NEW ALASKA DISH.

Moose Nose, is Fine, Nutritious Food

The nose of a big Alaska bull moose weighs eight pounds, and when boiled twenty-four hours into gelatine makes the choicest and most nutritious article of diet to be had in all Alaska.

"Alaska moose," said Brown, yesterday, "is the best game food to be had in Alaska, and those who subsist for a large part of the time on the game of the country are careful when they kill a big moose or any other kind of big game to have means at hand to take care of the carcass and save it."

"I remember not many months ago in the White River country when our food ran short and we killed a big bull moose and made away in the next few days with the most of his good points. We were travelling over a rolling, partly open country in the direction of the Tanana Valley, and every particle of fresh meat counted.

When the carcass was all butchered up and packed away I boiled the fat, bristly, fat nose of this moose about twenty-four hours, after spending five hours scratching the hair off the hide and picking it out by the roots.

"Well, sir, I boiled that moose's nose until it made the finest sort of gelatine you ever saw, absolutely clear and a delicious sweet and nutty flavor. It made a meal for the whole outfit for every day for three days, and in my judgment the dish contains more lasting and nourishing qualities than anything that we had."

Founding of Red Cross

Henry Dunant, a Geneva philanthropist, who witnessed the battle of Solferino, fought in 1859 between the allied French and Sardinians and the Austrians (one of the most sanguinary conflicts of modern times), deemed that the wounded, and not the soldiers who met instant death, were the real sufferers. The military hospitals, overburdened, proved inadequate. Most of the wounded were left in agony. Thousands who might have been saved by timely help died of want. He devoted much thought to the problem, until, finally, he was able to suggest a plan of action; this plan he set forth in a pamphlet called "A Souvenir of Solferino."

Dunant advocated an international society composed of volunteer nurses who should hold themselves in readiness to follow wherever and to aid the wounded of any nation; to be protected by all nations as neutrals and non-combatants engaged in works of mercy. The conference that organized the society was held in Geneva in October, 1864, and by the end of the following year thirteen governments had officially approved the society's purpose.

CZAR AGAINST JEWS

ACCUSED OF COUNTENANCING MASSACRES

Pardons the Offenders—Pogrom Organizers Scoff at Judges, Claiming that the Emperor is Their Protector.

Berlin, Feb. 14.—Startling allegations of the czar's complicity in the pogroms, which in the last two or three years have led to the massacring of hundreds of Jews in various parts of Russia, have reached the German-Jewish Relief League from sources believed to be trustworthy.

It is stated that at an audience granted recently to Count Knorovitzky, leader of the Odessa branch of the "Genuine Russians Union," the czar said: "It is true that the courts, in accordance with the strict letter of the law, have had to convict certain leaders of anti-Jewish mobs, but I give you my imperial word that none of the sentences against these heroes shall be carried out."

The czar's policy has accorded perfectly with this speech. He has issued pardons for the "wholesale" within a short time, to most of the leading anti-Semitic outbursts.

Men recently on trial for organizing pogroms in Orscha shouted to the judges: "Sentence us to anything you please; the czar is our protector."

POULTRY ASSOCIATION.

No Thanks to the Council—A Small Balance.

Last night there was a large gathering of the members of the Kingston Poultry, Pigeon and Pet Stock Association, at their rooms, on the corner of Montreal and Princess streets, the principal business being to hear the report of Secretary Lyman in connection with the recent show.

The secretary's report showed that the association was able to pay all prize money in full, pay all the outstanding bills, as well as paying for the purchase of much new material for larger show purposes and then leave a neat balance in the treasurer's hands to carry on the work of the current year.

The refusal of the council to help along this most worthy movement simply nerved the members to greater energy in selling tickets, and it had an influence on the citizens who felt the turn-down was shabby treatment on the part of the mayor and those who supported him in refusing the small amount of $25 to the door receipts were beyond what the most sanguine anticipated.

A vote of thanks to all the business men who so freely gave special prizes was unanimously passed, and all who worked so hard to make the show a success came in for their just amount of praise. All the work of building coops was done by the members themselves after their hard day's work elsewhere. The birds were a credit to the owners, and when it is recalled that most of them were owned and bred by local workmen, it makes the credit the more richly deserved. The association is encouraged to go on to greater things in the future. One brief year ago this association was a struggling concern, with scarcely a dozen members, and not a dollar in its treasury. Today it has a large membership, good assets in the form of property essential to public exhibits, and money in its treasury after conducting practically three shows in one year, and this time paying out the prizes, over $300, besides the specials, valued at another $100. All this is due to the enthusiasm of the men who are in this local organization, and who love the birds they breed beyond their intrinsic value. The association is grateful to the press for its aid in giving publicity to all its proceedings.

HAS A CONFESSION

That George Pigeon Was the Thief. Montreal, Feb. 14.—The peace and crown office, at the court house, was crowded at 11,700 in December, and A. Hobeika, a Syrian interpreter, accused. He appeared before the king's bench on a charge of being the thief.

