OUT ON THE WATERS

THE BAY OF QUINTE AND LAKE ROUTE.

Delightful Trip For Those Who Stick Close to the Business Houses—The Company Faithful to Its Patronage.

In the midst of a whirling wind storm, the good ship Caspian slipped from her moorings, at Swift's wharf, on Saturday-afternoon last, into the angry waters of the lake, and with steams and property, as her wont in carrying her valuable cargoes, started on her trip for Charlotte.

The steamer, this year, appears almost a new craft. During the winter, repairs were made and improvement made in the hull, and her accommodations were for from sixty to one hundred over-nighters, she now has cabin quarters for almost two hundred. The berths are divided into two sections and are comfortable in every way. The rooms are of fair size and the equipment of the best. The wheel-house and officers' quarters are also new and fitted up with everything that can be desired by the chief officers. Altogether the steamer is fitted to handle large parties, as many as five hundred being cared for during the height of the season.

The steamer with her companion ship, the North King, do the bay trade during the months of July and August, and prove a source of delight to all along the pretty bay shores who desire to travel up and down. The Caspian, perhaps, is the faster boat of the two, and can reel off from fourteen to sixteen miles an hour without much trouble. Her officers are men of capacity and standing, who do their utmost to make travel both a pleasure and a delight. From the cabin to the first officer, they were found to be polite and obliging, and all questions asked, that could be answered, were replied to in a gentlemanly and cordial manner. The officers of the boat are: William Bloomfield, captain; George Smith, first mate; Thomas McEwen, second mate; P. C. Maund, purser; J. M. Laing, assistant purser; A. G. Curphy, steward; W. O. Dwyer, second steward; Walter Mills, chef; N. K. Scouse, second chef; Thomas H. Laidlaw, chief engineer; George A. Sauve, second engineer.

A night and a day on the water for any person cooped up in close quarters, in office or store, cannot but be a source of pleasure. The treat, once the sparkling waters, the beautiful scenery and the excellent cuisine served on the steamers all tend to make the time pass pleasantly, and to invigorate and strengthen those who travel. The trip is further lightened by the runs that are daily made across the lake from Charlotte to Cobourg and Port Hope, and here, good sailors find a wonderful exhilaration as they sit on deck, far from land, and enjoy the gentle rocking that the wind-tossed waves of Lake Ontario afford. The writer has counted the great lakes, but has never enjoyed sailing upon any steamer as that in which he participated, last week, on Lake Ontario, on the steamer Caspian.

The Bay of Quinte and Lake Ontario Navigation Company has had control of the routes it traverses for more than three-quarters of a century. The Gilderelevens, the originators, and whose names were as good as their hands, in every port, have as successors, a company as equally high-minded and as anxious to serve its patrons to the full extent of its powers. What it promises it fulfils, and this guarantee of faithfulness has led to the success it has attained as a caterer to those who love "to go down to the sea in ships." Its general manager, E. E. Horner, watches every detail with a carefulness that merits approval; he is as thoughtful of every patron as if he were of his own household, and the people along the bay know and appreciate his worth and the worth of the crafts he controls.

JOHN L. STODDARD'S TRAVELS An Exceptionally Interesting Work. A few days ago the Whig extended reference to John L. Stoddard's travel lectures, believing that it was of sufficient interest to every community to warrant the fullest consideration. If we have seemed to take a special interest in this subject it is because we firmly believe that the valuable information, a valuable set of books will amply repay for the time and money expended, not only for the entertainment furnished, but in the improved literary taste acquired and the valuable information acquired. Everyone recognizes the necessity of education as a preparation for the competitive system of life which confronts the people of to-day. But not everyone can afford a college education, much less the expense incident to foreign travel. Anyone, however, endowed with energy and ambition, enough to save seven cents a day for a short time, can obtain the education that is afforded by the agency of John L. Stoddard's lectures. Whatever is most beautiful, most interesting, most instructive, most inspiring and best worth knowing, in every quarter of the globe, is test described as well as pictured for us in this wonderful set of books and described in language which cannot only interest and charm, but which will also instruct and give us the facts for our own minds. The work with its nearly 5,000 illustrations, is the most wonderful combination of beauty, entertainment and information ever set in print. Its value in the homes cannot be estimated in dollars and cents, for, as we intimated above, nothing develops, nothing broadens, nothing educates, like travel. If one has been abroad, this work is an ideal reminder of the places seen; if one is about to go it is an ideal preparation which will save many times its cost.

CHANGE FALL DATE FOR MEDICAL SUPPLEMENTAL EXAMINATIONS.

Hon. Dr. Fyne Presented With A Cabinet of Silver in Recognition of Long Service to the Medical Council.

The date of the fall examinations was the chief question debated before the council of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario, at Friday afternoon's session. Dr. Morehouse introduced the educational committee's report, setting the date as on previous years, viz: The third Tuesday in November. Dr. Britton moved in amendment that the supplemental and the third Tuesday of September, and in this respect was supported by the president, Dr. Spinkie, during the discussion the members being in committee of the whole. The question practically originated from the request of Dr. Britton, secretary of the medical faculty of Toronto University, that the date of the supplemental examinations be changed, owing to their interfering with the college course. Dr. Jarvis favored the amendment, the view point of the homeopaths. A thorough discussion of the question followed most of the doctor's present taking part and arguing the matter from the view point of the student and teacher. On the vote being taken, the amendment of Dr. Britton met with favor.

