SENT UP FOR TRIAL

TYO IN FUN CHALLENGED REILLY TO A DUEL.

They Were to Exchange Shot For Shot—Reilly Fell and His Wound Bleed Freely—The Magistrate's Remarks.

John Tyo was arraigned before the magistrate, this morning, on a charge of shooting Arthur Reilly, and through his counsel, D. M. McIntyre, pleaded "not guilty." William Dixon, represented the crown. William Dixon was the first witness called, and stated that he met the prisoner on Tuesday, March 27th, down near Mr. Cook's residence. In reply to Mr. Whiting, witness stated that Tyo had a twenty-two caliber rifle and he sent young Reilly up to get another gun from a lad named Aylesworth. They went down in the marsh and Reilly's gun would not go off. Tyo then said to Reilly, "I will give you shot for shot." Reilly then ran about fifteen yards and before he was fully turned around he shot at Tyo. Witness said that Tyo then fired point blank at Reilly. Immediately the shot was fired Reilly fell to the ground, and young black ran over to Reilly and he said, "You are shot. Witness said that as soon as he found he was shot, he and a lad named George carried him to the broom factory and then he was removed to the Hotel Dieu. While Tyo was helping Reilly to the broom factory, witness stated that Aylesworth took Tyo's gun to his own house. Cross examination by Mr. McIntyre, brought out no new facts nor did not shake the witness. "I do not think that Tyo meant to shoot him," said the witness, "but cannot tell for sure."

John Geoghegan, a witness, said that he met Tyo about two o'clock on the day in question, near Mallen's coal yard, and they went down to the smelter. Witness told of after Reilly went up to get a gun from Aylesworth, they went down the track and after procuring the gun, Reilly caught up to them. Witness told the same story of the shooting as did the latter. Tyo challenging Reilly, of the latter shooting first, and then stated that when they got up to Reilly the ground was covered with blood, and he was bleeding so freely that the wound could not be distinguished.

Michael Black, another witness of the accident, stated that he went down to the marsh by himself and met the others there. Witness said after they had loaded the guns, Tyo said to Reilly, "Let's have a duel." Reilly said, "All right." Tyo told the same story about the actual shooting as the previous witnesses.

Tyo stated to witness after the affair, that it was a shame he had injured Reilly, as they were only fooling, and had always been good friends. Cross-examination by Mr. McIntyre, duet, and not "shot for shot," as the stated that he had witnessed the case but had not read about it.

Garnet Aylesworth, sworn, told practically the same story of the shooting. That Tyo proposed having immediately after Tyo shot, Reilly fell and was helped to the broom factory. Under cross-examination, witness said that they were all good friends, and that Tyo was sorry he hit Reilly. He did not aim at him," said the witness, "and I don't think he meant to hit him." To Mr. Whiting witness said he did not point the gun in the air, but straight ahead, and straight ahead was right in Reilly's direction.

Albert Fennell told the same story as the previous witness. This was the last witness for the prosecution.

In presenting his case, Mr. Whiting stated that the information was foggy, and that there seems to be no lawful excuse for the occurrence.

Mr. McIntyre made a strong plea for Tyo, that he be dismissed and not committed for trial. He spoke of his youth and past character, saying the boys were only after a pleasure jaunt and that there was no criminal intent in the act.

"There are two courses open to me," said the magistrate, "I can either send him up for trial or dismiss him altogether. It seems to me that I will do Tyo no harm if I send him up for trial and leave it to others to pass their judgment on as to whether there is sufficient evidence to satisfy them in the case. There is a good deal of truth about the youths, but it cannot be too fully brought home to them the dangers of using firearms." The magistrate spoke of the case here a few years ago, when a girl was killed in practically the same manner, and continued his worship, "this is practically a case of the same kind, a boy is lying in the hospital hovering between life and death, by this boy's act. No matter what the result it seems that proceedings of this sort should be surrounded with the utmost solemnity, and be given every consideration, to bring home to those involved the seriousness of their act. I will commit Tyo for trial."

