Lived in It.

Who that has been to Winnipeg has not seen Deer Lodge, the quaint old road house on the road to Portage is Prairie, near Lord Strathcoma's place, called Silver Heights, where everybody goes to "see the buffale." This old house was burned down a short time ago, and while many references were made to it, perhaps the most interesting was one in The Edmonton Bulletin, given below, compiled from the recollections of an old fur trader, who The fire occurred on the same night that witnessed in Pennsylvania the burning of John Wannamaker's handsome country seat. In the latter the flames destroyed over a million dol-lars' worth of property, rare tapestry and paintings and antique furniture in fifty rooms. On the other hand Deer Lodge was only valued at $10,-000, but with its passing went one of the few historical buildings of our
