Riga, March 14.-The progress and resurts of the revolution in Russia generally, and throughout the Baltic provinces in particular, where it has been spending its utmost fury, are almost unknown in America.

One frequently hears in Western Europe hard things said of the Rus sian government in its dealings with the revolutionists. > Dreadful Fatality? The Paris municipal council has made the alarming discovery that nundreds of houses in the working class districts are smitten with con sumption. They are literally dwellings of death, since anybody inhabiting one of them is practically certain to catch the complaint.

That buildings can become saturated with disease germs, has long been known to medical men. "Cancer houses," for instance, were discovered by Semmes Smith in the Lincolnshire Fens, and elsewhere, which were literally eaten up with this most terrible of maladies. Another, instanced by D'Arcy Power, claimed as victims three tenants, who inhabited it one after the other. It was then set light to by the landlord, and burnt. Plague, too, has been proved to infect dwellings after a like fashion. In one case mentioned in a recent report of the Indian commissioners, a tene ment house in Bombay was so badly diseased that it meant death to anyone rash enough to enter it.
