Tips For The Farmers

BY UNCLE JOSH.

Country Life.

How best, remote from business strife, in his quiet life, as he did our sire—the happy dweller in the woods with his axe and saw. Entirely free from all the din of this eternal age of tin? No fire alarm disturbs his sleep. He has no venture on the deep. The midnight storm without may roar, and burst his windows on the shore. They cannot even drown his score! The air he breathes is from the land. He lives unknown to pride or restraint. He wisely shuns the courts of law. He would not be a tiger's prey. He has no money to invest. So never has a hollow chest. He never gets into debt. Nor hedges if shares and stocks decline. With limbs insured to honest toil, He cultivates his soil. And many a busy hour devotes To barney, turpentine and glue. And such his loved fields sprinkled o'er And blushing rich with scented clover.

The executive committee of the Eastern Dairyman's association met at the government buildings on Wednesday of last week when the plan adopted last year of dividing the province into groups of forty or fifty factories for the series of meetings for the benefit of cheese and butter makers will be arranged for shortly. The instructors have attended some 400 annual cheese and butter company meetings so far this year, and it has been found that this is perhaps a better way of reaching the farmers than by means of the institutes, which are not being well attended.

Young Men And The Farm.

When you get out where a man has a little elbow room and a chance to develop, he has thoughts in his own mind that are not supplied to him every night and every morning, and he is less of a machine and more of a man, so that I do not think that the farmers need to be looked upon, or want to be looked upon, as dependent on the state. They are self-reliant, they are intelligent. What we want in connection with agriculture is what we want in connection with every other field of noble effort. We want training, we want intelligence, we want scientific method, we want direction, we want the way shown, and then the man can walk in it. There is no reason why the same care and intention and skill and scientific consideration should not be devoted to agriculture as to industry and the technical trades. The men who are running away from the farms too frequently make a mistake, and some day in New York—and the day is rapidly approaching—our young men, in large numbers, will wake up to the fact that they are a pretty good chance on the farm, and that they may be to a greater degree independent and happy in life if they stay where their happy lots were cast in connection with their fathers' farm, or another which they may be able to procure.—Governor Hughes, of New York.

Farming A Profession.

A distinguished scholar and farmer is quoted as having said his eloquent and, on the whole, just tribute to the farmer, "Farming is a profession requiring more education than any other uprightness than theology, more brains and resourcefulness than pedagogy. It is its own reward. God made farmers. The other professions are parasites. This is rather hard on other professions, but, still, none too much honor can be paid the conqueror of the soil. More intensive farming is needed in this country, and the young man who learns to farm scientifically will reap a richer harvest.

Get Ready For Spring.

Now is the time to get ready for spring. Implements which were hastily laid away in the rush of late fall work, when every day was worth something when the harvesting of the crop for the day when the threshing machine was running in the neighborhood, and the root crop was waiting for good weather, with the work of housing the cattle and getting as much fall-ploughing as possible sandwiched in between that. Look them over. See if the harrows require the attention of a barrow dentist. He will not be so busy fixing the other fellow's harrows and implements now as he will in April. If the plough was laid away without careful cleaning it may have rusted some, but nothing like it will in late March and early April, if not attended to now. Clean it off, give a light brush-over with linseed oil. The same is true of shovels, spades, and hoes. While mending, cleaning and oiling the heavy harness, study out your plan of operations for the spring when it opens up. Do you need anything in the line of new implements? Now is a good time to study them up some and decide upon what you want. Are you building some new fence? Now is the time when you can get exactly the kind you think is best. In the spring this may be possible only at the expense of considerable delay. Regarding the root crop, what are the varieties which you think are the most profitable to raise? There is sure to be a scarcity of the most popular seed later on; just make sure in time that you have got what you want. As the granary is getting empty now, get the fancy mill-going and clean up exactly the seed grain you require for your fields; have it clean and have it ready for the time when you want it.

