IS SIXTY-SIX YEARS OLD TO-DAY.

Got Its Royal Charter on Oct. 16th, 1841—Election of Officers By Various Years—Mineralogy Class Visit to Ottawa.

Today is the sixty-sixth anniversary of that memorable day on which there was issued a royal charter establishing Queen's College with "the style and privileges of a university." How vast a change those sixty-six years have wrought! Then Queen's consisted of an humble suite of rooms in a Colborne street dwelling house; now Queen's University comprises an array of massive stone edifices, which from the architectural standpoint as well as that of general utility, would bring seats of learning, sixty-six years ago, into disrepute.

The name of Queen's was practically unknown among the educationalists of the Dominion; now Queen's represents a power-mighty indeed among truly great universities of the Dominion—nay, of the continent; the fame of his sojourn in the city. He will preside at the convocation this afternoon.

BALLET AT THE BIJOU.

Two Fine picture Dramas, and Songs By Children.

A chorus of children's voices will be the attraction at the Bijou Theatre to-night and to-morrow night. They will support Edgar A. Bush of London, England, in his illustrated songs.

The picture dramas presented to-day and to-morrow are well worth seeing. They include a romance, "The Maiden's Fortune," and a spectacular comedy, "A Dream of Fair Women." The first is a very beautiful effect. The second is a very spectacular dance by the "Corps de Ballet," and is very striking with a fine element of comedy.

SIR SANDFORD FLEMING.

Who has completed thirty years as Chancellor of Queen's University. A host of him presented by the graduates, was unveiled at the University Convocation this afternoon.

Queen's has been spread abroad, not by the mere boasts of idle tongues upon her, but by the deeds of a sterling man whom she sends forth from her halls to combat life's battles and to make the world a little better for their having lived in it. This is that Queen's who has fought her way to the fore-front without government support, surmounting many apparently insuperable obstacles along the path of much resistance which she has been compelled to tread. But in view of all this, in view of the labor of men of eminence whose guidance at Queen's has been inadequate, the university's development during this period of sixty-six years has been truly marvelous. And as she surveys the group of splendid structures, almost animate with the pulsations of a great university's activities, and pauses to reflect upon the source whence Queen's sprang, he must exclaim again, "How vast a change those years have wrought!"

The students are pleased to learn that Prof. Clarke, who has been ill for some time, is leaving the hospital this week, and expects to be able to take charge of his work in physics shortly.

TERRIBLE TALE

BRUTAL STEPMOTHER TORTURES A CHILD.

Berlin Woman Noted For Her Beauty Exhibits Instincts of a Fiend.

Berlin, Oct. 16.—Seldom in the annals of cruelty to children has there been a more horrible case than that of poor little Marie Bergman, the thirteen-year-old daughter of a well-known physician here. Her stepmother has literally tortured her for two years. Berlin is indignant that the woman has got off with a fine of 300 marks, instead of eight months in jail, as proposed by the crown prosecutor.

Some of the tortures inflicted seem incredible. Marie was compelled to sit at open windows for hours in frosty weather. Although they had servants, she was made a drudge. She was compelled to carry heavy burdens up three flights of stairs, and she was obliged to take her meals in the kitchen, and was so starved that she had to beg from the neighbors. For every little childish fault she was beaten black and blue, sometimes till the blood streamed.

On one occasion the child was placed by the stepmother in an electric bath used by Dr. Bergman's patients and all the lights turned on. Her body was burned in numerous places, and on the exposed head of the child the woman rained blows until the child fainted. Perhaps more horrible still was an attempt made by the unnatural woman to disorder the child's mind. She dressed in a white sheet, with a hideous mask, and appeared at the child's bedside, pretending that she was a ghost, while the child screamed convulsively. The servants testified that for days afterward Marie went about distraught.

Frau Bergman is a woman of remarkable beauty. Her husband seems to be completely swayed by her. In his evidence he sought, as much as possible, to find excuses for her barbarity.
