Tea, Coffee, Beef

Extracts and Bovril

Tea stimulates!
Who could get strong on tea?
Coffee stimulates!
Who ever grew lusty on coffee?
All Beef Extracts stimulate!
But stimulation is not enough.
Bovril does not stop there. It stimulates certainly—but that is the least part. It nourishes—that is the important part. Stimulation may often be desirable—nutrition is essential.

What causes the difference?
Bovril contains the albumen and fibrin of meat, which are necessary to maintain life. Other extracts of meat do not contain them. Therein lies a world of difference and the difference is all in favor of Bovril. Palatable—Stimulating—Nourishing.

Boil The Water.
Lame back and urinary troubles arise from a poison in the system affecting the urinary organs. An old woman's recipe for the driving out of this poison is quite simple and inexpensive. It consists of four ounces of rhubarb, one ounce compound vinosa, and one ounce of sweet spirits of nitre. Buy these at any drug store, and mix at home. After meals and at bedtime take a dessert spoonful in a little water. Boil all drinking water and drink lots of it. Don't eat any acid products such as new fruit, pickles, and above all, no liquor should be used.

A WONDERFUL FEAT

DELICATE LENS FOR PHOTOGRAPHING PLANETS.

Carried From New Hampshire to the Andes, and Mounted 14,000 Feet Above Sea Level—Sufferings For Science.

Dr. S. A. Mitchell, of Columbia College, New York, a son of John Mitchell, William Street, and a graduate of Queen's, writes the following interesting article on "How the Planets are Photographed," for the Scientific American:

"The safe arrival in the United States of 7,000 photographs of the planet Mars is an astronomical event of no small importance. To transport a delicate lens 18 inches in diameter from New Hampshire to the Andes, to carry this lens and its mounting up to the height of 14,000 feet above sea level and there assemble the many parts into a perfect running machine, a powerful telescope, is in itself a gigantic undertaking. But when there is added to these almost insurmountable obstacles the difficulties existing can hardly call it living for a couple of months on an arid desert so high above the sea, we can gain a little insight into the huge task undertaken by Prof. Todd of photographing Mars at its near approach to the earth.

Whether these photographs prove that Mars is inhabited or not, Prof. Todd and his chief assistant Mr. Slipper, who made all the photographs, are deserving of nothing but the greatest praise for overcoming great observational difficulties, and procuring this splendid series of plates made under the greatest of bodily discomforts. One does not ordinarily go and live in a desert for the sake of having a pleasure trip; and the only motive that could have actuated Prof. Todd and Mr. Percival Lowell in financing and sending out the expedition was the desire to arrive at the truth regarding the interesting markings on the planet Mars.

Those who have never tried to photograph the stars can have no idea of the difficulty of the task; but when one attempts to portray the planets in detail, photography is no new art. We all know how easy it is to take a snapshot of a landscape and get a pretty picture, or to take a color photograph of a very particular kind. Mr. Wallace, of the Yerkes Observatory, has done some admirable work in investigating photographic plates and ray filters, and a "Wallace screen" and isochromatic plates have been found to give splendid celestial photographs with visual lenses. But consider how the light from Mars, when it is nearest to the earth and consequently at its largest, only 1-23 of an inch or one millimeter in diameter, the size of a pin head, sees the utter impossibility of showing any details on so small an image, much less to decide whether a given mark is a straight canal, a photographical feature.

A photographic plate placed at the focus of the 18-inch telescope that Prof. Todd used would give a picture but one millimeter (1/25 of an inch) in diameter. After such a plate was developed, it could of course be enlarged by an ordinary camera, and a bigger Marlian picture observed. For a minute study of planetary detail this method would lead to results of little or no practical importance.

Eczema, Salt Rheum.

Eczema or Salt Rheum, as it is often called, is one of the most annoying of skin diseases. It manifests itself in little round blisters, which contain an extremely irritating fluid. These break and subsequently a crust or scale is formed.

The intense burning, itching and smarting, especially at night or when the part is exposed to any strong heat, are almost unbearable.

The pre-eminent success which Burdock Blood Bitters has met with in permanently curing a disease of such severity is due to its wonderful blood cleansing and purifying properties.

No other remedy has done, or can do, so much for those who are almost driven to distraction with the terrible torture, as our thousands of signed testimonials can testify to.

Mrs. Jan. E. Keady, Linton, N.B., writes: "I was so troubled with Salt Rheum for eight years, that I could not wash my hands over so, by using Burdock Blood Bitters my hands were eventually cured."

Mrs. I. C. Beckler, Eden, Ont., writes: "I was troubled with Eczema for a long time. It came out on my face and between my shoulders. A friend told me about Burdock Blood Bitters. I took two bottles and it helped me so much I cannot recommend it too highly."

THE PARAGRAPH PULPIT

Untried.

REV. C. W. CASSON, OTTAWA.

The Holy Land. What infinite injury and injustice have been done by the sanctifying of one place, and the secularizing of another! How can one land be more holy than another, when God is in all lands alike? Is Palestine any more holy than Patagonia or Canada more suggestive of the presence of God than Canada? Let us at least rid ourselves of the absurdity of believing that the holy is something local, and confined, and realize its universality. If one place is more holy to you than any other, it is the square foot of land on which you are standing at this moment. You will nowhere find ground more holy.

Address, Mr. Casson for free literature.