If you need some addition to your stock of birds, more cows, a sire for cattle or swine, look it up now. It will cost less than later. One successful hogman has gotten away from the idea that hogs like filth and must have it to prosper. He sweeps out his pens every day. Breeding is not an exact science; however it is a painstaking study and observation rather than guess work which produces improved strains of animals. Potatoes as a stock food seem to be good, when fed with ground feed and corn. The small potatoes which are not marketable can be disposed of in this way at a profit. Plan the beginning of a system of crop rotation next season. Keep a record of the results and see whether or not you give better crops and leave the land in more productive condition.

Hard labor is a good cure for the tramp. The law should be so framed as to land him with the greatest expedition possible into the ranks of those whose daily bread is earned by the sweat of the brow.

Let the sunshine—into your soul and into the cow stable as well. The first, the sunshine of God's love will sweeten life, and the other, the sunshine of God's sun, will sweeten the table and contribute to the health and contentment of the animals. Full feed and light work has raised many a good horse. Get your breeding pens ready for the spring eggs for hatching. Cream kept too long may become bitter and full of white flakes. Oats are good for laying hens. Do not be afraid they will eat too many of them.

Let Everybody Speak.

Toronto Telegram. The outcry in parliament over the fate of a cadet at the Royal Military College, Kingston, may have been justified. Still the country wonders whether the Ottawa opposition would have been just as enthusiastic in resenting wrongs done to a cadet who was not related to one of its members. The spirit that inspires Prof. MacNaughton, of Queen's, to face heavy odds in defence of a principle he believes to have been outraged is a spirit which is none too common in this country.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

The Two Plays That Are Coming Next Week. A comedy of sentiment is the novel description of "The New Mrs. Loring" the play by Jessie Trimble, in which Miss Crozman, the Crossman will appear at the Grand on Monday, March 9th. The play has for its motive the love of a mother for her child and the sacrifices she is often called upon to make for those under her sheltering care. It is said to have been written in a somewhat startling, yet direct and simple manner, by the playwright and to have won compelling charm in its interpretation by Miss Crozman. The motive is certainly one of appealing force to the hearts of women of all classes. Miss Crozman, in the role of "Marion," the devoted mother, is given opportunity for the display of those admirable artistic gifts with which she is generously endowed. She carries her audience with laughter and tears through comedy and pathos, avoiding even one dull moment in the three acts of her entertainment. The play is in three acts with localities in New York and England. The story is modern in its interpretation, Miss Crozman is ably assisted by a company of carefully selected players.

Charley Grapevin.

Brings the patrons of the Grand Opera House "The Awakening of Mr. Pipp" on Wednesday, March 11th. For the past three years Mr. Grapevin has been evolving an endless amount of good clever wholesome mirth with this play, the major portion of which can be attributed to the excellent work of the imitatable player, for no one who has ever seen him will gainsay the statement that his treatment of the vivacious, hilarious "Pipp" is a study in stage work worthy of an artist. There is but one "Pipp" and truly but one Charley Grapevin to play him. Incidental to the play are a number of musical interludes for one cannot but give them as much in a story the continuity of which seems to be broken into even if it does give us such a telling song as Charley Grapevin's "The Old Oaken Bucket For Mine," but the working out of the story of "Mr. Pipp" necessitates the glad atmosphere with its songs and choruses.

MANY CASES HERE

RHEUMATISM CASES REPORTED ARE ALARMING.

Some Good Advice, Also a Simple Home Treatment As Given By Druggist Who Knows of Benefits From It.

Thousands of men and women who have felt the sting and torture of this dread disease, which is no respecter of age, persons, sex, color or rank, will be interested to know that while for many years rheumatism was considered an incurable disease, now it is one of the easiest afflictions of the human body to conquer. Medical science has proven it not a distinct disease but a symptom. Rheumatism is in fact a blood and other waste products of the system which should be filtered and strained out in the form of urine. The function of the kidneys is to sift these poisons and acids out and keep the blood clean and pure. The kidneys, however, are not of such size as the holes or pores of which will sometimes, either from overwork, cold or exposure become clogged and inactive, and failing in their function of eliminating these poisons from the blood, they remain in the joints, decompose and settling about the joints and muscles, cause the untold suffering and pain of rheumatism and backache, often producing complications of bladder and urinary disease, weakness, etc. The following simple prescription is said to relieve the worst cases of rheumatism because of its direct action upon the blood and kidneys, relieving, too, the most severe forms of Extract and urinary troubles: Fluid Compound Karyon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Mix by shaking well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime. The ingredients can be had from any good prescription pharmacy, and are absolutely harmless and safe to use at any time.

