SOCIAL REVOLUTION

REMARKABLE CONDITION IN UNITED STATES.

Annesley Burrows Takes Up Subject in Interesting Interview—Force of Movement Strongly Felt.

"Perhaps the most remarkable condition in the United States, to-day, is the trend of public opinion towards what might be called the social revolution," said Annesley Burrows, who spent many years in newspaper work across the border, in an interview, to-day, with a representative of the Whig. "The force of this movement is beginning to be felt strongly, not only among the middle classes, but in the highest levels of commerce, industry and the learned professions. Twenty years ago, sentiments which one hears to-day, from men of the highest business and social standing, were heard only among the most rabid agitators of the labor movement. Nowadays, you hear merchants, lawyers and physicians, giving vent to opinions, which not long ago, would have been regarded as the rankest socialism, or anarchism, as the case might be. From persons of such standing, I happen to know the opinions of one of the most eminent members of the supreme court of the United States, and these fall not very far behind those of Karl Marx himself. Within the last two weeks, I sat at luncheon in the Detroit Club and listened to the opinions of one of the vast works which he manages, and which he built up from small beginnings, employ no less than five thousand workmen, and yet the opinions he expressed were such as twenty years ago, would rarely have been heard outside a workmen's meeting."

"There is no question, he said, but that we are on the brink of great social and industrial changes. Present conditions cannot be maintained, and if leaders of industry do not take some action, it will be taken for them. Changes which, during recent years, have been made, in the methods of production, render men of the present generation useless to themselves or others, at a time of life which, at an earlier period, would have been not far from their prime. Take the shoemaking trade as a case in point. A few years ago, a shoemaker could practically create a boot by his own labor, together with a few tools, and a dollars worth of leather. He was independent of all other assistance. He could offer his wares where and when he chose, and was sure of a livelihood as long as he could ply a needle, or strike with a hammer. To-day, it requires many men to make a boot, and each must be able to equal or nearly equal his brother workman in dexterity and speed, and the tools required for the performance of this work, are as far from attainment by an ordinary workman, as the income of a banker is beyond the reach of a ten-year-old orphan boy. As soon as the workmen of to-day lag behind in the amount of work performed, or falls short in the manner of its performance he must give way to younger and able men, and become a burden to his friends or the community. In the works which I control, we figure that the life of an employee is approximately, at twenty years. Every twenty years we use up 20,000 men who are, after that period of work, useless for our purposes, and must be cast upon their friends or the community. Modern industrialism has created this condition. Modern industrialism has got to meet it, and remedy it, the question is, 'How?'"

"Personally, this gentleman continued, I think that we must provide for the future of those men and others of their class with systematic pensions, part of which will be contributed by the employees and part by the general government, but whatever the remedy, it must come, and come quickly."

"Are you aware, I asked, 'that you are talking socialism?'"
"I am talking business," he said.
"Ten minutes afterwards in the lower hallway of the club, I met a gentleman, who two years ago, was candidate for the republican nomination as governor, and was defeated in consequence by a narrow majority. He is at the head of the real estate business in Detroit, and one of the most popular and highly esteemed men in the entire state. I made no mention of the conversation I have given above, or of the topic, but his thoughts were evidently running in the same direction."

"I made a speech down in Massachusetts, the other day," he said, "and I told the people down there that if the east continued its present methods—that if there was not some alteration in social and industrial conditions, that this country would witness an upheaval which would make the French revolution look like a picnic. I notice, he added, 'that the Wall Street News, of yesterday, has an editorial in which the same opinion is expressed.'"

"The expressions of these two notable men give a fair idea of the heights to which such opinions have attained. At the present time, conditions in the United States are such as must cause uneasiness in all quarters. During past years, the trade unions formed a safety valve through which the discontent of the masses expressed itself, and through which a measure of relief was obtained. To-day the trusts and other combinations of capital render the efforts of the

THE ARCHDEACON OF P.E.I.
Praises Dr. Agnew's Heart Cure—Remarkable Testimony.
We, the undersigned, have been seriously troubled with valvular heart disease; have both had fainting spells upon the slightest extra exertion. Last April, when we both were unable to do any work of moment, we began using Dr. Agnew's Heart Cure, having no faith in it but hoping it might relieve. After taking six bottles we feel almost cured. We feel compelled to send this unsolicited testimonial, with the hope that others may be benefited as we have been. Gratefully yours,

A PLAY THAT PLEASD

LILLIAN RUSSELL GREETED BY BIG AUDIENCE.

