TERRIBLE VENGEANCE

Set Fire to Cottage in Which Woman Slept.

All Four Cremated—Murderers Slay Farmer Who Lived Near Scene to Prevent Evidence Against Them.

Rome, Sept. 14.—One of the most diabolical crimes in the annals of modern Italy has just been committed at Fondi, in the province of Caserta. A young woman named Briade, who by common consent was the prettiest of the village maidens, had been persecuted for a couple of years past by the unwelcome attentions of a local shepherd, Vincenzo De Silvestro, aged thirty-two, with whom her relatives had dissuaded her from having anything to do, as he was a fellow of ill-fame, who had been in prison for thieving. He had also served a sentence of ten months imprisonment for a brutal attempt to seduce Briade, whose parents had prosecuted him. De Silvestro vowed to exterminate the whole family, so Briade, as a precautionary measure, bought a revolver and practised shooting, her tormentor, being meanwhile safe in prison. On the expiration of his sentence De Silvestro laid his time till the actual anniversary of his offence, when he once more confronted Briade, demanding that she should go and live with him. He received negative answers. A few days later De Silvestro went forth to a thatched cottage on the moor, where Briade was passing the night in company with an old man, over eighty years of age, her thirty-year-old cousin and her little sister, aged eleven. Having securely barricaded the only two available exits, he piled straw at the four corners and saturated the wooden exterior with paraffin, and then set the whole ablaze.

DEATH OF HORSE OWNER. His Health Failed After Decision Against Him.

New York, Sept. 14.—Alexander Shields, the Canadian horseman, one of the famous Advertisers, died at his home, in Brooklyn, yesterday, at the age of sixty-five years. His health began to fail after the strain of nearly thirty years, when a decision was rendered, last year, against his horse, Go-Between. He was born in Scotland and spent most of his life in Toronto. He left a widow, three sons and two daughters.

Wants Subsidy Renewed.

Ottawa, Sept. 14.—At a meeting of the civic finance committee, A. J. Brummond asked that the bonus of $30,000, once granted to the Kingston, Smith's Falls & Ottawa railway company, but which lapsed, be renewed. The committee took no action.
