PAINTINGS REMOVED
SO AS NOT TO OFFEND THE GERMANS.

A Town's Fire Engine Carried Off By Burglars—How An Italian Went Through a Hospital Seeking An Enemy.

Paris, May 2.—To avoid giving any offence to the many subjects of the kaiser, who visit the annual exhibition of paintings and drawings of the National Society of Beaux-Arts, the police have had to remove from the salon several brutal caricatures of the German emperor. The most conspicuous among these was a painting of Jean Verber which represented the kaiser in the automobile races held last year in the Thaumus. The picture showed the kaiser leaving his private box on his way to his auto laughing in a way which surpasses any of the snapshots ever taken of President Roosevelt. The drawing was at the same time exceedingly funny and exceedingly malicious.

Also other paintings were removed from the salon for political reasons, among these a large painting by Rembrandt, showing the Dreyfus trial at Rennes. The painting showed Count Dreyfus carrying in his arms the wooden body of Colonel Henry. The count looked more like a ghost than a human being and even less flattering was the portrait of Mercur who is said on with a smile of approval.

ENGLAND'S MOST BEAUTIFUL WOMAN.

Some time ago a Chicago newspaper instituted a contest to determine the most beautiful woman in America and by an overwhelming vote, Miss Marguerite Frey of San Francisco, was selected. Following this invitation the Daily Mirror, of London, started a similar contest with the result that out of hundreds of photographs submitted, the judges (three notable artists) the above was selected as representative of the highest type of refined English beauty. The name of this charming winner is held secret, but thousands of her photographs are being sold by the Daily Mirror.

discovered that the gate of the fire-house was open and when he looked inside he noticed that the engine was gone. Arousing the whole town he began a search for the stolen fire extinguisher, and towards morning the remains of it were found in a wood near the town. All that was left, by the way, were the wooden wheels from which even the brass hubs had been removed.

That an Italian, goaded by the spirit of Vendetta fears nothing, is proven by a story which comes from Rome. Towards midnight on Thursday a young man appeared outside one of the large Roman hospitals conducted by the authorities of the Vatican, and demanded admission. When the door-keeper tried to keep him out he threatened him with a stiletto, and after having tied his hands and feet he went inside. Terrifying all the nurses whom he met he walked through all the wards of the hospital brandishing his stiletto, and examining all the patients.

First when he had found out that the man whom he wanted to kill was not among the patients he fell promising to repeat his visit. In the meantime one of the nurses had called the police and a policeman succeeded in arresting the man after a fight in which he was nearly killed.

In court the would-be avenger declared that he would not care what punishment he got and that he would never rest until he had found and killed his victim.

A strange discovery has been made in the town of Paradella, on the coast of Portugal. A few days ago during a heavy wind storm a part of the cliff upon which the town is built was washed away by the waves, and the next morning the people were surprised to see that a great treasure, evidently used by pirates had been revealed.

In a cave was found a great many very old gold and silver coins, jewelry rings, sacred vessels, etc. Immediately by every man in town started to work to dig for more treasures and gold coins amounting to forty thousand francs have been found.

The bill introduced in the House of Commons by Mr. Birrell, chief secretary for Ireland, creates a Roman Catholic university in Dublin and a Presbyterian one in Belfast. The former is composed of a new university in Dublin, for which the old exhibition buildings will be utilized at a cost of £150,000, and in which will be incorporated the existing Queen's College at Cork and Queen's College, Galway (both founded 1845) Queen's College, Belfast (founded 1848), becomes a Presbyterian university. The Anglicans already have a university in Trinity College, Dublin, which is unaffected by the bill.

BULL BUTTS A TRAIN.
Derails Engine, But is Killed By Impact.

Madrid, May 2.—A large and savage bull tried to wreck the Andalusian express, to-day, by butting the engine with his head. The result was most unfortunate for the bull.

While the express was travelling at the rate of twenty miles an hour the bull suddenly appeared on the line near the village of Rabonales.

Before the driver could pull up, the bull rushed at the express with lowered head, and the impact was so terrific that the engine was derailed. The driver applied the brakes just in time to prevent the entire train falling over an embankment.

After the remains of the bull had been swept away and a fresh engine secured the express proceeded to Cordova, arriving two hours late. Senor Moret, the ex-premier, was a passenger by the express.

A Queen's Bungalow.
There has just been completed for Queen Alexandra, at Southham, in Norfolk, an attractive yet unpretentious little bungalow. The outer walls are of bright yellow earthenware tiles and the floors are laid in the rough with numerous projections. There are two main rooms, one for the queen and another for the attendants, and between them is a small lobby which also gives access to the offices. Around the queen's apartment runs a five-foot-high dado of dark stained vertical boards, and above the cemented walls are decorated with stones of various hues and mused, rock, and other shells from the beach.

Music Dearer Than Life.
Belgrade, May 2.—Thodorik Antitch, a student of the Belgrade Musical College, committed suicide because he could not overcome the technical difficulties in a passage of Czerny's exercises. He explained in a letter that he preferred death to being an indifferent player.

A SPY OR A TRAITOR IS CAUSING ANXIETY AT BREMEN.