'Wildfire' Proved a Delightful Comedy—Miss Russell Keens Young—She Made a Short Speech.

The Grand Opera House was crowded to its utmost capacity, last evening, when Lillian Russell appeared in "Wildfire." "Wildfire" is a comedy in three acts by George Broadhurst and George Hobart. The play deals with the trials of a handsome young widow who is left a string of runners by her husband. Wildfire is a three-year-old comedy which she stakes everything, and she wins. The play proved an entertainment of the highest order and was well received by one of the largest audiences the house has ever held.

As Mrs. Henrietta Barrington, the widow, Miss Russell was seen at her best. She has a part that gave her ample scope and she proved herself a talented actress. For many years Miss Russell has been known as one of the most handsome actresses on the American stage, and her years of acting have not marred in the least her beauty. She has a rare figure and those who remember her fifteen or twenty years ago say that she is just as handsome as at that time, and is possessed of the same vivacity and charm as she was at the commencement of her theatrical career. Miss Russell appeared in the most charming costumes, her gowns being the richest and handsomest seen on a local stage in many a day.

The star is given good support by every member of the cast. M. Donovan, trainer for the widow's stable, is portrayed in fine style by Herbert Corbell. From the first until the last Mr. Corbell was a favorite. He is given a good part, and plays the part of the straight, manly trainer, so as to give it full justice. Will Archie, as Bud, a stable boy was a sure treat. His race track slang and his work all through made a decided hit. His part stands out from all the others and he certainly did it credit. Miss Genevieve Cliff, as Myrtle Wentworth, Mrs. Barrington's sister, was well suited to her part, and Genevieve Green, the colored maid, was handled by Miss Annie Buckley in a way that caused many a laugh.

To sum up the production, Miss Russell is a very clever and attractive woman. Her company is strong and well balanced, the play is bright and the comedy laugh provoking. In the staging and costumes everything is correct to the merest detail, and everyone admitted that the performance was one of the best of the season.

After the second act Miss Russell was called back seven times, and was forced to say a few words before the applause stopped. In a neat speech, she thanked the audience on behalf of herself, the company and the management for the enthusiastic reception tendered them, saying that if the audience were pleased the company were more than pleased.

"Jerry Fron Kerry."
"Jerry from Kerry," which comes to the Grand on Saturday, January 25th, matinee and night, was written to make people laugh. There is almost a continuous round of laughter throughout the piece. The play itself is a funny farce-plot, there is scarcely one of the first act, is a good bright opener, songs and specialties following in such quick succession as to be almost bewildering, introducing all the latest songs and funny sayings. The specialty acts are all far above the average and are selected to please all.

Always Welcome.
It has been a few years since May A. Bell Marks, who is to be at the Grand Opera House, starting next Monday night, for a stay of one solid week, with matinees on Saturday only, supporting the Marks Bros' No. 1 Dramatic company, and from all reports this popular and ever fascinating actress has lost none of her winning ways and has just as many friends as ever. Her supporting company this season is better than it has ever been.

Where is the cough? that Gibson's Red Cross Cough Syrup can not cure? 25c. a bottle.

CITY AND VICINITY.

Small Fire Last Evening.

Last evening, about 8.15 o'clock, the fire brigade was called to Alfred street to extinguish a small blaze in the house occupied by John Wright. A lamp had exploded and set fire to a partition. Very little damage was done.

The Better Cough Cure.
No medicine for coughs, colds, sore throat or hoarseness could be more harmless or effective than the Diamond Cough Remedy. Then it is pleasant to take, the dose is small and the price is reasonable. 25c., at Wade's Drug Store.

Cadets Entertained.
Prof. and Mrs. J. Lanos entertained at supper last night a party of cadets including hockey team, spare men, coach and B.S.M. Carson. In spite of their defeat the gentlemen in scarlet and white enjoyed to the full the hospitality of their popular professor and his wife.

County Road Improvement.
The county council will, this year, have the road improvement question before it. The Perth toll road, recently purchased, is to receive the most attention. It would be amiss to put some repairs on the old York Road, which is in the worst condition it has been for years. The completion of the Loughboro Lake bridge will, no doubt, be celebrated by the council this year.

