NEW HOME OF THE PAN-AMERICAN BUREAU. Elaborate preparations are being made for the laying of the corner-stone of the new million-dollar marble home of the international bureau of the American republics at Washington. The ceremony is scheduled for this spring, although the exact date has not as yet been fixed, and President Roosevelt and many of the most prominent men of the nation will participate. The new building, which is to cost $760,000, is to be the gift of Andrew Carnegie. The site, which represents an expenditure of some $250,000, was purchased by a fund to which the United States and all the republics of Central and South America contributed in proportion to their population. The new building is suggestive of the distinctive Spanish style architecture and will be built around an interior court patterned after to "patio" of the Latin-American countries.
