SEPPING IT OUT

SEEKS PLEASURES OF OUT-DOOR LIFE.

A Seventy-Four Year Old Tramp on His Way to the Pacific Coast—The Story He Has to Tell.

Sergeant McLellan of Fort Arthur had a queer character at the police station recently. He was a regular Rip Van Winkle of the up-to-date type. His name was Robert Henderson, and he hailed from a town near Edinburgh, Scotland. He stated that he is now 74 years of age.

"When he was seen by a warden in the police station he certainly presented an odd appearance. His feet were wound up in canvas bags, to take the place of boots. For clothing he had a pair of overalls and an old coat. His hair was home-made, being an old felt hat with large ear flaps sewed on.

"Quit Work Years Ago.

Henderson stated that he quit doing hard labor four years ago, and since that time has been making his way around the world. He has been half through the States, and he is now taking a walk from Montreal to Vancouver.

"I left North Bay on New Year's Day, and since that time I have been on the tramp between that place and Fort Arthur. I score a ride on the cars, and I usually make my quarters in shacks along the line."

"What do you do for food?" asked the warden.

"I live principally on the stuff that is thrown out of the dining cars, and sometimes I beg a meal by the way. That food agrees with me better than anything else. Owing to the fact that I have no teeth I cannot eat meat or other hard foods, therefore I do not appreciate that kind of food. If I should take steak I would have to swallow it whole, and it is just like a piece of leather to me."

"How long is it since you have worked?" asked the warden.

"I did a little work over four years ago. Work does not agree with me. I cannot stand the confinement. It would kill me. When I meet people who hire me I thought that when I took a job I was always looking after my own interests and not after my employer's, and, therefore, I did not last long. I would come back, however, as I always feel all right outside."

"When the warden suggested that he go on the hill for a few weeks until he could get his teeth fixed, Henderson stated that he would kill him. He could not stand the confinement. "I must go on," he remarked.

"His hair is long and his whiskers are matted. He has a queer appearance. It is not likely the man has a comb for several years. He states that he has no destination in view, but that he is merely on his way."

CANADIAN BLUE MARBLE.

Gift to Princess of Wales Leads to Its Extensive Use.

The Princess of Wales has to her credit one of the greatest sensations in building material in many years, nothing less than the introduction of "blue marble" for interior decoration. It was in the great entrance hall of Brook House, London, the great Park Lane Palace that Sir Ernest Cassel bought two years ago from Lord Tweedmouth, and that he has fitted up in marble and with a richness of detail that even the Caesars never dreamt of. The work now nearing completion makes London stare. The peculiar marble, consisting 200 tons of the finest marble from Carrara, Michael Angelo, sent from the Vatican in 1890 to prospect, was amazed at the beauty of this material, and it is said his report to the Pope depicted its quality so that he might obtain a monopoly of the mine for his own sculptures. From that date all Angelo's masterpieces were chiseled in the marble.

In contrast with this dazzling white marble is the great outer entrance hall, pilastered with unique blue marble, knowledge of which had reached the Princess of Wales' rooms. The discovery of this marble belongs entirely to the Princess of Wales, whose attention was drawn to some fragments of the blue stone presented to her by the prince to Canada.

When Marlborough House was undergoing overhauling and improvements the prince suggested that the entrance hall when it is completed, hundreds of men are now working to get the necessary quantity of 60 tons cut and moulded to form the cornices and pilasters of the apartment.

ARMY IMMIGRANTS.

General Booth's Proposal to Purchase Land in Ontario.

In connection with the recent visit of General Booth of the Salvation Army it transpires that the great organization of which he is the head before the Ontario Government some months ago a colonization scheme of considerable magnitude. In advancing the tentative plan, the Army pledge on their part the utmost care and effort toward success. Briefly the plan contemplates the settling of the Government of ten towns, suitable for agriculture in the northern Ontario "clay belt," and preferably townships that would be tapped by the Transcontinental Railway. The area would aggregate some 200,000 or 300,000 acres of land. It is not asked by the Army that this shall be given free. They are reported, however, to have suggested Government aid in this connection to the extent of obtaining the land at somewhat less than the fifty cents per acre usually charged for land in those districts, and also that payment be extended over a period of years, probably ten, without interest. The price they offer, it was estimated in Government circles, would be very attractive. It is in regard to the township of the necessary surveys of the townships.

