How the Retail Custom Tailor is

Doubly Handicapped. Local freight coming or going from Toronto to Montreal, usually takes a full week. The merchant tailors complain that the slow freight runs are an added handicap. They have to pay from 50 to 100 per cent more for cloth bought from middlemen than do the big importing tailor houses like the Semi-ready" and that concern is now booking orders in Toronto and points west, tailoring them to measure in their Montreal shops, and delivering the finished suits within a week from taking the measurement. A gentleman in Hamilton, who recently ordered a special suit made to measure got it in four days. The Semi-ready agent telegraphed the measurements, and the suit went west by express on the evening of the fourth day,
