STATEMENT REFUTED BY THE TRADES AND LABOR COUNCIL.

Immigrant Mechanics Are Not Debarred—An Incident Given Where a Certain One Was Helped.

Kingston, Dec. 20.—(To the Editor): At the last meeting of the Trades and Labor Council, considerable comment was evoked by an article in your issue of the 27th ult., wherein Dean Farthing, during his interview with your representative, assent the immigrant question, stated that "some good mechanics couldn't get jobs because they didn't belong to the local labor unions, and they couldn't join unless they had work." We are not acquainted with Dean Farthing, but knowing that he would have the public believe that trade unions adopt and pursue such policy, we are slow to believe.

In refutation, the Trades and Labor Council maintains that it has never known a man to be debarred from working because he had not the means wherewith to join. On the contrary, a man is always allowed to work, and no money is expected of him until he is earning. Then he may pay as he can afford, and I have known instances where men have been admitted to membership without any fee.

An incident occurred last week, which may be mentioned: A mechanic, recently from the old country, secured employment with a local firm, applied for membership in a union, and his initiation fee as he could spare the money, but his job was not a long one. By the time he had paid two-thirds of his fee, he was again out of work. The union upon learning the circumstances, returned to him the amount paid, and would have helped him further, had he accepted.

He was given a letter of recommendation, and he kindly treated wherever he went. Surely this is not harsh treatment of the immigrant by the union. We are not permitted to parade the fact of the foregoing, but constrained to state this one as a "counter-irritant."

"Why do the nations so furiously rage together? Why do they imagine a vain thing? The union upon learning the circumstances, returned to him the amount paid, and would have helped him further, had he accepted."

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT Suffered Four Months From the After-Effects of the Grip--Relieved By Pe-ru-na.

The grip more than any other disease in the world leaves the system in a run-down, nervous, bloodless condition. Peru-na has become famous in relieving the deplorable condition which the grip produces.

Hon. W. H. PARSONS, 925 H. St., N.W., WASHINGTON, D.C.

Catarth Victims Susceptible. People who have had catarrh of the head, throat, nose or lungs are much more liable to catch the grip than other people.

As a preventive of Peru-na has done a great deal of good in the world by its beneficial effect upon the mucous membranes.

Catarth has another untoward influence to be noticed in connection with the grip.

The whole nervous system is impaired; the digestive organs deranged; the circulation of the blood feeble and irregular.