If the plan goes through the Army will undertake to settle on the usual sized locations—100 acres—immigrants of the very best selected class. The city is crowded with new business men, many of them from the United States. Mines, quarries and pulp limits are talked of in hotel corridors and on the street corners.

Quebec's day has come and no one will be jealous. The West has had its share. Ontario needs no coddling. The progress in historic Lower Canada has been inevitably slower, but its great resources were bound to be discovered in time. There is every indication that from now on, that Province will not lag behind in the industrial and commercial race, and the City of Quebec will lead in the renaissance.

QUEBEC NOT BEHIND.

Ancient City Will Not Lag in Industry and Commerce.

There is much talk about the boom in Winnipeg, Fort Arthur and Fort William, Regina, Edmonton, Calgary, and other new cities. Every little town in the West is talking about its wonderful development. They rather pity the poor, old, effete East. Yet it is doubtful if there is a city in the Dominion that is more progressive than the Ancient Capital, Quebec in the oldest city in Canada—three hundred years of age in 1808. For a long period it was so overshadowed by Montreal that it was fast shrinking back into insignificance.

To-day all this is changed. The Quebec bridge is approaching completion and intercolonial trains will soon be running across the River. The impossible is almost accomplished. The Grand Trunk Pacific is building north and south. The Canadian Northern Quebec Railway is building a direct short line to Montreal, the portion from Quebec to Garneau Junction being the only uncompleted link. Another line is being built along the St. Lawrence to serve the same purpose, through the southern counties. The Canadian Pacific steamer port has made Quebec their summer port. So much for the railways and steamships.

Electrical development is proceeding fast. Five thousand horse power is being developed at Montmorency Falls and a contract has been made for the immediate development of six thousand horse power at another Falls, but twenty miles away. Ultimately both these stations will be enlarged. To this is added the pulp and paper development of the Province. The city is crowded with new business men, many of them from the United States. Mines, quarries and pulp limits are talked of in hotel corridors and on the street corners.

Quebec's day has come and no one will be jealous. The West has had its share. Ontario needs no coddling. The progress in historic Lower Canada has been inevitably slower, but its great resources were bound to be discovered in time. There is every indication that from now on, that Province will not lag behind in the industrial and commercial race, and the City of Quebec will lead in the renaissance.

Are Salmon Late?

The output of the Harrison and Bon Accord salmon hatcheries will be at least a month late in maturing this year, on account of the unusually severe winter which has been experienced in this part of British Columbia.

The ova have been over a month in hatching. The young fish, however, were not injured at all by the cold weather. It is thought that they will mature just as well although late, and that they will be fully as hardy as in other years.

The output of the Harrison hatchery will be about sixteen million salmon this year, while the Bon Accord hatchery is taking care of eight or nine million of young sockeyes. This will make a total output of about twenty-five million fish, while the usual output of the two hatcheries is about thirty million. The cause of the smaller number this year was the heavy freshets which occurred last fall during the spawning season. Many of the pens which contained salmon from which spawn were to be taken were washed out and lost, and new ones had to be installed on the creeks, and fewer salmon were taken.

Moisture for Mothers.

In an interesting article on old-age pensions in the current number of The Empire Review, Mr. A. C. Brown declares that the class of the community which deserves pensions most are the wives of working men—the women who, on a wage of some times less than 20c a week, have brought up a large family.

"Without the mother where would the nation be?" he asks. "Yet in this is the State doing at present for the mothers of England? Surely these women above all others should be able to look forward to a period of rest after fighting the battle of life."

"With a State pension how much lighter would the burdens of the working man's wife become? What an influence for good would she be in her old days, instead of as at present a drag on the energies of her offspring, young people who ought to be able to give all their time and devotion to their own families."