A Ball Dress Of Stamps.

London Mail. At a ball in Bermuda a wonderful dress was worn, and in the making of more than 30,000 stamps were used. Years were spent in collecting the stamps, and three weeks in the making of the dress, which was of the finest muslin. The woman called upon her friends to help her, and the dress was covered with stamps of all nations. They were not put on any-where, but in elaborate design. On the front of the bodice was an eagle made entirely of brown Columbian stamps. Suspended from the bird's talons was a globe made of very old blue revenue stamps. On each side of the globe was an American flag. On the back of the bodice was a collection of foreign stamps in the form of a portrait cut from old revenue stamps. A picture hat covered with red and blue stamps was worn with the dress.

There is more national value in the excesses of the press than in the indifference to wrong or fear to speak.

If Canadian clubs do not offer a forum in which speakers can uphold principles or expose wrongs, then Canadian clubs should disband and cease to cumber the ground.

SHE PATIENTLY BORE DISGRACE

A Sad letter from a lady whose Husband was Dissipated.

Now She Cured Him with a Secret Remedy.

"I had for years patiently borne the disgrace, suffering and privations due to my husband's drinking habits. Hearing of your marvellous remedy for the cure of drunkenness, which I could give my husband secretly, I decided to try it. I procured a package and mixed it in his food and coffee, and as the remedy was odorless and tasteless, he did not know what it was that so quickly relieved his craving for liquor. He soon began to pick up, his appetite for solid food returned, he stuck to his work regularly, and we are now a happy home. After he was completely cured I told him what I had done, when he acknowledged that it had been his saving, as he had not the resolution to break off his own secret. I hereby advise all women afflicted as I was to give your remedy a trial."

INCREASED COST

Of Living During the Past Thirty-Five Years.

A man who is living in the house occupied by his father thirty-five years ago, who has the same size family, and who is living about, he thinks, as his father lived then, discovered an old account-book kept by his father, covering household expenses. Comparing month by month, the son has found that, summing corresponding items, his expenses to-day are twice those recorded by his father.

Well, what is to be done? Investigation results in a merry-go-round like that depicted so often by newspaper cartoonists; every one pointing with his thumb to his neighbor and saying, "Him." The consumer blames the butcher for charging so much for steak, the butcher blames the wholesaler for advancing the price of beef, the wholesaler blames the commission house or packers, the commission house alleges shortage of shipments, the shipper alleges shortage of cars, the railroad alleges cowboys are scattering trains with full-dress suits, the cowboys claim that they are forced to wear them; and back it goes; cattleman assert that the railroads will not accept cattle unless accompanied by cowboys in full-dress suits, railroads assert government compels this, government asserts commission-men demanded it, commission-men assert that the measure was put through by the wholesalers, wholesalers assert that the butchers themselves did the lobbying, and the butchers promptly unload the responsibility upon the people.

Thread advanced—presumably because the lumber for spools is advanced; lumber for spools has advanced because cuts are high (the logging teams require grain three times a day, and that mounts up), cuts are high because of wet spring, and as the wet spring was sent presumably by Providence, certainly My Lady must not protest when her gown costs more by fifty per cent.

It is put forward by some social economists that dear money, as the economist expresses it, is a sign of prosperity. But is it? Is it, when the prosperity of the many is being milked to swell by greater ratio the prosperity of the few? Is the average man, to-day, getting his money's worth? Is he, occasionally we would not breathe the confession outside of our own booming country—occasionally into the minds of some of us creeps the suspicion that the average man—who occupies the bottom of the heap—is not.

—John Stope, in March Lippincott's.