Mowat Is A Wonder. The result of the case against the four young men charged with criminally assaulting Miss Topping, speaks well for the able manner in which John McDonald Mowat handled the case for the prisoners. The general opinion was that the accused had no chance whatever in view of the overwhelming nature of the police court evidence. Mr. Mowat, however, built up a strong defence that appealed to an unbiased jury, and as a result his four clients are to-day at liberty. Ex-Mayor Mowat is now looked up by his friends to the famous lawyer, Charles Steele, the chief character in Sir Gilbert Parker's novel entitled "The Right of Way." The nephew of Sir Oliver has certainly won his spurs as a criminal lawyer.

Of One Opinion. Men may differ in their opinions on certain things but they are agreed that Campbell Bros.' $2 and $2.50 derbies have no equal for style and value.

ZION CLUB ADDRESSED

By Principal W. S. Ellis on "Citizenship."

The boys of Zion Club were very fortunate in their choice of speaker last night. Before a good company of young men, Principal Ellis, of the Collegiate Institute, gave his honest straight-forward talk on "Citizenship." The principal dealt with a subject on the occasion: First, good citizenship is the duty of every individual in a civilized state. In a democracy like Canada men were free, but freedom carries its responsibility with it; freedom means responsibility. His second point was the fact that only from the young men of the country could they look for better conditions. Older people were apt to let things go as they are. He therefore, appealed to the young. He then defined citizenship as the duty of every man in a state to every other man. The man who considers what benefit his life will have in a community as a whole is the true citizen.

The principal dealt with the making of a good citizen. A good citizen must be a man of sound judgment, who will not act rashly on the nod of some industry working, while his strength in collecting information about public questions and thus be ready to vote intelligently on them. The true citizen must be law-abiding, must be courageous, able to say no to political canvasser (whom he abhorred) if he did not hold his views. Then to a good citizen must be ready to render public service. The community has a claim on the men who are most suitable for its public offices. If every man felt this responsibility we would not have to vote for men who were not fit for the positions they are standing for.

The principal then expressed his abhorrence of partisanship in municipal elections. He also regretted that our young men were at the present time receiving their education for citizenship in political club rooms. He made an appeal for an intelligent training of our young men in Zion church hall, now organized in Zion church hall. We must have active organizations to counteract the other organizations of the country which are by no means the best. He believed in allying himself to a political party, but not being tied hand and foot to its programme.

In conclusion the principal made an appeal to the young men to man out a course for themselves by intelligent searching for information on public questions and remembering what is required of a true citizen.

NEWLY FRAMED

Bread Bill is About Ready to Present. The sub-committee of the Municipal Committee of the legislature has had two sessions to get a fair and reasonable measure out of the great variety of strong opinions. There was entire absence of support among members to the move for the Kingston bill for a municipal standard, and it was dropped. The Toronto bill was found to be full of holes, and was set aside for an entirely new framing.

The committee has recommended to the general municipal committee a standard loaf of two ounces face, label being optional; for fancy loaf or roll a one-pound standard, with a label obligatory, stating that it is fancy bread and weighs as indicated. The general municipal committee is an official body of the city, not of the board of health; inspection will also take place in the stores where bread is imported from another city, by an inspector similarly chosen. Seizure for a fine not exceeding $5 for an aggravated case. It will be seen that Kingston's requests have been granted in several respects, against Toronto's opposition, and that of several other places.

Bakers of Toronto sent to the committee large batches of fancy bread, showing about twenty different styles and qualities. Every one of the loaves, save two, of twenty ounces out of not less than fifty loaves, weighed one pound and was so labelled.

Being, outside of big cities, a general custom of two-ounce fancy loaf and an insistent demand for it, the committee has granted two standards of fancy bread, also sixteen and twenty ounces, with designation of quality.

Opening of Navigation. "You will soon hear the whistle of the steamboats around the harbor," remarked one of the captains, to the Whig, this afternoon. "I expect that we will be able to make a start out either on Saturday or Monday." It is stated that the ice is all clear in the American channel. The steamers Pierpont and Wolfe Isahauer will be out as soon as possible.

Increase To Indian List. Inspector W. Clarke Wright, to-day, served papers on all the hotels, forbidding them to serve liquor to three citizens. This makes the list still larger, and it will be harder for the bartenders to keep track of the large number who are of the forbidden few.

