NEWS ABOUT THE KINGSTON Ottawa Citizen.

The late Sheriff Sweetland, whose death is being sincerely mourned by many, once did a kindly deed, in behalf of a native man-of-letters, which ntitles his name to more than an orlinary reverence by the literary Iraternity. Shortly after the accomplish-ment of confederation, the late Sir Alexander Campbell, being then postold artillery practice at Barriefield master-general, thinking to better his condition, appointed tharles Sangs-ter, the poet, who was at the time employed on the Kingston News, to a clerkship in his department. Under the belief that he had struck a bonanza, Mr. Sangster came to Ottawa, greatly elated. We gave him a dinner at the old Revers house, at which dear old Father Dawson read in original poem in his honor. Of all occupations to give a poet, perhaps most uncongenial was selected for the gifted author of Hesperus and St. Lawrence and the Saguenay. He was given a ledger and set to adding ngures! This was his daily task for nine years. The result was loss of sleep, loss of appetite, loss of memory, and the destruction of all the ly told me that he believed he was going mad. At this stage, Dr. Sweet-land, a Kingstonian like himself, was called in. He went to the head of the department and said: "If you don't p.m. Strangers cordially invited to horse show in London. take Sangster away from that infer-nal ledger I shall not be answerable for his life."
