ALFRED PARKER DIED ON LONELY RANCH.

Was Once Sentenced to Death-Later He Was Pardoned After Serving Thirteen Years-Killed and Ate Five Companions. Benver, Col., April 30,-Affred Packer, known as the "man-enter of Colorado," is dead on a lonely ranch seventy miles east of this city. He was parolled eight years ago by Gov. Thomas after serving thirteen years of a forty-year sentence. Gov. Buchtel was about to make the pardon con plete when Packer died. The story of Alfred Packer, the Colorado cannibal, is a tale as bru tally alluring as the black tales pirate days. Packer and five companions left Gunnison City, Colorado, at he breaking out of winter one day the early seventies to start on prospecting trip in the Sangre

Christo mountain range.
At the breaking up of winter, Packer appeared at Lake City, in Hinsgal county, on the other side of the range. His hair had grown below his shoulders, his beard was long and inkempt and he was haggard story. It was that all his compan-
