Crisp, inviting tasty.

But there is a certain group of the human family which has its represent tatives in all times and countries;

graphically communicating his impression is Mr. James Outram. In his book which grew out of his camping and climbing there, he presents a vivid picture which gives even a casual reader a thrill for "the heart of the Canadian Rockies."

He turns from a reminiscence of Switzerland to say: "But though its scenery is unchangingly beautiful and the familiar Alpine monarchs retain forever the affection of the mountaineer, yet his soul will crave — and rightly so—the chief joy of the climber's ambition, a 'first ascent.' He turns most naturally, therefore, to the great continent of America, where he expects to find plenty of new things and generally finds them on the largest scale. The United States, with its enormous area and States, with its enormous area and imitless array of nature's mightiest works and treasures, might well exas we may amid the upland solitudes of Colorado's sea of lefty mountains, the noble peaks and canyons of the California Sierras, or the icy fastnesses of Mt. Shasta and the Cascade Range, the more closely they are studied, the more intrinsically are they found to differ from Switzerland. Each contains some of the splendid. Each contains some of the splendid features that are all combined within the scanty limits of the little European Republic, but the wondrous glacial fields, the massing of majestic ranges, the striking individuality of each great peak, the forest areas, green pasture lands, clear lakes, and rescated valleys are nowhere found

THROUGH THEM

THE Switzerland of America — James o Outram Writes Racily of His Trip Through the Mountains.

Sir William Mulock points out that itterland, a country with a population of 5,000,000 people, has no instries worth speaking of, and that practically "lives on its scenery."

William, on his recent trip to the st. was much impressed by the list.

Lord chancellors and masters of the rolls fought like cornets of horse. Lord , Norbury fought "Fighting" Fitzgerald and two others, besides "frightening" Naper Tandy, as the Irish historians tell us. Galway was great with the pistol, Tipperary with the sword. Two English "fines lames," Major Park and Captain Creed, went to Ireland to find foemen worthy of their steel and found them in Mr. Matthew and Mr. Macnamara, who datthew and Mr. Macnamara, who and were rewarded with their friend-ship. Colonel Barrington and Mr. Gil-bert, two middle aged married men, with his broadsword, dismounted and, putting his "skeen" to the other's throat, called upon him to "ask for his life on pain of death." Gilbert agreed to shake hands and be friends,

"Fighting" Fitzgerald, a well known character, a cousin of the Earl of Desmond, an Eton boy, an Oxford ninth foot, fought eighteen duels and was thought by many to be mad. He hired a gang of ruffians, waylaid and killed a gentleman on the king's high-way and was hanged at Castlebar. of Galway, the Rev. Richard Bate and onel Allen. The Ashton duel and another fought by Clive with a Cal-cutta civilian indirectly helped Brit-ish arms to many victories. The first made way for a Colonel Wellesley, afterward better known under another name, to an important command be-fore Seringapatam The second had, by displaying the desperate courage of Clive, secured him a military appoint-ment in a time of emergency.—Corn-

STORY OF A STOWAWAY.

Boy Found Half Frezen In Fish Room

A remarkable story of a stowaway's experience was told by the skipper of the steam trawler King Edward, which arrived in Aberdeen from a voyage to Iceland recently. The King Edward left Aberdeen about three weeks ago, and on her run north called at Longhope. On the trawler continuing her journey, one of the men on deck was considerably alarmed by strange noises coming from the fishthe vessel was about 54 miles off Longhope the mate decided to go into about 10 years of age. The boy was immediately removed to the deck, and taken below to the cabin. On rean account of how he managed to get that he did, he was allowed to re main on board.
