COMMISSION VS. COMMITTEE The Whig has been asked for its idea of the advantage of a commission in managing a public utility. It lies the continuity of its policy. The three members. They are elected usually by the people, and begin with different periods of service. One holds office for a year, one for two years. and one for three years. The plan is to have a majority of the board al ways in place, and so carrying ou of changes and improvements. The civic committee would be nearly. not quite, as good if the power and sible, kept intact. These committees sign of municipal weakness-the work puts it out of the desire of some members of the council to do their very best, and to make personal sac rifices in the public interests.

SCORING A SUCCESS.

The W. C. T. U. has reason to satisfied with the appeal which was made to the militia department with respect to the sale of liquors in mili tary camps. It seems that the West Algoma district convention passed some pretty stiff resolutions and sent a copy of them to the government.

The acting deputy minister of militia asked for particulars, and intimated that when enquiry was made into complaints it had "always resulted in it being shown that the regulations had been carried out."

The women must have responded quite promptly to the challenge for particulars, since a couple of months later the adjutant-general acknowl- lic works of the state of New York, that the regulations of the depart- | 000-bushel vessel, which is what

LOOKING FOR TROUBLE.

The Ontario railway commission cents trouble in the announcement that the Dominion railway commision act will be amended so as to make trespasses of electric roads upon the public highways impossible without the municipality's consent.

Mr. Leitch, the chairman of the local board, sees the possibility ollision between the federal and provincial powers through the operations of various railways. He calls to mind that several electric roads, incorporated under provincial laws, have passed under the jurisdiction of the minion, because they have been clared by federal legislation to be for "The advantage of Canada." Incidentally and during the last session of parliament, another question cropped out, namely the position of the road whose original charter was cancelled or repealed by the local government. That was the threat of elections. In answering it he veiled in the correspondence, of Mr.
