PLANS OF DEFENCES OF TOWN OF KINGSTON A CENTURY AGO.

The War Office in England Sent Them to Canadian Archives—Ontario Historical Society Meeting.
Three months ago, there arrived at the Canadian government archives at Ottawa, from the British war office in England, the old documents, plans and maps relating to the defence of this country in the early part of last century. A number of these concern the old town of Kingston, and in view of the annual meeting of the Ontario Historical Society, which is to be held here during the last three days of this week, Prof. Shortt, of Queen's University, borrowed some of them from the archives to exhibit. These plans and maps will be of great interest to everyone who has the least curiosity to know "the lay of the land" in and around Kingston about an hundred years ago. The plans and maps, which are large and splendidly executed by members of the royal engineers stationed here and at Quebec at that far-distant period, will be on exhibition at Queen's University during the latter part of the week, and may be viewed by anyone who wishes to gaze reverently upon them. Prof. Shortt will give all explanations necessary.

The earliest of the plans is dated 1814, and shows the sparse settlement of the town and the defenses, notably those at Point Frederick, where a blockhouse and fortifications were erected. There was a blockhouse system in the town, commencing at the spot now occupied by the government dry dock, where No. 1 blockhouse was situated. No. 2 was on the site now occupied by Dr. Third's house on William street, near the City Park. No. 3 was at the corner of West and Bydeman streets. Where the Bydeman Street Methodist church now stands was an intermediate fortification, and a like one where the Central school is situated. No. 4 blockhouse was about the spot where the furniture store of James Reid & Co. stands, and No. 5, the only one still existing, was that at the outer end of Bydeman street. Complete plans of the streets of the town are given in the sketch. In this map of 1816, a splendid drawing of the old navy dockyard, as it appeared in that year, is given. The dockyard was the site now occupied by the Royal Military College. The vessels that then existed there, shown as they lay in their berths, just after the extended war of 1812. The St. Lawrence was the largest, having cost $200,000. Alongside were the Princess Charlotte, the Psyche, the Montreal, the Prince Regent, the Star, the Niagara and the Netley. The bulk of the Duke of Kent is also shown. It is understood that the foundation of the present malt house wharf, below Prof. Shortt's residence, Old Fort Henry, as it existed in 1816, is shown on the large map, and full details are given in small plans.

The old Anglican church is shown, being situated almost upon the spot where the Whig office now stands. A plan prepared in 1829 shows a scheme for the erection of a large number of towers from a point two miles down the St. Lawrence and up as far as the present Murray tower. About a dozen were proposed, but the only ones erected were those on Cedar Island, Point Frederick and at the present Macdonald Park. A reconstruction plan of Fort Henry is also given. The first reference to the British-American hotel appears in a plan of 1824. This hotel was erected somewhere about 1808, and still stands.
The maps and plans were not known to be in existence till they reached Ottawa. This is the first time they have ever been exhibited, and they will be a feature at the Historical Society gathering.
The programme for the convention is as follows:
July 18th—3.30 p.m., opening business meeting; address of welcome by Mayor Mowat and Vice-Principal Watson, 5 p.m., reception and address by Women's Art Association, with exhibits of historic pictures; also a series of original maps of Kingston and district, showing fortifications and other historic sites, from 1812 to 1858. 8 p.m., president's address; sketch of Kingston's history, W. Union Catholic Picnic.
It is over twenty-five years since the Irish Catholic societies of Kingston amalgamated for the purpose of holding a picnic for the last time in the summer of 1881, when over 2,500 people gathered at Channel Grove for the benefit of St. Vincent de Paul Society. The societies will have a big picnic at Lake Ontario Park on the Civic holiday, July 29th.

HIGHLY HONORED. ODDFELLOWS' RELIEF

Presented With a Gold Headed Cane.
The Association Organized in Kingston in 1874—Has Had a Great Growth—The Delegates in Attendance.

The Oddfellows' Relief Association in session in the Granite lodge hall, on King street, Committee meetings were held to-day, to-morrow, and the annual meeting will be held on Friday. The association was organized in 1874 and incorporated in April, 1875. It had its origin in the discussion by Kingston Oddfellows at an Oddfellows' banquet, of the need of the benefit in connection with the order outside of and in addition to that which it afforded. Reference was had to such a benefit as would materially aid the widows, children or dependents of the deceased Oddfellows. The talk at the above mentioned funeral had its effects. It led to a meeting, held soon afterwards, at which the initial steps were taken towards the organization of the association.

At the outset the association was most modest in its pretensions. It was an independent existence. It was an auxiliary to the I.O.O.F., but it did not have from the order the recognition which came to it later. This recognition came first from the grand lodge of Ontario, then from the other Canadian grand lodges, one by one. Their repeated endorsement of its work is the best testimony to the orderliness with which it has served the community since.

ALDERMAN RIGNEY SCORED

For Participating in the Orange Parade.
A writer in the Canadian Freeman of to-day's issue scolds Alderman Rigney for joining in the Orange parade with other civic representatives last Friday. He says: "The unusual sight of a Catholic alderman in a 12th of July Orange parade was a spectacle that rudely shocked the Catholic sentiment of this city. That act is regarded by Kingston Catholics generally as the most contemptible ever perpetrated in the Catholic history of this province, and it richly merits the universal reprobation it is receiving."

