A PROVINCIAL CARE

The Conduct of the Doukhobors in the Western Provinces.

Debates That Seem Endless and of Little or No Value to the Country--No Grant to the Landslide Sufferers.

From Our Own Correspondent.
Ottawa, May 2.—The chief discussion of interest in the commons, yesterday, was the question of the migratory Doukhobors, who are now at Yorkton, Sask., unwilling to clothe themselves, and incapable of receiving advice regarding proper food.

The opposition maintained determinedly that stronger efforts should be made to control them, or failing that to deport them.

This latter, however, the government maintained was impossible. These people had been so long in this country that, in the eyes of the law, they were Canadians. It is a provincial question, the government claims.

There has been little or no work done this week, the sittings being taken up with debates which seem endless, and which are of little or no value to the country.

The investigation of Justice Cartier into the charges made by the civil service commission against certain officials of the marine and fisheries department, originally fixed for yesterday, has been postponed until to-day.

TEN MILES OF PICTURES.

Those on View Represent Three Acres Of Canvas.

Paris, May 2.—The National Salon des Arts is now open, and in a fortnight the Salon des Artistes Francais will open its doors to the public. In these two salons, both of which are in the Grand Palais, there will, at the end of this month, be 15,000 pictures. These represent about three acres of canvas.

The total length of the pictures without their frames would be nearly ten miles. Reckoning one minute to look at every picture, and without taking any rest by day or night, it would take ten days and ten hours to see every picture in the two salons.

MADE AN ALARM.

Bound Hand and Foot, Used Teeth on Phone.

Sedalia, Mo., May 2.—Mrs. Eugene Hugenschmidt had a trying experience with a robber. A man sprang at her in her home, knocked her down, then tied her hand and foot, and to secure her further bound her to a sewing machine. After securing $75 he left. Mrs. Hugenschmidt, unable to free herself, dragged along the floor, taking the machine with her, to the telephone. She managed to pull the receiver from the hook with her teeth and then, by shouting in the phone, informed central of her predicament. The telephone girl notified the police, and an officer came in a hurry and released her.

HOUSES OF PARLIAMENT.

HOUSES OF PARLIAMENT.

The Houses of Parliament, seat of the legislative branch of the British government, have lately been made the scene of a series of demonstrations without parallel in the history of England. These demonstrations have been precipitated by advocates of suffrage for women—members of the gender sex, who have taken every imaginable means of martyrdom for their cause, even to being expelled by officers of the law when they sought to force entrance to the sacred precincts of the House of Lords and House of Commons. The Houses of Parliament, an imposing group of brick and stone structures, rendered distinctive in appearance by several lofty towers, constitute one of the principal show places of London, and are at all times a mecca for tourists. On the occasion of the recent sensational demonstrations by the suffragists, all the streets in the vicinity were packed by interested onlookers.

GIRL SOCIALIST REPENTANT.

Deserted Her Home to Join Band Has Returned.

Geneva, May 2.—Mlle. Rebeca Jenny, the daughter of a wealthy Russian landowner, who some time ago, during a visit of the family to Geneva, the daughter of a wealthy Russian Socialist, has returned home. She disappeared completely and M. Jenny was unable to trace her. He asked the aid of the Swiss police to restore her, but without success. He spent some months in Switzerland prosecuting the search, and they returned to St. Petersburg, when he disengaged his daughter.

A few days later he received an anonymous letter stating that Rebeca was in Munich and was willing to return home. M. Jenny followed up the clue, and the girl is now reunited to her family.

ARE ON THE TRAIL.

Pittsburgh, May 2.—In relation to the holding up of the Express Messenger on the Pennsylvania railway train near here, on Thursday night, it is that the robbers obtained about $50,000. Because of their familiarity with the little details which helped them in their work, the police believe former employees are responsible and several former messengers are being watched. A party of deputy sheriffs found traces of the men in the snow in the surrounding hills and wired for reinforcements.

PARENTS OUTWITTED

Lovers are Married in a Drama on the Stage.

What the Audience Thought Was a Part of the Play Was a Real Wedding.

Vienna, May 2.—A remarkable story of a "surprise" marriage comes from Castelmore, Dalmatia, where a young couple were wedded in the presence of their friends and relatives, although the latter objected strenuously to the match.

The bridegroom was Anton Iron, a young and penniless lawyer, and his sweetheart an eighteen-year-old girl named Estelle Berger, the daughter of a local merchant. As her parents refused to sanction the match, and the girl refused to take part in a clandestine marriage, the lovers were in despair until Herr Iron thought of an ingenious way out of the difficulty.

Both he and his sweetheart were enthusiastic members of an amateur dramatic club. He arranged a theatrical performance, in which both of them took part and which included a two-act comedy. In the last act of the comedy the hero and heroine were married on the stage in full view of the audience.

The theatre was crowded, the proceeds of the entertainment being devoted to charity. Fraulein Berger's parents were astonished when they waited for their daughter after the performance to be informed that she had been really married and that the actor who impersonated the clergymen was really a minister.

The bride's father was so delighted at the clever way in which he had been outwitted that he gave the couple a $25-note for their honeymoon, and has promised to furnish a home for them.

The Emperor Nicholas II. struck the Koelin amidships. The steamer Fieldmarschall, a German East African liner, responded to signals and took off 820 passengers from the Koelin.
