

ENDURES ECZEMA FOR FIVE YEARS

Treated Continually by Best Doctors—Sores Behind Ears Spread to Cheeks—Could Hardly Bear Itching—Medicines Fail—Instant Relief by "Magic Three" and

WORDS CAN NOT EXPRESS GRATITUDE TO CUTICURA

"Words are inadequate to express my gratitude for Cuticura Remedies. I had been troubled with eczema for five years, and no doctoring with the best physicians, but found no relief whatever. When informed that I could not bear the itching I was told by one of our best doctors, 'Do not touch.' As the medicines and ointments did me no good I thought I would get the 'Magic Three.' Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Pills, costing me one-half of one year to my physician. After using as directed, with plenty of hot water, I can truthfully state that I found instant relief. When I had used three boxes of Cuticura Ointment and two cakes of Cuticura Soap, I found my skin as soft and fine as a baby's. My circle of friends is very large, and I am persuading them to use Cuticura Soap and give up the kinds they were using. I find no trouble as my case has proven to them that if Cuticura Ointment is good, Cuticura Soap must be likewise.

"I hesitate to send you the enclosed picture as it has been lying around in my desk for two years and is very soiled. At the time it was taken my ears were scaly and you will find some remnants of Cuticura Ointment on it, and, to me, it is very precious, as I can now say when looking at it that Cuticura is a blessing, and that is why I have kept it even though it was soiled. Miss Nettie Ayers, 131 Franklin Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 1 and 15, 1906."

Complete External and Internal Treatment for Eczema of Infants, Children, and Adults recommended by Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Pills, in the form of Chocolate Coated Pills, in vials of 100, 50, and 25. Fully the "Magic Three." Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Pills, made by J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

GIRL'S DEATH LEAP

COWARDS WATCH HER JUMP FROM TOWER.

She Escaped From the House of Her Employer and Going to Church Climbed the Stairs and Threw Herself Out.

A young servant girl met with a tragic fate at Sagart, a small village near Dublin, recently. Minnie Hunt, aged 21, was employed as a domestic in the district, and had seemed strange in manner. She obtained permission to go to church, and on her return informed a fellow-servant that she had been in the church tower, and had made several efforts to throw herself overboard but could not do it. Her employer had her examined by a doctor, who suggested that she should be kept under observation, and pending the arrival of her mother, a woman was called in for this purpose.

Later on the girl asked for permission to go to mass, but Mr. Hutton, her employer, refused to allow her out. Later it was discovered that she had escaped, and had succeeded in making her way to the top of the church tower, which is about 120 feet high. Here, in view of a crowd of horrified spectators, she sat on the edge of the parapet. Efforts were made to reach her from the inside, but it was found that she had locked the door. She also threatened that she would jump if anyone came near her.

At last Father Seavers, the parish priest, and a police-sergeant forced the door, assaulted the tower, and succeeded in getting quite close to the poor girl, but she still refused to come down. For three hours the priest knelt within a few yards of the unfortunate girl on the top of the tower. He dare not approach closer, as each time he moved she advanced as if to throw herself over. He prayed and implored her to leave her terrible position, but she refused. He held up a crucifix, asking her to take it, but she would not, saying that she would murder on the ground. When he offered to go towards her she would step forward as if to go over.

The situation was a terrible one. Suddenly she gave a loud shriek, leaped over the parapet, and fell on the gravelled walk of the churchyard. When picked up she was quite dead.

ENGLISH SCHOOLBOYS

Physician at Rugby Finds Numerous Deformities.

Some remarkable facts as to the physical condition of the better class English youth are tabulated in a paper contributed to The Lancet by Dr. Clement Dukes. Dr. Dukes, who is the physician to Rugby School, gives the results of the physical examination of 1,000 boys between the age of thirteen and fifteen, which was carried out on their admission to a public school.

These British boys, he says, may be regarded as a special class—strong and healthy, well bred, well fed, and reared mainly in the country. The examination showed that 522 of the boys were above the normal height and 385 below it, while 113 were up to the average. Again, 472 were above the normal weight, 471 below, and 57 of the average weight. Further, 456 were above the normal chest measurement, 423 below, and 132 up to the average.

Of the 4,000 boys examined, 445 showed lateral curvature of the spine, 526 were knock-kneed, 323 were flat-footed, 126 pigeon-breasted, 64 had bow-legs, 70 slammered, 12 were color blind, 122 suffered from myopia, 19 from aurial deafness, 9 from nervous twitching and 3 from lispings.