The second clause in the report as presented by Dr. Morehouse, dealt with the appointment of examiners, and was adopted, the list with a few changes being the same as the previous year. After the other clauses had been read and the report of the educational committee was adopted in its entirety as amended. The report on registration, introduced by Dr. Lane and seconded by Dr. Hardy, was unanimously adopted.

Robertson moved in accordance with a previous notice of motion, and seconded by Dr. Klutz, that a legislative committee be appointed as follows: Dr. Britton, Dr. Hardy, Morehouse, Basson, Vardon, and the mover and seconder, with power to add to their numbers, and that the duties of this committee be to advise the council on all matters of the public health of the profession, and of the student body whenever new legislation is impending.—Carried.

The members adjourned shortly before five o'clock, to meet again at nine o'clock Saturday morning.

Made A Presentation. This morning's session opened at nine o'clock with President Spinkie in the chair. The report of the committee on finances was taken up first and showed that after the expenses of the present session had been met the balance on hand would amount to $2361.

The new prosecutions committee was next moved in, the following constituting its membership: Dr. Johnston, Parker, King, Scotty, Britton and Hare, all of Toronto.

On motion of Dr. Johnston, the registrar was requested to convey to the commandant of the Royal Military College, the college's appreciation of his kindness and courtesy on the occasion of their visit to the institution yesterday.

Dr. Bray, the newly appointed registrar of the college, tendered his resignation as the representative from district No. 1.

Dr. McArthur moved a vote of thanks to the county council for the use of their rooms during the session concluding with them.

The thanks of the members of the "Kingston's Famous Fur Store."

RELATION OF CITY TO ABERDEEN AND WILLIAM STREETS.

Report of the City Solicitor—Both Have Acquired the Character of Public Streets For Which the City is Liable.

The report of City Solicitor McIntyre in regard to the relation of the city to Aberdeen street from Division of William street from Division of University avenue, is as follows: "A plan of subdivision of the Mills tract prepared by Mr. Bolger, O.L.S., in accordance with the requirements of the act, was registered on the 24th September, 1898. This plan shows two streets—Aberdeen street and William street—each six feet wide it is less than sixty-six feet wide it is necessary, under the municipal act, section 630 (2) that the consent of the council should be given to the subdivision. This consent was given as evidenced by the signatures of the then mayor and city clerk.

"The members of the Council of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario have learned with profound regret of your unexpected resignation of the office of registrar of this council which you have occupied, with so much dignity and with so much credit, for the past twenty-seven years.

"The duties of the office of registrar of a peculiar nature and demand a high order of rare qualities. They bring you into the closest contact with the members of the profession, the staffs of the medical colleges and the students in medicine, and the fact that through this long term of years, during which you were registrar, no word of complaint or even of criticism has been heard, shows in the highest possible manner, the deep regard and estimation in which you have been held by all concerned.

"Your work has been recognized as one of the factors and not the least high standard to which medicine has attained in this province. Your energy, tact and unflinching courtesy and patience have contributed greatly towards making the way easier for all students, physicians and members of this council, and this slight testimonial from the members of the present council, given so cheerfully, is but an indication of the high regard and esteem in which you are held by the medical profession.

"We are sure that this token of our appreciation of the value of your services to the profession will be received by you in the manner in which it is intended. I cannot but be pleased to your children and to your children's children, to know the high and affectionate regard in which their parent was held by the profession which he so ably served.

Replying Dr. Fyne showed visible embarrassment, being quite affected by the unexpected expression of feeling on the part of his associates. Twenty years he had served in the council and tried to do his duty. He left the council reluctantly; the standard of the medical education had been elevated in Ontario was due to the deep interest taken in it by his body. He made kindly reference to Senator Sullivan for the work he had done in advancing the cause of anatomy in the province. Concluding the speaker said he carried from his colleagues of years past with only the kindest of feelings and if he could ever serve them in the future he hoped they would feel that he was ever ready to do his best to aid them.

A number of ladies were present to witness the presentation. The last speaker was Hon. Dr. Sullivan, who, as usual, spoke in a most humorous vein.

"NEXT DOOR, TO HEAR THE MUSIC."

Baby, grace of limb, chubby features and flaxen hair, enfolded in snowy draperies and a white caplet almost hid with flowers, a quiet little form and a stilled voice are what struck the eye and heart, in the breaking hearts of Baby Hilda Mc Gillivray, who, for two years, brought untold sunshine to home and loving hearts.

She was as a ray from Him who is the source of all light. Slightly that ray of light went out. It did seem a cruel, cruel blast that extinguished it, but not so; the same blast set alight the spirit of the Upper Sanitary and the glorified little spirit that had known no sin entered forever into the presence of Him who is the light of the little lambs, carrying them in His bosom.

In the morning the loving mother heard the baby plead, "Let me go, mamma, next door to hear the music," and before midday Heaven's music was in her ears and her own, sweet, baby voice was a part of it. Life and its wondrous lessons, taught by joy and sorrow, may give many words of wisdom and deep sympathy, but none truer and fuller of comfort to those worn by the strife than the words spoken by God's young servant to the sorrowing parents, brothers and sisters, to whom heaven may have seemed a long way off through the dark, dark cloud, "Next door is heaven, only a thin partition lies between us and it and there the music is."

That some of its glory and melody may enter into the hearts of those whose eyes are peering into great gloom and whose cars are strained to hear what was so lately their greatest pleasure is the earnest prayer of many sympathizing friends.
