Told in Twilight

The movements of Mrs. Elizabeth W. Taylor, wife of the agent of the Bank of Montreal, in London, England, are always read with interest. A very clever woman (but so charming that she conceals the fact), artistic, musical, and literary, she made many friends as Miss Henshaw, of Montreal. Here this charming Canadian woman, who was married to Mr. Taylor, when she came up to this part of the world and lived in Picton and Deseronto, and during her visits to Kingston. Mrs. Taylor now lives at "Fairfield," the romantic Berkshire house near Ascot, and within easy drive of Surrey and Bucks, where Mrs. Taylor's one, the beauties of Charles II's reign, lived. Here this charming Canadian woman has surrounded herself with music that is artistic, beautiful, ancient and his-toric. "Fairfield" has its ghost, too, said to be that of its mistress in the early times. Mrs. Taylor's most de-voted of another beauty, Nell Gwynne, resolved to go to "Kingwyck" which lies near, and is connected with, "Fairfield" by an underground passage. What the beauty of the let-ter meant to do to the beauty of "Kingwyck" no one knows, for as she stepped cautiously along the pas-sage someone killed her with a dagger thrust. Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Taylor, and opens "Fairfield's" drawing-room door, unexpectedly, and does other things, all of which add to the inter-est of Mrs. Taylor's beautiful home. Mrs. Taylor, the daughter of a wealthy merchant, who was presented not long ago, adds an attraction all her own to the romance of the old-house.

ENGLAND'S INGRATITUDE. CRIMEAN NURSE IN ENGLISH ALMSHOUSE. One of Florence Nightingale's Brave Followers Now Living on Public Charity.

London, Aug. 21.—The most interesting personality in the workhouse at the present time is a woman who is in her eighty-first year, and who half a century ago was one of the devoted band of nurses who, under the banner of Florence Nightingale, tended our wounded soldiers in the Crimea. The daughter of a builder at Bridge-near Canterbury, she determined to adopt nursing as a profession, and went to London to be trained. When the Crimean war broke out she was one of the first to volunteer, and spent some years as an indefatigable seamstress. Age crept on her, however, and work became infrequent, so, twenty-two years ago, when she was some thing over sixty, she gave up the struggle and sought the shelter of the Mother's Home, where she remained until her health broke down. There, to this day, she is in charge of the making of bandages for the infirm. Her vigor has not entirely left this slight woman with the snow-white hair, the undimmed blue eyes and the touch of color in her cheeks. She talks of her terrible experiences during the war as though they were affairs of yesterday, and she has one great longing—to see Florence Nightingale again.

Lady Rose Wigham and several other women are trying to raise a little fund to enable Miss Fagg to spend the days that are left her outside the workhouse walls.

An Undergraduate. "I wonder," said the tall man in the suit of faded black, "if I could interest you in a new and cheap edition of the works of Anthony Trollope." "I don't know," answered the man at the desk. "Go ahead and let me hear what you have to say." "Every student of literature knows," he said, "that Anthony Trollope was one of England's greatest novelists. It is true, perhaps, that he wrote for a limited class." And so on, for ten minutes.

Perth Paragarchs. Perth, Aug. 20.—We are having nice showers of rain occasionally, but the potato crop around here is thought to be a complete failure. The fire bell rang, to-day; it was only a small blaze, and was extinguished. Miss Sadie Strong, dressmaker, has purchased Mrs. McGregor's property on North street. Quite a number took to the excursion to Westport, Monday, on the Arachonion. Arthur Chapman, who left some weeks ago, for North Bay, reports a busy place there. Mrs. M. Stanley and daughter, Annie, returned from a visit to Dakota. Miss Edna Berlaugie left, Sunday, to commence duties as teacher at the Ferry. Miss Mabel Smith, Ottawa, is renewing acquaintances here and will also spend some time camping near Portland. Mrs. M. J. Forey returned, to-day, after spending a pleasant visit in Ogdensburg and Prescott. Mrs. Patrick McGarry is holidaying at Focquign's Falls.

Some people are never found out who are out most of the time. There is really no appropriate time to do what you don't want to do.

THE PARAGRAPH PULPIT. REV. C. W. GASSON, OTTAWA. Sickly Saints.

Much of so-called unwellness is often a little more or better than mere sickness of soul. There are many people who imagine that because they are forever fusing about state of their health, they are exhibiting evidences of being religious. They are simply sick. What they need is the tonic of hard work. When they become strong and active they will not think so much about their spiritual constitution. It is only the weak who worry about their sins or their salvation. The man who is engaged in doing the work of life has neither time nor inclination to do so.

Address, Mr. Casson for free literature.

NO GREASE OR DANGEROUS DRUGS. In "Herpicide," the New Scientific and Successful Dandruff Treatment.

Have you dandruff? Then you have a contagious parasitic disease, one that is pleasant, unhealthy and one that will eventually lead to baldness. To cure it you must destroy the parasite that eats at the root of the hair. This only preparation for destroying these germs is Newber's Herpicide. Charles Klein of Laramie, Wyo., says: "Herpicide al-layed the itching, cured the dandruff and stopped my hair's falling out; and it's bringing a new crop of hair. Herpicide is free from grease or dan-gerous drugs, and makes hair glossy and soft as silk. One bottle will con-vince you of its merits. Sold by lead-ing druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., De-troit, Mich. Two sizes, 50c. and $1. G. W. Mahood, special agent."

KAISER'S SHORTHAND. His Spelling is Arbitrary and Con-fusing is Arbitrating.

The Kaiser is never weary of design-ing new writing paper for himself. His latest design is for a paper with embossed in the imperious yacht Holzeln-stein. The paper and envelopes are of two colors—white and pale blue. In the middle at the top of the sheet of paper, the words are embossed, in gold, "S. M. J. Holzelnstein." Under this is the imperial crown, also in gold, and under the crown comes the Prussian eagle sur-mounted by the yellow imperial standard and the purple royal standard of the King of Prussia. This design of eagle and standards is surrounded by the blue ribbon of the garter, with the gar-ment motto, "Honi soit qui mal y pense," and this again by the golden chain of the Prussian black eagle. The embos-sing is done by a special cut die, but coloring is done by hand on each separate sheet and envelope.

The Kaiser writes a very illegible hand, and his spelling is often very much arbitrary and confusing nature, owing to his rage for contractions. It is, of course, known that some Germans use the Roman character in writing, but the great majority still use the pointed Gothic letters. The Kaiser uses both in the same sentence, often in the same word. He writes his name in half a dozen ways.

But it is in abbreviations where the master's hand may be best seen. His treatment of the letter 'c' is shocking; in fact, he seldom writes an 'c' omitting it wherever possible. Were we to write the last four words of the last sentence in the imperial fashion they would run thus: "Omitting it wherever possible."

It need hardly be said that the Kaiser knows all the rules of German ortho-graphy, but he has no time to be bother-ed by such details, and, besides, his secre-taries soon get used to his shorthand.