Dr. Dukes goes on to remark that it is somewhat depressing to register in the twentieth century the large number of acquired preventable deformities (not momentous, it is true, but still indicative of inferior systems of nurture and education) which are presented by the most favored class of boys in Great Britain—deformities occurring between the time of nursery life and the completion of education in the preparatory school at the age of thirteen.

COUNTRY HOUSES EXPENSIVE.

What It Costs the Aristocracy to Maintain Their Seats.

It is said that there are at least sixty country houses in the United Kingdom which require a staff of from two hundred and fifty to five hundred servants and involve an annual bill for wages ranging up to $100,000, and in many of them the owners also account for more than $20,000 a year, says The Bellman.

How large are the number of servants employed in connection with these estates is shown by a relatively modest establishment in Suffolk. The total number of servants employed is one hundred and seventy-three. This, it should be remembered, is but a second-class establishment, although its wages bill reaches $40,000 a year. For a first-class establishment there are about six hundred in the United Kingdom employing between fifty and a hundred servants with wages bills averaging at least $20,000.

Expensive as country seats are to maintain, they are little more costly than town houses. For a town house in Park Lane, such as would be procurable in a London suburb for $300 a year, a rental of $15,000 is asked, while some of the larger houses command a rent running up to five figures. In Grosvenor Square the rents range from five to thirty thousand dollars a year. In St. James' Square you may see as much as $100,000 for a house, $300,000 has been paid for a house in Carlton House Terrace, and Lord Burton gave $750,000 for a house in South Audley street.

And towns and country houses are but a part of the expenditure of the wealthy class of Englishmen. A steam yacht may easily run away with $25,000 a year; a single cruise in it by no means uncommon for a grouse moor and a deer forest; a London season, with its costly entertainments, may easily account for $30,000, and extend through the long list of items which figure in the annual balance sheet of the rich and which are considered as necessary to them as it tobacco is to the poor man. It is thus not difficult to see how agast many a man would be if he were suddenly brought face to face with the necessity of coming down to earth and to a pitiful $25,000 a year.

V. C. HERO DEAD.

Army Medics' Gallant Deed at Chitral Fort.

Few braver deeds are recorded in the annals of the Army than that which won the Victoria Cross for Major (then Captain) Harry Frederick Whitechurch, of the Indian Army Medical Corps, whose death has just occurred at Dharmasala, Punjab, at the age of 40. During the sortie from Chitral fort (says the official account), Surgeon-General Whitechurch, with the assistance of Captain Baird, who was mortally wounded, and carried him back to the fort under a heavy fire from the enemy, and the two captains with their scanty force of Sepoys were completely isolated from assistance.

The wounded officer was placed on a dooby by Captain Baird, and the two captains with their scanty force of Sepoys were completely isolated from assistance. Prince Edward's First Gun.

In these modern days, when even kings and queens send their sons to public schools, the holocaust of India is as real in the palace as elsewhere. The Princess of Wales solves the difficulty by sending her children to Deedside, where she has a school. The Princess is able to lead an untrammelled and busy-about-nothing existence in which young people, and especially boys, delight.

Close to Deedside, where the royal ladies can indulge in their father's favorite form of sport. For some time past Prince Edward has been at Deedside, and his father, King Edward, now thirteen years old, will be allowed for the first time to take an active part, to carry, load and fire a gun of his own. All the King's grandchildren are encouraged to play not only cricket and football, but also the national games of Great Britain.

UNHAPPY SNAILS

ARE INCLUDED AS AN ARTICLE OF DIET.

A Famine is Feared in Yorkshire—Miners Regard Them As Much a Luxury As Do the French Epicures.

Sad tidings for snails comes from Yorkshire. Hitherto it has been commonly supposed that the virtuous of the snail as an article of diet have only been appreciated by our French neighbors, but this is a mistake, for in the coal mining village of Knottingley, Yorkshire, a few miles from Wakefield, the snail appears to be so eagerly sought after as a table delicacy that a small famine is feared. It is estimated that in the last few years snails have been consumed in Knottingley at the rate of nearly a quarter of a million. The origin of the custom is curious. The local medical dispensary was in need of funds, so an enterprising local publican hit upon the happy idea of offering boiled snails at six a penny to his customers, and in consequence of the success of the scheme the snail soon became popular. Other public-houses in the district took to making similar delicacies, and in this way snails have become raised, one public-house alone raising $45 a year in this way. Once started, the taste for boiled snails developed, and now Knottingley, Brotherton, Castleford, and many other mining villages in the district have their population of snail eaters. Interviewed as to the effect of the food upon the health of the people, one of the best known medical men in the district expressed the opinion to a press representative that snails were not chthonic creatures. "But must admit," he said, "that they do not appear to have produced any ill effects upon the people." There is a firm local belief that snails are a tonic, and a certain cure for consumption if taken in the early stages of the disease. The snails, he gathered from the walls and hedge sides, and so great is the demand, that one public-house alone providing 13,000 of them last year, that they are now becoming scarce, and the dispensary funds are suffering in consequence. The dispensary authorities, it should be added, have no direct responsibility for the practice.

