If You Want a New Suit, Come to Us and We Will Try to Treat You Right.

We are clothing men, who make a business of clothing men. We don't search the markets for junk, job lots refused by other merchants. We pick our patterns that suit us, not those that don't suit the other fellow. We create styles which we know are up to the last tick of the clock. We don't sell you cotton goods at all wool prices. We wish to sell you the suit you wish, thin dressings while we shall make a profit on it. We shall remember you are healthy, and have many suits to buy in years to come. Suits, $10 to $22.

MAKING OVER FACES

SOME BEAUTY METHODS FOR HOME USE.

Good Looks For a Song—Woman Who is in Earnest Can Improve Her Appearance Without Great Expense—How to Keep Up a Pretty Face.

New York Sun.
"Many a woman," said the physical culturist, "would like to begin the beauty quest, but the trouble is that she does not know how to make a start. She is afraid it is too expensive, that beauty, like everything else, is worth having, comes high."
"But the woman who is really in earnest and wants to improve her appearance can do a great deal without spending any money at all, or at least any more than she is accustomed to spend."
"It is not necessary to begin by laying out large sums. She will need a little jar of finely powdered pumice stone, which is cheap and one of the best of all toilet requisites. For five cents she can get enough to last a year."
"Then she will want a little box of borax powder, and here again a nickel will do a great deal for her. And as she goes along fitting up her toilet she will find that it is rather knowledge of what to buy than plenty of money that is essential to the upkeep of a pretty face."
"There are many women who have good features, but have let the face become full of blemishes. To make the face look like new is the function of the beauty expert, but the amateur who does not want to spend much money can manage very nicely for herself without a beauty doctor."
"The main trouble is that the skin gets clogged, and the first step is to wash it. The daughter of Pharaoh used to go down to the river bank and, kneeling in the bulrushes, gather a handful of fine sand and scrub her face with it. It smooths the skin and makes the complexion glow."
"It is best to begin by a good rubbing of the face with pumice and very hot water. It is not necessary to take the skin off, but the face can be rubbed with fine sand and then lathered and rubbed again."
"A spraying of hot water will remove both sand and soap and will leave the skin glowing and pretty. It now needs nothing but a coating of skin food to make it as fair as one would desire."
"If a patient is a stout woman the physical culturist will advise her to leave off coffee in the morning and to drink nothing at all with her breakfast. An hour before breakfast she can take a cup of hot water and at eleven she can take another cup of hot water. But she must make her breakfast and her lunch entirely without drink of any kind."
"Getting thin below the belt line is the most important thing to the woman who has let herself go. In most cases the fat settles in the chin also. Unless her belt is snug, her chin shapely she is out of the running from beauty's standpoint."
"To begin massaging the chin is one of the steps in the first day's work. The improvement process will be visible day by day. Even at the end of twenty-four hours the change is noticed."
"To make a quick change from ugliness to beauty is what most women want. They desire the services of a fairy godmother to make them look younger and prettier than they really are. And the fairy godmother will do it for them if properly entreated."
"A young woman who makes up her customers for fine occasions was hastily called before a recent wedding to prepare a woman for the event. The patient, a woman of forty, was to be one of the guests next day. "I must look young and pretty tomorrow," said she.
"The young beauty expert looked upon her and sighed. The patient's skin was rough and red and her eyes had a watery look. Her hair was like burnt hay and the very expression of her face was drawn."
"Make faces while I massage your skin," she said.
"And then, setting a mirror in front of the woman, she commanded her to relax her jaw, draw her mouth in high-arched and bring each muscle into active play. Meanwhile she scrubbed her complexion and massaged."
"Then there was the hair question, for the hair was dank and of many colors. There was nothing to do but shampoo it quickly in scented water and to dry it under a scented cap. Occasionally the cap was lifted and the hair was ventilated."
"It took a couple of hours, but at the end of that time the hair was shining and lovely in color. It had faded from the sun, but this faded look only gave it the fashionable London tinge, which is that of a delicate tanning from pale yellow to deep brown."
"The fashionable faddists of London endeavor to make the hair as many tones of brown as possible. It gives the face a youthful expression, as though one were a girl with sun-browned hair."
"The waving of the hair is of next importance, for the locks must be done irregularly. There must be a big wave of medium size. The hair must not be waved evenly, for the waves are supposed to be carelessly put in by nature, not artificially by the curlers."
"We paint the eyebrows to make them dark and heavy, and this is a thing that can be begun the very first day. The work of painting requires delicate camel's hair brush and some warm olive oil."
"The painter can dip the brush in the oil and delicately travel over the eyebrows, outlining them and making them deeper as she works. The oil is good for the roots of the hair and it darkens them slightly and makes each hair shine."
"The woman who has let herself go can take a step in the right direction by the purchase of some ready-to-wear hair. This comes in the form of puffs and coronet braids and a little curls that set off the temples."
"In making the face look prettier curls play a very important part for the reason that they hide the hair spots on the temples and also conceal the ears. Kears are made to be covered up unless they are very small."

very pink, very well shaped and decidedly attractive.
"The portrait painter understands the art of making the face look young and pretty. With a few deft strokes he takes away ten years of a woman's age."
"He smooths out the lines with his paint brush just as a woman smooths them out with her finger tips in her daily facial massage, and he plumps out the cheeks and makes them pink just as a woman may plump them and pink them for herself."
"A swift rubbing of the cheeks with the palms of the hands will make them glow so prettily. Be cheeks mean youth, and to have them look naturally red makes a woman seem more girlish."
"Biting the lips or pinching them between the teeth will make them glow. Don't get into the habit of lip-biting, but learn to press them together for an instant to make them redden. Red lips make the teeth seem whiter, and a woman can use a little peroxide of hydrogen upon her moistened toothbrush to good effect. She will make her teeth glisten like pearls in the hands of a skillful worker."
"In the hands of a skillful worker a woman's age will dwindle ten years inside of two hours. Each stroke will tell, and when she has completed her job the hair will be prettily waved back from the forehead, leaving a wide smooth expanse over which a dust of powder can be thrown to make the skin whiter."

REV. C. W. CASSON.
A Change of Front.
The consolidated evil of the world is yet to be met and conquered, equity is yet to be established, justice is yet to be done, purity is yet to be lived. The glow of the time is that in this work denunciation has been sent to the rear, austerity has been a better understanding, a more hopeful courage, a gentler spirit of toleration, a keener recognition of the fact that we are all helpers of each other in climbing the summits of the ideal. Humanity is commissioned thus to make better conditions in a better world.—Rev. F. A. Hinckley.