Any Ache To-Day?
When any ache or pain comes you should have the habit of reaching for the bottle of Smith's White Liniment. There is nothing else that cures aches so soon or thoroughly. It makes it easy to cure in the start many painful affections that would become serious if neglected. Smith's White Liniment is one of the things no family can afford to be without. Large bottles, 25c., at Wade's drug store.

Very Few Contagious Cases.
Medical Health Officer Bell says that there have been very few new contagious disease cases in the past month. Only half a dozen new cases of scarlet fever have been reported to him, and only two cases of diphtheria. There is no typhoid at present known. There have been a few cases of low fever, but these have recovered after ten days or so.

What About The City Hall?
Probably the city engineer will have something to say as to whether the City Hall has enough exits in case of fire, upstairs or down. It is held by many that the local theatres are three times as safe in case of fire as is the City Hall which has practically but one exit. There is another fear of the stage, but the stairs are so narrow and of such a winding nature that the place would be blocked in an instant. The new by-law covers all public places.

Why Disease Comes.
A good share of chronic diseases are due to lack of nutrition of the vital organs. These organs get their nutriment from the blood. The blood must be pure and rich in iron to keep the system in order. Those who are in any sense run down need better blood. They can get it by use of Wade's Iron Tonic Pills (Laxative). They are a great nerve strengthener and blood maker. In boxes, 25c., at Wade's drug store. Money back if not satisfactory.

Science Dance to Be on St. Valentine's Day—Will Be Absolutely Unique—Classes in Economics Begun.

The Engineering Society has appointed the following coprovers of committees to arrange for the annual science dance: Invitation, R. O. Sweeney; programme, A. M. Squire; refreshment, J. J. Jeffrey; finance, C. R. McCall; decoration, E. L. Bruce; reception, M. Y. Williams. The date of the dance has been changed from February 21st to February 14th, in order to accommodate Henry's orchestra, of Odessa, which will furnish the music. Rumor whispers that in several respects the function will be absolutely unique—will differ vastly from any at home yet held in Grant hall.

Registrar Chown announces that a prize of $20 will be awarded the theological student who submits the best essay on "Relations of the Pastor to The Young People of His Congregation."

Classes in economics for the practical science students have begun. Prof. Shortt and Assistant Prof. Skelton have arranged a series of lectures which will be of special value to the student of practical science.

"John Burrows and The Modern School of Nature Study" was ably discussed by J. W. Gibson, '08, at the regular meeting of the Naturalists' Club, this week.

W. E. Busdie, manager of the National Trust company, Toronto branch, and one of Toronto's most widely and favorably known men of affairs, will address the Political Science Club at three o'clock, tomorrow afternoon, on the subject, "Public Responsibilities of Business Men." The meeting, to which the public are cordially invited, will be held in one of the large class rooms of the new arts building.

Prof. Macnaughton's Bible class will not meet on Sunday morning.

Queen's Chess Club has risen nobly to the occasion in its attempt to conquer procrastination. All tournament games of the first round which are not played before February 1st, will be cancelled.

Notice has been given that the financial report of "The Journal" for the session '06-07, will be presented at the A.M.S. meeting on Saturday evening.

The hockey players and enthusiasts are sitting in sackcloth and ashes this week as a result of a defeat, a blow which has practically put out of commission the ice at the rink. They realize that the game with Toronto University here on Friday evening will be a hard-fought battle and the occurrence of the hay at this particular time is most inopportune, as it is surprising to what extent the loss of even two or three daily practices tells on the player.

The Journal's editor for athletics has allied himself with the large number of individual students who favor the employment of a professional football coach for next season. The student who is opposed to the professional coach scheme is undoubtedly in the minority and if "public opinion" constitutes the governing power in such a case, as indeed, it does in all matters upon which the community has a democracy like Queen's, it is altogether probable that a professional coach will appear on the gridiron with the footballists at their first practice next fall.

The freshman year in arts has challenged any team, excepting the regular college teams, to a hockey match. No acceptances have yet been received.

The athletic committee wishes to avoid any unwarranted action with reference to the proposed new system of distributing Q's is evidenced by the fact that a meeting of all the players and officers of the college athletic organizations has been called for this afternoon to discuss the question thoroughly.

It is the general opinion of the students that Queen's debaters would have won out if, according to the Irish mode of expression, "their twenty minutes had lasted longer." It is a noteworthy fact that neither of Queen's speakers reached the end of their time. The fine adjustment of the Ottawa speakers' addresses with reference to time elicited much admiration.
