British Journalist Makes Trip on Emigrant Ship-How the Army He cooled his forehead with a pillow-Works-Men for Special Harvesters

New-Comer-Road to Independence The current issue of Pall Mall Magazine of London contains an interesting article by Olston Black on the emigration work being carried on in England by the Salvation Army. The Army is sending to Canada thousands of people who cannot find work in the old land. Mr. Black made the trip on an emigrant ship, and writes: A tall young man pushed his way to the gangway through the crowd of emigrants on deck, exclaiming: "I'm going ashore." The stout little officer in charge put his arm across the narrow passage, with "Stand back, please." "I'm going ashore, I tell you," repeated the young man in a higher key, excited by resistance. "Let me pass, will you?" The little officer took another turn. "Well,' said he, "there's no need to alarm yourself. The tender's coming back again. I've got to go ashore

"You're sure she is?" said the man At this point a man, whom I shall call the "Man in Charge," strolled up to him with his hands in his pockets, and asked in a disinterested sort of way, "What's the matter? Feeling a bit out of sorts, eh?"

The young man turned on him with quick suspicion, which, however, stopped at his lips, and he frankly unbosomed himself. "You see," he said, "I've been knocking about too much already, and since I got home from Australia I've been-I've been celebrating, and my nerves aren'tsee what I mean? I thought I'd go to Canada, but-I daren't. I'd go mad before I got there.' "Oh no, you won't," said the other, with perfect assurance, "Take a dose of bromide and go to bed, and you'll be all right in the morning." With that he strolled along a bit; but he took care to stay pretty near the top of the gangway.

The young man stood irresolute, then sat down on another passenger's box and watched the tender puffing away to the Liverpool landing-stage. Refuses to Be Subdued By Judge and Throws Up Case.

R. A. Bonnar, of Winnipeg, the leading criminal lawyer of Western Canada, caused a startling sensation in legal circles last week by withdrawing from the prosecution of the famous "grain conspiracy case" because of a sharp reprimand from the sitting judge, Mr. Justice Phippin, one of the members of the recently appointed Appeal Court of Manitoba. Mr. Bonnar was retained as Crown prosecutor in the case and the preliminary hearing at the police court during the past winter occupied many weeks, but according to the ruling of the magistrate, failed to secure any startling evidence of a conspiracy, but, neverbefore a judge. As is his habit when dealing with witnesses in criminal cases, Mr. Bonnar attempted somewhat to crowd a witness and to use rather stronger language towards him than the judge deemed fit and proper. His lordship intimated that the witnesses were not brought to the court to be insulted. (The witness in quesion had been called by the crown.) "I have examined hundreds of witnesses," said Mr. Bonnar, "but never Severe Winter Has Meant Heavy Loss In the West.

The winter has been an exceptionally hard one on the ranches of Western Canada, and of the Northwestern States. The many reports of losses on the range from storms have not been exaggerated. Almost whole herds and flocks have been decimated. One rancher says that the loss will be about 75 per cent. Out of 3,600 cattle rounded up last fall by a prominent Alberta man, only 400 can be counted this spring. Others are hit even

Where the ranchers had made bet ter provision than the others, by a good supply of hay, and some sheltering sheds, the losses are big enough with all their care. Now is the time that the destructive work of the past winter is getting in its fullest showing. The weakened animals are dying now in large numbers. Ranchers are seeing their herds slowly dwindling from them, and the vision of wealth are fading away as rapidly as they come. The whole Canadian ranch country is suffering a depression almost equal to the celebrated year of 1902 among the New Mexican ranchers. Effect on Trade. What effect will this have upon ou West, and upon the cattle trade of Canada? This is a question not easfly answered because of several subsidiary situation. Kansas cattle never came through in better shape; the sugar-beet factories are successfully feeding their thousands. There is big supply in Ontario of feeders. Against this we have the dearth of good butchers' stuff in Ontario. The prevailing disposition to go into dairying in many sections, owing to the good outlook for cheese, has had its effect in the supplies of good cattle. Sheep are more plentiful throughout the country, and hogs are increasing in numbers also, although the latter have not made the ratio of gain that the recent good prices would war-

Demand For Cattle. Many people say that the demand for shorthorn breeding stock in a few months will take a joyous turn, and those who have laid in the good breeding type will have their innings. I is true that the Angus and Herefords have obtained quite a hold on the West, but there will be a tendency the future, in all probability, to go in for smaller herds with better These smaller holdings will demand more shorthorns than before, and it is because of this prospect that many base their predictions. Beef cattle ought to rise in value the season advances, but this is an

State Care of Insane. Ontario has done nobly in the care of its sick and defective classes, but too often the cry of economy has prevented the best results being attained. In no department has this criticism had greater application than in the State management of the insane. Too much attention has been paid to the care rather than the cure of this

It is a matter of comment that all modern authors on insanity insist that recent and acute cases should be treated in small hospitals perfectly solated from the large establishments for chronics.

No buildings in America meet the modern requirements, and it is here that the Ontario Government will score a triumph with its Psychiatric The stigma which always, rightly and wrongly, attaches to confinement in an asylum will disappear and psychiatry will be put on a footing that will keep it in touch with other departments in medicine. The important moments in the treatment of mental cases are in the incipient stages, and people will not send their friends at such times to the large asylums. They would be willing. though, to accept treatment in tal would be unnecessary, and where the methods of treatment adopted were on purely hospital lines. Of course a Psychiatric Hospital will be an expensive institution to build and equip, but the investment will be a good one, as every patient saved from chronicity means a saving of $2,000 to the province. Its cost would soon be saved by the cases restored to sound mental health, for after all, insanity is a purely physical disease, just as amenable to early
