And Received Severe Cut on Right Arm.

At 1.40 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, the police were notified that a woman was acting in a strange manner near the corner of Princess and Bagot street. The woman was taken to the police station, and was afterwards identified as Julia Curran, an inmate of the House of Providence, Later she was removed to the institution in a cab, but much against her will. Shortly after dinner she managed to get away from the building, unnoticed by any of the attendants.

A cab was called to take the patient back to the House of Providence. but when a police officer and the cabman tried to get her into the cab. she made a strong protest and became very noisy. She refused to get in, and striking out with her right hand, she smashed the glass cab window and as a result received several severe cuts. These were dressed at the police station, and afterwards Sergt.
