MR. MOWAT AGAIN ELECTED. The Liberal party of the city certainly did the proper thing in re-electing Mr. Mowat to the presidency of the city association.

It is a lesson in meter work and light bills which the average consumer of electricity will probably lay very much to heart.

EDUCATION COMES HIGH. Allusion has been made to the growing expense of education, with special reference to the public schools.

It was shown that the civic grant had advanced from $25,000 in 1892 to $29,565 in 1907, and over and above the last named figure there is an item of $2,703.20 for debt-burden and interest, so that the whole sum this year promises to be $32,268.50.

WHO STUFFED THE BOXES? In connection with the recent election in Manitoba there was some work which should be judiciously enquired into.

The government press-the papers which endorse the Roblin government and all its acts—charge that there was ballot stuffing, but in the interest of the liberals.

The Whig said that the council had never assessed the people clearly or directly for school expenses.

NEWSPAPERS DEFIANT.

Kaiser Has Fling at Newspaper Press. Berlin, March 23.—The German emperor, last night, revealed once more his strong antipathy to the newspaper press, which he had already demonstrated on many previous occasions.

The opportunity occurred in connection with a visit which his majesty paid to the Berliner theatre, now conducted by the actor Ferdinand Bonn. As a theatrical manager, Herr Bonn has been unanimously commended by the dramatic critics of every newspaper in the capital.

Before he assumed managerial duties, Herr Bonn was a popular actor, and he now keenly resents the press criticism, and proclaims open hostility to the news papers and all connected with them.

Just at present Herr Bonn's own adaptation of "The House of the Musketeers" is being given nightly, and he has worked into the text several attacks on the newspapers.

After the performance last night the emperor summoned Herr Bonn to his box and said: "I admire in particular the courage with which you have dared to express certain truths in this play. I now understand what opposition you have been obliged to overcome here."

The Tageblatt, referring to the imperial utterance, writes: "In our opinion, the emperor's allusion to the news papers is not only an only the veiled attacks which Herr Bonn directs against the newspaper press, his play, we, however, retain our opinion that the criticism to which Herr Bonn is obliged to submit is fully justified by the kind of dramatic art he cultivates at his theatre."

It is clear that in this case the emperor adopted an attitude not only hostile to the newspaper press, but also diametrically opposed to prevailing public opinion in intellectual circles in Berlin.

Paris, March 23.—Early this morning, the prefect of police received a letter from M. Potowski, director of the Polish mission here, begging him to send immediately for an internal matter which had been sent to the mission by post.

Five minutes after the first letter came another, begging the prefect to be quick, and two more followed in rapid succession. M. Potowski said that immediately after receiving the letter he had left his flat and hurried to the other occupants of the house to leave as well.

The special wagon from the municipal laboratory was sent for the internal matter, while a strong force of police kept the crowd at a safe distance from the endangered horse.

With every precaution the dangerous animal was conveyed to the waste ground near the municipal laboratory, where it was placed in a cage.

When unpacked it was found to be a box, about the size of a one-pound tin, with a hole in the top, and a substance, the character of which the laboratory touched the substance, tested it and then burst into laughter.
