A VERITABLE REVOLUTION.

The crusade against China's great evil has accompaished a veritable revolution, to which the Daily Echo, of Foo Chow, bears testimony: "So great has been the Brs. Clementine Fessenden. of Hamilton Was Its Originator and Forceful Advocate—Growing World-Wide.

T

The founder of Empire day was Mrs. Clementine Fessenden, of Hamilton, widow of Canon. Fessenden, therefore more a daughter of the church than of the empire. Enthusiasm has been lavishly showered upon Sherring and Long boat for their ephemeral victories on the field; should not a greater recognition be publicly accorded to those who by lengthened drum-beats on the reserves of our patriotism have called into more active fire and expression? They have been building empires, not mere personal reputations,—have been ementing millions in the sentimental as well as geographical unity of the nation of the highest of civilizations.

Empire day was founded at Hamilton in 1897, and Mrs. Fessenden was its originator and forceful advocate. The city board of education gave the idea its formal support and thereby builded better than they imagined. Their example was copied in Toronto, Kingston and other towns, which were visited by the active lady herald of the new spirit, to give it introduction. It was five years ere the example spread to England, but it has caught the national fire there also. While Mrs. Fessenden had the pride of addressing a great mass at Hamilton.

"Meanwhile the anti-opium movement this week an accomp plished fact. newly awakened sense of patriotism very much in evidence just now. A sysforces was effected and preparations made for the day of closing the dens. Vigilance committees were formed and bers of the anti-opium societies might each look after a precinct. Each delegate labelled the places assigned to show that they had been properly watched. Such stern measures were taken and on Sunday last, the date fixed for their closing, not more than three or four den-keepers ventured to continue their These men were promptly justled off to gaol. Out in the wide, wide world,
Under the sky. Little winged messengers, Maybe some hopeless heart, har off or near, Waits for your word of love,

Your song of cheer. Haste, lest the hour unblest Little winged messengers Far away fly. Little winged messengers, Fly far away, Bring to some loveless life Blessings to-day,— Courage to fainting hearts,

Strength to the weak; Souls that have wandered wide, Tenderly seek;
Light bring where days are dark,
And skies are gray,
Little winged messengers,
Fly far away. Little winged messengers, Brought joy to me,— Lines from an unknown hand
