KINGSTON GETTING

M. Campbell Says There is None at Present-The City Council Will Discuss the Matter-It's a Most Important Question.

CHEAPER POWER?

"Unfortunately, the distance of any available water power is so great and the fixed charges on long transmission mes are so heavy that at present do not see how Kingston can obtain any very cheap power.'

This conclusion of John M. Campbell, Kingston's light plant expert advisor, will receive the consideration of the city council at its meeting on March 3rd. According to Mr. Camp bell, the outlook at present for cheap power for Kingston is anything but promising. The Hydro-Electric com mission's rates he does not regard as reliable. On this matter he says:

"After voluminous correspondence with the Hydro-Electric commission, it is impossible to obtain from it any figures which will enable me to arrive at the cost of power. The commission apparently has not perfected its plans for supplying power in this district and its present scheme I would consider altogether unworkable and

The last figures which the commis sion supplied for Kingston depended upon what power Belleville and Deser onto would take. The lowest of these figures was $24.81 a horse-power for twenty-four hours. Since that time, Napance has been making enquiries, and if that town should decide to join in taking power, the price would be lower for Belleville, Descronto and Kingston.

What the city council desires to find out is the lowest cost at which power can be furnished for manufacturing purposes from the city's present steam plant, so that the city may have a small profit. Ald. Nickle will press for a report upon that question. The council can well afford to spend several evenings discussing the light and power question.