Invited To Brockville. Brockville Times. At a special meeting of the official board of the Wall street church, held Tuesday evening, Rev. W. H. Sparling, B.A., pastor of Queen street Methodist church, Kingston, received a cordial invitation to succeed Rev. S. Selberry at the close of his term in June, 1909.

REPORT OF GRAND JURY

WAS PRESENTED TO THE HIGH COURT TO-DAY.

Some Changes Are Recommended at the Jail—The Report Upon the Charitable Institutions.

When the high court opened at ten o'clock Thursday morning the grand jury presented its report to the court. The report was as follows:

"We, the members of the grand jury, being to report that under the direction of your lordship, we have visited the county jail and find: The prisoners at present confined are thirteen males and two females, fifteen in all, who made no complaints. We found everything clean, well-kept and in the very best of order, but for better safety, suggest that the window guards of corridor windows be reinforced, as those of the wards, and also that a grille, with gate, be placed across the hall at the entrance to the jail proper. We have also to point out that there is not proper accommodation for the bedding of the incoming prisoners, nor is there proper accommodation; that the old-fashioned system of cell buckets may be done away with; the ventilation is poor, the closets in use are unsanitary, and are necessarily dirty and impossible to be kept clean. We also notice there is no accommodation for the ordinary washing of bedding, clothing, etc. We should also call attention to the want of hand rails to stairs of all gallery cells, and accommodation for the turkey, he at present occupying but one very ordinary basement room.

"We visited the general hospital, and found everything clean, neat and in good order. We remarked the lack of fire escapes, and were informed that an order had been given for them and they expected them to be erected at once. There are in all one hundred patients in the institution, forty-four males, thirty-three males and twenty-three females. We also visited the Orphans' Home and found it neat, clean and tidy, well equipped with fire escapes. The children well-kept, happy and contented. In the Hotel Dieu hospital we found eighty-eight patients, forty-six males and forty-two females. The institution was clean, well-kept and in good order. "The House of Providence we found remarkably clean and well conducted. The inmates, 242 in number, 105 males, 97 females and 40 children, all happy and contented. House of Industry we found neat, clean and well conducted; an excellent home for the indigent, poor and aged. There are at present forty inmates, twenty-two males and eighteen females. We desire to thank the heads of the several institutions which we visited for the courtesy and kindness shown us. We desire to thank your lordship for the clear, lucid and comprehensive address which enabled us, we trust, to carry out the duties imposed upon us.

His lordship thanked the jury for the prompt manner in which they had discharged their duties, and said that a copy of the report would be sent to the jail inspector and county council, with the recommendations.

PIANO PLAYING RECORD.

Extraordinary Feat Performed By a Kingstonian. A resident in this city can claim to be the champion endurance pianist of South Africa, having accomplished, at Cape Town, in August last, the appalling feat of playing the piano for twelve consecutive hours a day on twelve consecutive days, and this under the surveillance of a committee appointed to see that he did not make a break.

The Cape Argus, commenting on the feat, said: "He does not feel the least inconvenience in his wrists or fingers. He freshens up rather than tires, and each evening, and could easily go on for another twenty-four hour non-stop run. Helped by his friend to his three meals, and to his bovine, he eats well and his sleep is not disturbed by nightmares of perpetual piano playing. This energetic player is self-taught, is twenty-two years old, and was born at East Ham, London, England, and has been in the piano tuning business. He means later to have a go at the world's record of a fifty-three hour non-stop run. As he plays on an average $32,000 notes per day. It follows that he played 6,354,000 notes during the twelve days of his performance. Imagine the feelings of a highly strung individual who started such a feat with the thought in his mind, I must play more than six million notes before I have finished my task."

This gentleman undertakes piano and organ tuning and repairs in this city, and surroundings. Orders may be booked at Leach's sale room, 58 Brock street.

Peniless Wayfarers.

The police station was well-filled last evening, eleven persons seeking shelter there. Some were Italians, some Welsh and some English. They were without friends and were in search of work. One member had no boots on and no money to purchase any. Most of them left this morning to work on the K. & P. railway, and two left for Sudbury to work on the C.P.R. line.

Take Notice.