"Orangemen, if they know anything at all, should be as well known to the guide of religious liberty and constitutional freedom, for organized and sworn opposition to that religion which we as Catholics hold dearer than life itself."
"The participation by the young Catholic alderman in the celebration of the Battle of the Boyne can, therefore, be viewed in no other light than as a repudiating his religion and his race, and as casting an indelible stain on an honored name."
"It is difficult to understand, and I suppose we have no right to judge, the motives that prompted such an act, but if the young man and his advised friends think they see in it a means to political or professional success, we can tell them that they are labouring under a very serious mistake. It is not the introduction of the city will estimate this act at its true value, and whenever a favorable opportunity presents itself Kingston Catholics will repudiate it to a man."
"I presume that the Catholic societies of the young man in a member will deal with this episode in due time and in a proper manner."

A Fine Party Went Up on the Excursion.
Quite a number of people gathered at the inner Grand-Trunk station, this morning, to see the excursionists for Toronto, who left on their way. About two hundred citizens of all classes and denominations, took advantage of the opportunity for a trip to the Queen City offered by the excursion on the auspices of the Queen Street Methodist Society. Had the weather been different, there is little doubt but that a record sale of tickets would have been registered. As it is the good people in charge are to be congratulated, the association's finances will be considerably bettered. At Napanee and Belleville, a further contingent will join the excursionists so that by the time Toronto is reached the coaches should be filled to their capacity. Among those who went up from Kingston were noticed: N. C. Polson, C. Warwick, Ex-Ald. Daniel Reeves, Ald. C. J. Graham, Mrs. John Nicoll, Mrs. W. H. Spaulding and daughter, Clark W. Wright, Arthur Ellis and wife, Michael Sullivan, W. Robertson, W. Dalby and many others.

HONORED THE AGENT

Station Agent Donaldson of Brockville Was Given a Purse of Gold Before He Left For a Trip in the Old Land—His Men Remembered Him Substantially.

On the evening previous to the departure of General Yardmaster A. Donaldson, Brockville, formerly of Kingston, a few of his employees took him completely by surprise when they invited him into his private office where they were in waiting. Locomotive Foreman J. P. Rugs, occupied the chair who called the gathering together. He called on Albert E. Parker, who read an address, expressing appreciation of the kindness received from him during the past seven years, and asked him to accept the purse of gold as a token thereof. They wished him a pleasant voyage. At the conclusion of this H. N. Patterson presented Mr. Donaldson with a purse of gold made up by his employees. Mr. Donaldson has filed the position of station agent and general yardmaster or upwards of seven years and his general popularity was made evident by his good works, and impartial treatment of the men under his jurisdiction.
Mr. Donaldson sails on the steamer Athena, of the Donaldson Line, accompanied by his father, Wednesday morning, from Montreal, for Glasgow, Scotland.
Although completely taken by surprise Mr. Donaldson made a lengthy and suitable reply. He had adopted a policy, and followed it, to use every man as a stranger. He had discharged his duties to the best of his ability with fairness to the men generally, and the very best interests of the company. The life of a railroad man was not all sunshine, and not a calling to be desired by every one had they an insight into the duties they were called upon at times to perform. It had always been his policy to give a man a show before he permitted by treatment given a man that had a desire to do what was right was none too good and always looked for good results and profitable service. The evening had certainly been a pleasant one; he left with the good will of the men under his jurisdiction. F. W. Thompson has been appointed acting general yardmaster and station agent during Mr. Donaldson's absence.

Sank At The Wharf.

The motor boat What Next, was sunk during the early hours of Tuesday morning at her moorings between Swift's wharf and the ferry boat landing. The What Next is one of the newest and best appointed boats on the river being owned by H. B. Crouse, Clayton, N.Y., and valued at $5,000. She is one of the greyest boats on the river, and there are few, if any, launches which can pass the trim list of the motor boat. On Monday with a party of Americans on board, a trip was made from Clayton to Kingston. The visitors remained here over night and tied their boat to the side of the ferry landing. Along came the sloop Laura D., Capt. Dodge, about 10.30 o'clock last night. The skipper wanted to make fast where the motor boat was and it was the work of a few moments to move her broadside the space between the two slips. Every thing looked snug enough, but the unforeseen happened. The heavy seas which arose during the night drove a floating timber against the bow of the motor boat and she quickly filled. This happened between three and four o'clock this morning. Police Constable E. G. Long, of Deseronto, and the crew of the Laura D., were the first to see the boat. They were amazed to find their craft missing. They lined up the hull for some time, but the truth dawned upon them for the dark water almost hid the boat, as it lay on the bottom. Then it was work. The steamer Scotia lay alongside at Swift's, and the motor boat was hauled to the shore and beneath the launch. Thus was the disabled craft raised enough to allow the holes to be temporarily patched up, but had the 1820 been elsewhere or her crew less kindly disposed, much greater difficulty would have been experienced in fitting the disabled speeder. The accident attracted quite a number of citizens to the spot this morning, and they viewed with interest the work of the wreckers.

The Style Of Hair Worn.

It is an important factor to produce a covet and refined face and a well shaped head to any lady or gentleman. Prof. Dorewood, who will be at the Randolph hotel, Kingston, Wednesday, July 17th, can demonstrate this to anyone calling on him at his show rooms. He has ladies' and gents' wigs, toupees, bangs, wavy and plain fronts, switches in every length and shade, that he will gladly adjust on any head free of charge to prove this. Don't fail to see him.

Given A Present.

Mrs. T. J. Shanks and her two daughters, Miss Grace and Jean, of this city, have left Belleville for Hamilton, where they will take up their residence. Mrs. Shanks, a valued member of the choir of St. Andrew's church, was presented with a beautiful cut glass chalice as a token of appreciation for past services. Mr. Shanks, a former Kingstonian, is editor of the Royal Templar, with headquarters at Hamilton.

What Liment?

When you have need of an external healing and pain-relieving remedy you should always get Smith's White Liment.
