BRITISH SOLDIERS DISPLAY FIGHTING INSTINCT.

An unprecedented thing happened recently during the peace manoeuvres when the cavalry brigades of the blue and red armies unexpectedly stumbled upon each other. Almost before officers and men recovered from their surprise, or the headquarters staff and other onlookers could get out of the other onlookers could get out of the houses to drown the Sabbatarian duil-ness in beer. vies" and the Lancers brigades charged and struck straight into each other's lines. Troopers were unhorsed and at least one man was killed and three men seriously hust, and some of the animals fared badly in the shock.

Herr Hessenberg, another speaker, declared that even one Sunday in Loudon brought on a severe attack of melancholin, necessitating a "cure" in order to restore his balance of mind.

Herr Steinfurth said the observance Fortunately the cavalry are not al- of Sunday in England was purely exhave been disastrons. As it was, the foist the "English Sunday" them. attle. It proved the British soldier's ghting instinct, but spoke badly for

When the troopers managed to stay heir steeds a score of men and seve-al horses had been howled over in he shock, but nearly all were on their feet again in a minute. Five men, mostly reds, however, required assist-ance. Three were badly hurt, two Lancers and a horse guardsman. The latter sustained a fracture of the thigh, a man of the Twenty-first Lancut in falling. It was well that mat-

Mysterious Robbery at Melbourne-Keys Taken From Police.

Melbourne has recently been the are full of mystery. The gold bars were placed in the safe at the police office to be kept overnight by Mr. E. Pascoe, a Bendigo gold buyer, at his own risk, in accordance with a practice that has become common when people have been too late to de-posit their valuables in the ordinary banks. Senior Constable Barelay, the resident police officer in charge of the place, went to the safe for some papers at 10 o'clock in the evening, morning, and it was gone. The most curious point is that the safe has been opened with a key, and that the vest, and then, when he had finished us dishonest work, erept back and returned the key to where he had found it. A constable on night duty was in the office almost throughout the night, only leaving for a few minutes on three occasions to accompany a senior officer through the Mint, and then he locked the outer door until he returned. Marks were found on one of the windows; which suggested that the burglars had either entered in that way, or had passed the gold through, but the window faces into William street, through which people are passing at all hours of the night. No trace of the culprit has been found.

Fishermen's Ancient Right cently asserted an ancient right netting, the lochs surrounding which are peculiar to the Lochmaber lochs. In former times, and still in a club to be known as "Lochmabe Vendace Fishing Club." This fish greatly prized by epicures, and in by-gone days the functions was wound resembles a herring, and has a dis-tinet mark of a blood red heart on the top of the head, has small scales. is very graceful in shape, and clear as a bright silver coin. The fish is supposed to have been imported into the locks of the burgh in ova or some other form by Queen Mary. Only two other locks in the world, besides the Lochmaten ones, possess these royal fish. The habits and mode of life of A large stock of Dry Bat-the vendace are strange, ignoring the teries, Spark Plug and Coils and content to live on what nature provides in the way of vegetable matter. They can only be procured by a suitable nets. The fishing on the opening day resulted in sixty-seven ven-
