Dean Farthing continued his series of Sunday evening students' services at St. George's cathedral, taking as his text I John iv, 10. The dean proceeded thoughtfully and logically to show why men did not love God, namely, because of sin. Sin he said, was finite existing in the will of the creature whether in angels, men, or the lower order of being. The larger part of the large congregation remained for the evangelistic address after the sermon.

Dr. Wilso was engaged in his work almost t the last moment, and it was with saddened hearts that the audience listened to the particulars of his passing away. They have already appeared in the Whig. Miss Wilson intimated that this might be her farewell visit to Kingkton. She might, perhaps, go to England, and not return. After the death of her father something had prompted her to return once more to her old home and scenes of her girlhood. It was also her great wish to give to his many friends in Kingston the details of her father's life and death and to tell how much he loved the Salvation Army. He had loved the Army better than anything else in the world The speaker, in continuing, referred to this passage of scripture, sumbers chap. xxiii,-10th verse : "Who can count the dust of Jacob, and the number of the fourth part of Israel.
