The Young Men Were All Discharged-Record Day at the Toronto Police Court-What Will the Subsidy Be?

Toronto, July 2.-Police court this morning was a record breaker. There were 245 cases. Nearly all were common drunks who did not have to appear before the magistrate.

Hon. Mr. Matheson, provincial treasurer, is waiting for a cheque from the Dominion government for the half-yearly provincial subsidy. Under the agreement reached at the conference of premiers, Ontario, received $2,128,772, an increase of $200,000, but it will not be known until the cheque is received whether or not the increase will be granted on the last half year.

The earnings of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario railway for April were $81,458, and the expenses were $53,100, leaving net profits of $27,349. The net profits for April, 1908, were $23,617.

For the half year ending June 30th, the receipts of the Ontario succession duties department totalled $541,417; for the same period of last year the amount was $390,746. This year's receipts have been swelled by payments of $100,000 each by the Eaton and Falford estates. For the month of June the total received was $50,217 from some nineteen estates.

Bertie F. Gregory, who has cut a wide swath in Toronto, and who is sometimes known as "Count" Greenbaum, was, to-day, committed for trial on the charge of having forged the name of A. C. Burch to a note for $100, which was accepted by the Farmers bank, as security for an overdraft of Gregory's private account. W. R. Travers, manager of the bank, said he had accepted the note and when he came to believe it was a forgery he had paid the amount to the bank from his own personal account.

Married At Glenvale. A very pretty wedding was solemnized at Glenvale, at the residence of J. C. Gibson, on June 29th, at 8.30 o'clock, when his second daughter, Annie Mildred, was married to Randolph Ellerbe, Chicago. The ceremony was performed by Rev. P. Kelly, assisted by Rev. Mr. Milligan, in the presence of about forty of the immediate relatives of both families. The bridesmaid was Miss Lizzy Ellerbe, while Milton Gibson assisted the groom. The house was beautifully decorated with ferns and flowers. The bride carried a large bouquet of white roses and the bridesmaid pink roses. Among the many presents was a well-filled purse, the gift of the bride's parents, a pearl handled fish set from the Methodist church, and $20 in gold from the Presbyterian church.

A Young English Contractor. Stanley Britton, a young contractor and engineer of London, England, arrived in Kingston last week, with the intention of starting business in this country. In England, things are rather quiet in the building line now, and Mr. Britton thought he would settle in Canada. In the meantime, he has become associated with William Tait, local contractor, and will do the O'Neil street sewer extension for him, as the latter is busy with the gas holder contract.

Passed With Honors. Miss Jennie Montgomery, of University avenue, has passed her theory examinations at the Toronto Conservatory of Music, with honors.

P., will erect a home for aged women at Dundas, in memory of his mother. Dr. J. J. Eales, Belleville, Ill., fasted thirty days to test the theory that total abstinence from food for a period of thirty days would result in a cure of his disease.

Portsmouth Methodist Church. In spite of the rain there were good congregations out on Sunday and the floral sermons were preached morning and evening by the pastor, Rev. B. Eyre. The musical programme was in the hands of the lady organist, Miss Etta Dennison, who played splendidly. The children were trained and sang, assisted by Mesdames P. Johnson and E. Gilmore. A sweet solo was given by a little maid of the school, Miss Addie Allen, a recitation in prayer by Master Melton Storms, and in the evening a beautiful solo by Mrs. E. Gilmore, "Plea as a Bird to Your Mountain." Collections were taken on behalf of the Sunday school.

Chapman-Allen. The marriage took place at Cooke's church masons, at 8.30 o'clock, Monday night, of Miss Addie Allen and A. A. Chapman, book-keeper at A. Davis & Sons, Rev. Dr. MacTavish officiating. The bride was attended by Miss Mary Burch, and the groomsmen were A. F. James. Both the bride and groom are popular Kingstonians, and their many friends extend congratulations. The bride conducted a class at Cooke's church Sunday school, and a prominent worker in church circles. The groom was presented with a silver service by his friends at his boarding house.

New Tabernacle Opened. A new $40,000 Tabernacle has just been opened at Hamilton for the Christian Workers. Rev. A. A. Mackenzie, of Kingston, preached at one of the special services held on Friday evening last, in the Tabernacle, and his brother, Rev. H. Mackenzie, of the Christian Workers church, at London, also took part in some of the opening services. On Sunday Rev. G. A. Mackenzie preached in the Olivet Congregational church, at Toronto.

United States Invasion. There are four fine residence properties on the lake shore between the yacht club house and Portsmouth. One was purchased two years since by one Pennsylvanian; "Ringwood" has been leased by another; a New Yorker is heir to a third; and now a fine offer has been made for the fourth property. The invasion is welcome, the beginnings of a great summer resort. If the people were wise they would all chip in, for only $100 apiece, for an hotel within a year.

