BEFORE COMMITTEE OF THE LEGISLATURE.

Bill For Two and Four Pound Loaves-The Government Will Put Through Another Bill. Kingston was very much in the imelight in the municipal committee of the legislature at Toronto on Wednesday. The bread bill of its council was so brief as to be a miniature, but it has brought forth a trail of communications, arguments, conferences of bakers and labor unions, and also three other bids. It lay dormant on the order paper for weeks, because it alarmed "the trade," and the powers that be held it back that the other 'Coming Thro' The Rye': "There is fellows might get alongside and make one race of it instead of a best one out of three. The member for Kingston opened the consideration, explaining the great general interest in the subject, the desire of the Kingston council to regain the power of local by-laws over manufacture and inspection taken away in 1901, and the demand for a standard loaf, instead of a fluctuating weight, changeable at will and withlout notice. The bakers filled the committee room and were heard in support of their own bill, presented by Member Mc-Naught, of Toronto. It fixes a provincial standard of weight, a pound and a half or three pounds, for common bread, but allows lots of latitude for fancy bread, duly labelled as to weight. It also provides for inspection at the bakery only, and for a severe fine for shortness of weight. The journeymen bakers also sent a representative to support the mea sure, which a representative retail merchant did also. Nearly all the speakers in support of the bakers measures were from the trade in out side towns. R. H. Toye was present from Kingston. Toronto and Hamilton councils sent a speaker each in support of Kingston's appeal. Mayor Ross and Ald. Nickle spoke for the Kingston bill, which was the proposal of the former in the city council. They appealed for a settled standard, preferably local, but at least a provincial standard to stop 'juggling' with weights, for the restoration of the old right of inspection in carts or shops, leading to seizure, which had a salutary effect, and was fairer than inspection in the bakery and the fine proposed in the bakers' bill. They condemned the the sense of humor and to the love difficulty of deciding on a two per of genuinely good music.
