egypt, who used to marry their own sisters.

Highland Rifle Militia. The 3rd Battalion Seaforth Highlanders, which has won the "United Services Gazette" challenge shooting trophy (value £30) for 1907, was one of the sixty corps raised for the Revolutionary war. In 1903 it was designated the 5th Ross, Caithness, Shetland, and Clonarty; and in 1900 it became a rifle regiment, and in 1900 the Highland Rifle Militia, receiving its present title in 1901. The battalion volunteered for foreign service during the South African war, and was stationed in Egypt from February, 1900, to May, 1901.

Lord Aberdeen's Sons. Lord Aberdeen's sons, the Hon. Dudley and the Hon. Archie Gordon, have strongly developed mechanical aptitudes, and worked for a time as ordinary apprentices in one of the big shipbuilding yards at Aberdeen, being treated in exactly the same way and leading the same hard, healthy life as the other lads. Doubtless they have inherited their taste in this matter from their father, who is one of the most expert amateur locomotive engine drivers in the three kingdoms.

Leopold A. Builder. One of the hobbies of the King of the Belgians is building. King Leopold, who spends almost as much time out of his country as he does in it, has several residences which he seldom ever visits, yet he is constantly adding to them. He has a fine palace at Brussels, but when within his own domains he prefers to spend the time in the country. His majesty is the richest monarch in Europe so far as real estate is concerned.