Stick To Their Own. Royal Military College graduates stick to their own. One of the "old eighteen," has got berths for twenty on jobs of civil engineering, where all are doing fine work. Still another old timer has been working under the roof, and the older men constantly send in requisitions for the youths being turned out from Point Frederick, so that they are getting a good, well-trained being, who knows all points of the business thoroughly, when they get an ex-ecuted.

She Has Graduated. The friends of Miss E. Evans, Portsmouth, will be glad to hear that she has been a successful graduate of the Watertown, N.Y., training school. STONES OF OTTAWA.

Gothic Pile On Parliament Hill "Fromm And Austere." Mr. Wilfrid Campbell, in his new prose work, eloquently described many Canadian scenes, in rich word pictures. The Maritime Provinces he speaks of as a "region of much sea-line, of bold, rugged shores, noble mountains, and vast sea marshes. It is a region teeming with history and legend." The personality and achievements of Howe and Haliburton come in for unstinted laudation. The attractions of French Canada receive a just meed of praise. "There is a charm, a quaintness, an artistic quality, a real love of life and its happiness among her people which seems sadly wanting elsewhere upon this continent." In the chapter upon Montreal, however, the author regrets the isolation and the character of the education of the French-Canadians. Ottawa, the capital, has prompted Mr. Campbell to some of his most descriptive writing and most enthusiastic sentences.

Worthy of Preservation. He believes the stones of Ottawa are no less worthy of preservation in limestone than were the stones of Venice which Buskin has preserved for posterity. The magnificent Gothic pile on Parliament Hill is described as seen from many points: "The main building, approached from the front on a bright winter night, has been much admired. It seems to stand out on its crest of hill like a dream in stone, frozen and austere as the Canadian winter night itself. And yet this building is as much a part of the old world as any edifice in medieval-built Europe.

Perhaps the best reason to be got of this building is by approaching it from the front, in one of those still winter evenings, when the sun has set, the horizon burn out cloudless and the saffron and orange afterglow still lingers along the ridge of the western sky. Here in the stately evening the stately building, its windows alight, looms with its pinnacles and towers like Aladdin's palace or a crystallized fairy dream.

Delicate Tracery. Behind the shadowy outlines of the western and the eastern sides of their verdant stand a delicately pencilled tracery against the exquisite blue and gold of the winter evening, and far above and over the edge of the horizon burn out cloudless and bright the wintry stars. "The Canadian Seasons and Woods" has inspired some excellent writing. "Nowhere else in the world are the various beauties of the wheeling year more beautiful and distinctive than in Canada."

When the height of the midsummer is passed then begins, to my mind, the most delightful season of the whole year-the rich, ripe days with the cool, deep-bosomed heaven one enjoys being out of doors by field, wood or water. In these days the whole of our Canadian world puts on a veil of delightful glamour. "Over the counterpane there rests a silence and a peace that is at once glad and mournful. All nature seems in a mood of quiet contemplation. It is the time of the year when men should forsake desk and counting and the sordid cares of the busy street, and get out of doors away, alone, in some deep, cool wood, or by some wide water; when they should measure the petty strife and the shrivelled ambition in the light of the company of their brethren in silence. This is the truest medicine, the best specific for the average life-laded, toll-ridden man."

Walking to Canada. Two little girls, who were found recently by Monmouthshire collier on the road near Tredegar in a distressed condition, told a remarkable story to the police. Their names are Edna and Ethel Taylor, aged 11 and 9 years respectively, and they said they had tramped from Bromyard in Herefordshire, a distance of about 70 miles. According to their story, their mother being dead, and their father having deserted them, they set out eight days ago with their brother, aged 15, with the intention of going to Rhymer, where they believed they had an aunt living, and with the further idea of being forwarded to another aunt in Canada. They had lost the company of their brother at Rhymer Bridge, and then, it seemed, got off their course on a road which would have taken them to Newport. Their brother appeared to have formed for them on the way, and their pilgrimage had not occasioned inquiry till cold, hungry, and travel-stained they were found crying by the roadside.

Cannot Regulate Intellect. It is surely impossible that anybody should be so misguided as to fancy that he can really regulate Canadian intellect by regulating the postal rates. Canada is a part of this continent and cannot help receiving its influences, make what postal laws you will. American magazines come to us fresh; English magazines come ten days after date. If the American publishers and editors were made hostile, our own literary men would suffer; for the writer of magazine articles in Canada has his field in the magazines of the United States. To get an article into an English magazine he finds very difficult, even if he has a name, much more if he has none. Neither the Maritime Provinces nor the Northwest can offer him a field of any consequence. Government regulation of national intellect is surely a thing of the past.-Goldwin Smith in Sun.

Ready For Soaking. "Doctor," moaned the man with the haggard face, "I am in awful shape." "Sit down," soothingly said the physician. "Calm yourself. What seems to be troubling you?" "I've got water on the brain, a sinking sensation in my stomach, my head swims, and I've got a floating kidney." "With his best professional air the physician saluted and soaked him.

On Saturday at Brockville, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Eaton, their eldest daughter, Miss Eva Emaline, became the bride of Frank A. W. Brown, of New York, formerly of Brockville.
