AT THE POLICE COURT

JAMES SLAVIN DENIES VAGRANCY CHARGE

And Has Great Deal to Say to the Magistrate—Contractors Must Observe the Building By-Law.

"James Slavin, you are charged with vagrancy," called out Magistrate Farrell, at the police court this morning.

"That's my name, but I am no vagrant," said a big, husky looking man, the only occupant of the prisoner's dock. Slavin's face appeared as if he had not consulted a tonsorial artist for several weeks, and his hands looked as if he had been handling coal for several months. His make up was that of a typical vag. Last night the accused went to sleep in the barn at the Albion hotel. He was given his walking ticket, but again went back to the hay. This morning the police were notified and Constable "Harry" Filson took him in charge. On the way to the police station he endeavored to go a "round" with the officer, but the blue-coat had him well in hand.

"Several complaints have been made about this man," said Sergt. Nesbitt, to the magistrate.

"They say you are a vagrant," said the court to Slavin.

"No, I am not," he replied, becoming very angry.

"What are you doing?"

"Working, of course," was the sharp reply. The accused at the same time exhibited his hands to the magistrate, saying, "Look at these, doesn't that look like work?"

"Where have you been working?" again asked the court.

"Anywhere and any place," was the reply.

"But where did you work last?"

"I was working with a minister."

"You must be more definite."

"I don't know the minister's name."

Constable Filson was then called and told of Slavin going around begging.

"What's the matter with you people? I was not begging," said the prisoner, with a very cheeky air.

"Couldn't you give me a description of the minister you speak of?" asked the court, endeavoring to get at the truth of his story.

"He was a big stout man. I am a stranger here, and I cannot remember all about him."

"Well, I will remand you until Monday," said the court.

"All right," said Slavin, as he was escorted out of the room, "but I want you to remember that I am not a vagrant."

The prisoner was arrested a week ago by Constable John Naylon, on a charge of vagrancy.

A contractor was summoned charged with an infraction of the building by-law, but when the facts of the case had been explained to the magistrate he decided not to impose any penalty. City Solicitor McIntyre explained that the by-law must be carried out, and that all the contractors must understand. The city engineer must be kept in touch with all work that was being done in order that the public could be safeguarded.

Magistrate Farrell also stated that the by-law must be strictly observed, in order that the public might be protected.

COMING TO THE GRAND.

"Raffles, The Amateur Cracksman," on Monday.

Playgoers will enjoy a genuine treat in the engagement of "Raffles, the Amateur Cracksman," which will take place at The Grand on Monday, April 20th, with a special Easter Monday matinee. S. Miller Kent is the star of "Raffles." The fame of this play has preceded it here, because E. W. Hornung's stories from which this drama has been made, have been widely read, and because it was well-known that this was the only drama to remain in New York 200 nights, season before last.

"Parsifal," Tuesday Night.

No grander spectacle, no more sublime subject, no greater Christian lesson or more intense dramatic action, and no more beautiful or interesting story was ever embodied in a play in any period of the world's history than is witnessed in the magnificent world-known mystic drama, "Parsifal." It will be presented at The Grand on Tuesday, April 21st. Artists have vied with each other in perpetuating its glorious scenes upon canvas. In our own land to-day the famous paintings of Edwin Abbey grace the walls of the Boston library, beautifully illustrating the "Quest Of The Holy Grail." It remained, however, for the genius of the immortal Wagner to gather and study the many legends, myths and mystical stories pertaining to the Holy Grail, and with all this acquired knowledge, supplemented and aided by his own poetic nature and artistic temperament.

Charles Diamond Around Again.

Charles Diamond, who has been laid aside for the past three months, on account of injuries sustained by his cab overturning at the corner of Brock and King streets, has resumed work again. His patrons are pleased to see him around once more.

COMMERCIAL MATTERS.

What is Going on in the Business World—The Markets.

British railroads increased their gross receipts by $18,500,000 in 1907.

W. W. Hodgson is retiring from the managership of the Union Stock Yards company, Toronto.

The Nova Scotia Steel and Coal company will send in the vicinity of 270,000 tons to the St. Lawrence this year.

John Hendry, who for years past has represented the Great Northern interests at Vancouver, as a result of a dispute, has resigned.

Toronto railway earnings the week ended April 11th totalled $62,122.79, or $2,724.24 more than in the corresponding week last year.

The Bell Telephone company has been constructing a through line from St. Thomas, Ont., to Buffalo, N.Y. The only intervening section will be Simcoe.

The Toronto street railway receipts in March amounted to $277,293.12, an increase of $9,572.07 over the receipts in March, 1907. The city's share in percentage last month totalled $33,838.80.

Forty years ago the total assets of Canadian banks were $32,754,000. At present the assets are $901,500,000. The deposits in the banks forty years ago were $36,090,000. To-day the deposits are $538,000,000.

The new pension system, put in force on January 1st, by the Grand Trunk railway, has had three months' trial, and the officials are convinced already that it was a wise move and that the money is well spent.

At Edmonton, Alta., building permits issued during the first ten days in April totalled $125,000. The total to date since the first of the year is $1,482,350, as compared with about $700,000 for the first three months last year.

MacKenzie & Mann, Canadian Northern railway, may purchase Joseph Wendel's half interest in twenty coal locations on Bear river, in Northern Cariboo. The areas comprise scores of seams of bituminous coal, adapted for cooking and steaming purposes, many equal in size to the Crow's Nest district.

Death Of A Pioneer.

The death of George Crozier occurred on March 30th, at the old homestead, where he lived with his youngest son, Alexander, Mountain Grove. Deceased was one of the earliest pioneers who settled here when that township was a wilderness. His wife died ten years ago, leaving a large family of children all grown up and married. His illness was of short duration. He was taken ill on the Friday previous to his death and the funeral took place on Wednesday, April 1st, to the Mountain Grove Methodist church. There was a large attendance which showed the esteem in which deceased was held. Rev. L. M. Sharpe, assisted by Rev. Mr. Lockett, Arden, officiated. The body was interred in the Mountain Grove cemetery beside the grave of his wife. Arden and Mountain Grove Orangemen paid tribute to the departed brother. Mr. Crozier was an industrious man, an honest neighbor, a loving father and one who enjoyed the confidence and respect of all who knew him.

Was Disappointed.

George Hepburn, held on bigamy charge, expected that his time would be over and that he would be able to get away to Fort William, on the steamer Advance, on which he is fireman. He was disappointed, however, as the steamer Advance cleared yesterday. Hepburn is said to be an expert railway operator.

A Manly Religion.

It must be frankly confessed that certain types of religious thought and practice do not appeal to the manly mind. Whenever it demands any kind of slavish submission as a requisite condition, it cannot possibly enlist the devotion or even awaken the interest of the real man. But that conception of religion that demands the sturdier qualities of the soul, and insists upon forceful action, must necessarily appeal. A religion demanding strength must appeal to the strong. A religion demanding courage must appeal to the brave. A religion demanding as its chief principle that men should be manly, strong, brave, will always appeal to manly men.

Address, Rev. C. W. Casson, at 25 Beacon street, Boston, Mass., for the literature.
