HIS TRIPS TO HEAVEN.

Man Who Talked With the Dead Goes Insane.

New York, Feb. 17.—Edward Shea, of Montclair, N.J., who startled the scientific world a few months ago by telling of talks he had with dead persons while he was in protracted trances, is insane as a result of his remarkable experience and has been sent to the Overbrook asylum. Shea's case was taken up by physicians and psychologists, who expressed themselves as amazed at the peculiar features of his affliction.

Shea is twenty-nine years old, and until the beginning of his experiences had been in good health. On November 26th he failed to awake in the morning, and for two days remained in a trance. On returning to partial consciousness for a few hours he said he had been to heaven and had talked with his mother, who had been dead for a year.

COUSINS AND MARRIAGE.

Result of Scientific Investigation in Great Britain.

London, Feb. 17.—Commenting on the scientific investigations of Miss Elderton and Prof. Pearson on the intensity of resemblance between first cousins in respect to health, intelligence, etc., the British Medical Journal says the following conclusions appear to be justified: "A grandparent, uncle, aunt and cousin appear to be practically on the same footing in regard to relationship or intensity of kinship as measured by degrees of likeness and character. It seems probable, therefore, that any scientific marriage enactments would equally allow or equally forbid the marriage of a grandparent to a grandchild, an uncle to a niece, an aunt to a nephew, as between first cousins."

Sunday Papers Not Included in Scale.

Montreal, Feb. 17.—All the New York Sunday papers, of which there is a considerable batch comes to this city, were held up, to-day, by the post office authorities on the ground that they had not paid sufficient postage. SENT UP FOR TRIAL ting out of the shanty, and went to the police station. She was followed by two men, who tried to coax her back. One of these men was called "Fred," and was not one of the prisoners.

To Mr. Mowat, who appeared for Devine, witness said that she was seventeen years of age, and had been living in Kingston since Christmas. Her home was in Elgin, and she had worked out since she was eleven years of age. This was her first visit to Kingston. She came here, and was employed as a maid with a family. She only remained at this house for two weeks, as she could not do the work, and a man told her employer that she was not fit for the work. Witness said that she dismissed herself from his position. When she left this position, she secured a position at the Iroquois hotel. She stayed there one week, and then went to stay at Louis Langbort's, Ontario street, and worked at the cotton mill. She stayed at Langbort's for two weeks, and then secured employment as cook at Beef Steak Jack's restaurant, on Ontario street. After leaving this place, she worked a few days at different places, and then secured a room on Queen street. She stayed there up to Friday last, when she slept on the steamer Pierrepont. No person was on the boat, the door was open, and she stayed there alone, until about daylight.

Witness said that on Saturday night she met Crozier at the post office. He gave her fifty cents to buy supper and she bought two suppers with this money. She was very hungry. After this she was met by Crozier and it was then that they walked out to the shanty.

Witness admitted being on the steamer Pierrepont, with Crozier, early on Saturday evening. She went there with him to keep out of the cold. It was on the boat that Crozier gave her the money. She told Crozier that they could go to the Pierrepont if they wanted to. Witness said nothing of an improper nature occurred on the boat.

Witness told Mr. Mowat that two men were in the shanty when she got there. She did not know who the men were inside, but Brickwood and a fellow named "Fred" were standing outside the shanty.

Witness said that when she was offered liquor in the shanty she was afraid that it was drugged. She had been drugged on one occasion.

Witness further stated that the men kicked and slapped her. Brickwood, Devine and Mosier were the men inside. Crozier was drunk, and stood outside the door. In the struggle witness had with the men her lip was cut. The man named "Fred" said, "For God's sake, let her go; she is bleeding." It was then she was allowed to go. Brickwood, she said, "tagged" after her, and offered her a ring.

After the evidence was concluded no defence was offered, and the magistrate announced that he would commit all the prisoners for trial, the evidence already being taken for the other cases.

Devine was arrested by Constable Mullinger and Hughes, Crozier by Constables Bateson and Mullinger, Brickwood by Constables Bateson and Hughes, and Mosier by Constables Mullinger and Arniel.

Made Kindly Reference.

In St. George's cathedral, on Sunday morning, Dean Farthing referred to the death of Rev. Dr. Wilson. He spoke of how deeply they all felt at his death, that he was a man who left a lasting influence on St. George's. Dean Farthing stated that no matter how much one could disagree with his latter convictions, they could not deny the simple earnestness of his life and the sincerity of his work. He had been connected with the cathedral for eighteen years, and no man had ever left a deeper impress on the spiritual life of the city.

ASKED TO VISIT KING.

A Republican Called at Palace—Heartily Received.

Lisbon, Feb. 17.—King Manuel signed a decree dissolving the commissions appointed by Senor Franco while he was acting as dictator to replace municipal administrations. The newspapers print stories of his majesty's liberal tendencies. For example, Prof. Pedroso, president of the Academy of Sciences, who is a prominent republican, made an official visit of condolence to the palace. King Manuel, after thanking him, asked him to come oftener. Prof. Pedroso remaining silent, the king said: "I know you are a republican, and, therefore, do not want to come, but you are a friend of the country and so am I. Let us meet with that common bond and we will soon understand one another." It is stated that the weapon with which Buica shot King Carlos was presented to the assassin by the king at a shooting competition at which Buica won the first prize and at which King Carlos presided. The republican newspapers print daily appeals to the public to place flowers on the graves of the regicides. Many already have complied. Thousands of post cards bearing portraits of the murderer are being sold in Lisbon and the provinces.

REV. C. W. CASSON.

You Have The Power.

You have been taught that you are unable to do anything of yourself, and that you should be content to be a "broken vessel" at the feet of a savior. And so you grew into the belief in religion—a sort of parasitic growth on the divine providence. Believe it no longer. You are not a dependent in religion, relying for saving strength upon some exterior power. You have the power within yourself! Yours is the splendid heritage of the child of God. It is a heritage of power. You can resist every temptation and attain unto all good. All needful strength is yours—use it!

Address, Rev. C. W. Casson, at 25 Beacon street, Boston, Mass., for free literature.