A. St. Julien, his lawyer, announces that he has received a confession from a convict, St. Vincent de Paul, that he committed the robbery. This man is George Pigeon, who was recently sentenced to seven years' imprisonment on various charges of robbery and forgery. Pigeon had only completed a five years' sentence a short time before, and soon resorted to his old tricks. Mr. St. Julien is going to investigate the confession.

Fifty Years in Service.

Windsor, Ont., Feb. 14.—Magistrate Alexander Bartlett, last night, completed his fiftieth year of public service in this city, having been appointed clerk on February 13th, 1858. He has served as police magistrate since 1875, and has also rounded out a half a century as an elder of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church being the only surviving member of the twenty-nine charter members of the church. Mr. Bartlett was born in Aberdeenshire, Scotland, and is in his eighty-seventh year.

Record Railway Building.

Winnipeg, Feb. 14.—It is announced that the Grand Trunk Pacific line will almost certainly be completed into Edmonton during the coming summer. The company is making every preparation to rush construction, and an effort will be made to surpass the world's record of railway building established by the company last season.

New Role For Rainald.

London, Feb. 14.—It is announced that there is a prospect of Rainald, the Moroccan bandit, who held Kaid McLennan, a prisoner for seven months, appearing on the variety stage in London.

Uniform Weight.

In the Ontario legislature, Mr. Penn (Kingston) introduced a bill to amend the municipal act. This bill proposes to make bread loaves of uniform weight, two and four pounds.

ALL TO BE DEPORTED

ARRESTED IN DETROIT BY INSPECTORS.

A Woman Secured Her Children in Chatham, Drove Through the Cold Weather and Finally Got Into Detroit.

Chatham, Ont., Feb. 14.—A despatch from Detroit, Mich., says Mrs. Bessie Rumbell, who kidnapped her two children, Hazel, aged seven, and Winifred, aged five, from the Children's Aid society, in Chatham, on Friday last, and drove from Chatham to Robert's Landing, nearly twenty miles, in an open wagon, with the thermometer hovering around the zero mark, and the drive across the St. Clair river to the Michigan side, was arrested, last night, and locked up at the Central Station by immigration inspectors. With Mrs. Rumbell were found her husband, Albert, who arrived in Detroit, last night, and Miss Lizzie Skidde, aged twenty-one, who landed in Detroit about three months ago. The inspectors say all will be deported.

An Underhand Scheme.

A section of the board of works are credited with having evolved a very clever scheme, but one not creditable to them. It is seen the limelight, there to be some cracking of knuckles. Some underhand work is reported, and also some very unfair tactics. Those who are at the bottom of the matter may be too ashamed to put themselves on record.

HOW DRUGS ARE TESTED.

Ergotine Tried on Chickens: Digitalis on Frogs.

A lot of sorry-looking chickens, dogs and cats looked in the black, ill-smelling yard of the great chemical plant.

"We use these animals to test our drugs on," said the chemist. "They come in very handy. They more than earn their board."

"Ergotine is a drug we test on chickens. It is a simple test. If a dose of ergotine fails to turn a chicken's comb black we know that the drug is, for some reason or other, worthless."

"Hashish we test on dogs. Hashish is made of female hemp buds and has no medicinal value, yet some dishonest dealers put male buds on the market, and since they resemble the female buds precisely it is impossible to detect them save by an actual test. Dogs, given hashish, get drunk and happy if the stuff is good."

"Digitalis, the heart stimulant, is tested on frogs. We inject a drop of it into a frog's stomach and in the kymograph or heart recording machine, we study the changes that take place in the frog's heart action. Thus we get a very accurate knowledge of what our digitalis can do."

"Do we ever test drugs on ourselves? Oh, yes, indeed, often. Chemists have lost their lives, chemists have gone incurably insane through too rash a bravery in testing drugs on their own persons."

Learned A Better Lesson. Among the many professors connected with the Chemical Institute, which celebrated its thirtieth anniversary recently by a banquet, there are some who are gifted with a sense of humor much appreciated by their pupils.

"Gentlemen," said one old professor on a certain occasion to his class, "you do not use your faculties of observation. Here he pushed forward a gallipot containing a chemical compound of exceedingly offensive smell."

"When I was a student," he continued, "I used my sense of taste." At the same time he dipped his fingers into the gallipot and put his finger in his mouth. "To do it, gentlemen, taste it," said the professor, "and exercise your perceptive powers."

The gallipot was pushed toward the reluctant class one by one. The students resolutely dipped a finger into the concoction and with many a "ry face" sucked the abomination from their fingers.

"Gentlemen, gentlemen!" exclaimed the professor, when all the class had gone through the ordeal. "I repeat that you do not use your faculties of observation. For, had you looked more closely at what I was doing, you would have seen that the finger which I put into my mouth was not the finger that I dipped into the gallipot."

Up Against It. At an inquest at Ipswich on John Baker, aged sixty-six, a carpenter, it was stated that he had been in receipt of 2s. 6d. (sixty cents) per week from the guardians, and had paid all but (twopence) (four cents) of this for rent. He had nothing else to live upon, except assistance from a married sister, whose husband is out of work. He had steadfastly refused to enter the workhouse.