FOUND BONES IN TRUNK.

Workmen Discovers Cremated Remains of Woman in Tin Box.

Some excitement was caused in West Ealing, England, recently, owing to a rumor that a tin trunk containing charred human remains had been found in the locality. Workmen engaged in pulling down the house, and while examining a cupboard, says The London News Agency, the tin box was discovered, 18 inches long, 12 inches wide, and 9 inches in height. The box was sealed, and conveyed to the police station, where it was opened by a coronial surgeon, Dr. Bennett, who pronounced the contents to be the cremated remains of human bones. The ashes were perfectly white, and among them were small pieces of bone.

The police at once instituted inquiries and found that the box belonged to a former tenant of the house. It contained the remains of his first wife, who had been cremated. He was able to convince the police that everything was in order by producing a certificate of cremation.

ADVISORY COUNCIL FOR INDIA.

Important Change of System Announced by Government.

An important change in the system of governing India was announced recently when it was stated that the Government will establish an Imperial Advisory Council and several local Advisory Councils in that country. These latter will be partly nominative and partly elective. Two elected members will be chosen from a special Mohammedan electorate of the class paying an income tax, having an income of $300 a year, or pay a land revenue above a fixed amount. They will also all graduates from Indian universities of more than five years' standing.

This is the first time that an elective element has been introduced, and the council is subject to the "essential condition" that the British Government be left with undiminished power.

Women as Aldermen.

From England comes the following little comment on the recent bill to admit women to sit as aldermen and councillors. The bill to enable women to sit as aldermen and councillors on county and borough councils has revived all the usual arguments for and against women serving on public bodies. It is regarded as likely to promote the suffragist movement, and some even say it is the saving of the way to women sitting in parliament and upon the bench at assizes. It does not seem likely that the bill will be passed this session, in spite of the Government's intentions to this effect; but if it does it is not likely to lead to any of these results. Women are seen in the saving of the way to women sitting in parliament and upon the bench at assizes. JEW ASSAILS JEW.

Vulgarity of Race in London is Vigorously Denounced.

A remarkable attack on the vulgar and ostentatious type of Jew is made by a member of the Jewish community in a letter published in the pages of a large section of our people—qualities to which most, if not all, of the anti-Jewish feeling which exists in England is due.

The following are extracts from the letter: "All respectable members of the Jewish community should be grateful to 'Anastasis' for so straightforwardly opening a discussion on the vulgar and ostentatious type of Jew in the case of these characteristics—their racial or otherwise—they are certainly most objectionable. 'Look around certain districts of the East End—namely Whitechapel and Aldgate—and see hordes of Jews with their gaudy and hideous costumes, their enormous and grotesque hats, and their ostentatious jewelry—to see them to be overcome by a sense of nausea! This type is not confined to the districts named, but is to be found also in the most respectable and West End—in the latter case, real jewelry being substituted for imitation."

"Now, for the Jewish young man. Who does not know the type which will only wear the very latest style in clothes, the latest shaped hat, the latest tie, the latest cane—the cross-stick that secures the gaudiest of colored waistcoats; who walks with elbows out ostentatiously puffing a fat cigar, occupying as much of the pavement as he can, and speaking as loudly as possible, with the thickest voice and the most objectionable, slovenly and vulgar enunciation. The ostentatious and conceited of this type, coupled with their appalling ignorance, is simply overwhelming. They send a shudder through the frame of all sober Jews, with the least suspicion of refinement. 'This type of Jew is, unfortunately, plentiful. He pervades—and disgraces—the classes of the community. It is quite as much in evidence in Throckmorton street as in Aldgate and Whitechapel. You will find him playing the aristocrat in Belgrave—should say, spicing the vulgarities of the aristocrat, for the vulgarities alone attract him.'"

SCOTCHED, NOT KILLED.

Sedition Still Rife in India—Calcutta Much Excited.

Extraordinary scenes occurred in the Calcutta Police Court recently. A large mob of students who had deserted their classes in spite of the protests of the teachers gathered in the halls and corridors to hear sentence passed on two national volunteers who were arrested for assaulting the police at a boycott anniversary celebration.

The student created such a disturbance, shouting "Bande Mataram" (Hail Motherland), and spitting and jeering that the police proceeded to clear the court. Many of the students retaliated, and scuffles took place.