The Man is Unknown—Every Officer, Designer and Workman is Watched, But Still Secrets Are Given Away.

Bremen, May 2.—The presence of an unknown spy or traitor either at Wilhelmshafen, the Weser shipyards at Bremen, or in the very offices of the navy department is causing the naval authorities considerable anxiety and a quiet, but very thorough investigation is going on in spite of all official denials. Every naval officer, every designer, every workman in the Bremen yards is being closely watched, but in spite of the system of keeping tabs on the movements of hundreds of persons, nothing has been discovered which gives a clue to the identity of the persons who has sold or given away valuable naval secrets.

In the Weser shipyards the German government is building an armoured cruiser, as yet only known as "P." which it desired to keep a deep secret. Nevertheless the naval authorities were shocked a few weeks ago when a copy of a London "yellow" paper was received here which gave in detail all the information which the government wanted, the outside world to know nothing about.

"The cruiser will be of 19,000 tons displacement," the London paper says. "Her armament will consist of twelve eleven-inch guns of fifty calibres long's, ten of them capable of firing on either broadside, and eight either ahead or astern. The accompanying sketches show how the armament will be disposed."

A speed of twenty-four knots is to be attained. This is not to be the trial speed, but the sea-going speed and will, therefore, make the vessel quite as fast as the Invincible, which is designed for a trial speed of twenty-five knots. The German vessel, like the British, will be equipped with Parsons turbines, developing 44,000 horse-power, and she will be fitted for burning oil fuel as well as coal.

The eleven-inch gun with which the ship will be armed is a new weapon, and although it is a shot lighter by some ninety pounds than the British twelve-inch gun, it is quite equal to it in hitting power, and at long range such as modern naval engagements are fought the advantage actually lies with the lighter German weapon.

The description is correct on every point, and no stone will be left unturned to find out how the paper in question got its information.

AN ESPECIAL PRIDE
Is the Sturdy Four Months Child of House.

TURKISH GIRL'S ROMANCE.
She is Now Engaged to Polish Noble.

Paris, May 2.—Mlle. Nourieh, the daughter of the late Nouri Bey, the Turkish foreign minister, whose sensational escape from her father's house in Constantinople two years ago attracted universal attention, is engaged to marry Count Ladislaus de Rohozinski.

Mlle. Nourieh and her sister fled from Constantinople accompanied by their governess, and although the Turkish authorities attempted to have them arrested at Belgrade and Vienna, they succeeded in reaching Paris, where they have since lived untroubled.

Their father, Nouri Bey, made them a small allowance, and the elder sister, whose engagement is now announced, has supplemented her income by writing articles for the newspapers.

Coin Within A Coin.
London, May 2.—A remarkable find has been made at Southam by a local tradesman. The shopman took over his counter among other things a penny piece dated 1903. Shortly afterward he had occasion to part with it, and on tendering the coin it was thought by its ring to be counterfeit. The owner, on breaking it up, discovered to his astonishment, that it contained a silver coin of the same date. The silver coin is in excellent condition.

Festival Causes Hair Famine.
Vienna, May 2.—Vienna hair-dressers have received so many orders for wigs for the coming festival in honor of the emperor's jubilee that they are at a loss to obtain the necessary hair. The hair-dresser of the Volks theatre must secure 1,300 heads of hair before next month, but although he has offered fabulous prices, the number of women who have consented to part with their locks is comparatively small.

Skeleton 700 Years Old.
Liverpool, May 2.—A large number of human remains, consisting of skulls and bones, have just been unearthed near the rectory at Kirby Wiske, in the Cleveland district of Yorkshire. From the irregular manner in which the remains were interred, and from the finding with them of many spear-heads, etc., it is presumed that they are the skeletons of soldiers who fell at the battle of the Standard in 1138.

Violent Strikers At Rouen.
Paris, May 2.—Seven hundred cord porters on strike at Rouen, being unable to persuade their non-union comrades to leave work, pelted them with lumps of coal, and boarded the vessel in the port, attacked the men who were working there with shovels, injuring three of them. Two arrests were made.

THROW AWAY LINIMENTS

Here's the Prescription to Cure Rheumatism.

Liniments only reach the skin and the muscles directly under the skin. Now, liniments can't cure rheumatism. They simply soothe the nerves for a time. When the effect wears away, the pain returns worse than ever.

If the bowels do not move regularly—if the kidneys are strained or weak—if the skin is dry or harsh—the blood is sure to be filled with impurities or uric acid. This uric acid is changed into uric acid which is the poison that causes rheumatism.

Now, the only possible way to cure rheumatism is to prevent uric acid from being formed. Logically, the only way to do this is to keep kidneys, bowels and skin in good working order, and prevent the stomach from being too acid. And the only way to do this is to take "Fruit-Laxative."

These marvelous tablets of fruit juices and tonics act directly on the three great eliminating organs—bowels, kidneys and skin—and put them in perfect condition. That is the only secret of their great success in curing rheumatism, sciatica and lumbago. 50c a box—4 for $2.00. "Fruit-Laxative," Limited, Ottawa.
