THE STREET RAILWAY

THE SUBJECT OF PLATFORM DISCUSSION.

Ald. Nickle and Toye Speak on Power Question—Ald. Nickle Didn't Deny That Company Got Power Below Cost.

There was a large audience present in the City Hall last evening to listen to Aldermen Nickle and Toye discuss the street railway power question. D. Reeves was chosen to preside. The delay originated from a challenge of Ald. Nickle to Ald. Toye to discuss the matter with him on a public platform. To this Ald. Toye agreed. The only new thing learned by the discussion was the statement of Mr. Nickle, as a stockholder of the street railway company, that the line was not paying. He did not deny the statement of Ald. Toye that according to the financial report of the light, heat and power plant, the street railway was receiving electric power for 1.66 cents a kilowatt hour, whereas it cost the city 1.94 cents to produce that kilowatt hour. His argument was that it paid the city to retain the street railway company as a customer.

Ald. Toye was the first speaker. He said that the question at issue was the result of Ald. Nickle charging him with having made a big mistake in selling gas to the people at $1 when it cost $1.26 to produce. In reality, gas sold for $1.07, the meter profit having to be added. He had retorted that Ald. Nickle should also have criticized the selling of electric power to the street railway company for 1.66 cents a kilowatt hour, when it cost 1.94 cents to produce a kilowatt hour. He had nothing to add or to retract. He secured the information from the light plant financial statement, which was duly audited. That was all he had to say upon the matter, and he would be pleased to have Ald. Nickle show that the street railway wasn't getting power from the city below cost.

Ald. Nickle occupied an hour in replying. He first reviewed the history of the street railway from its commencement in 1874, and then told of the losses sustained by the late company, when the city took over the light plant, which practically maintained the railway. The latter was able to pay only when run in conjunction with the light plant. The late George Richardson, H. W. Richardson and himself had stepped into the breach when the line was closed up in 1905, and when no one would buy it. They had put up $100,000 to get the line in operation again. His family had lost $90,000 through the company's failure. According to newspaper reports, Ald. Nickle said that sometimes the people would think that he was a thief and a grafter, the way he was attacked because of his street railway connection.

As to power he thought that when the Richardsons and himself were risking $100,000, the city could afford in 1905 to risk $2,800 for power when the railway benefited Kingston to a large extent. Ald. Toye had brought to council the report recommending the giving of power to the street railway company at 1.66 cents a kilowatt hour, Ald. Nickle said and had voted for it.

Regarding the statement that the street railway gets power below cost, Ald. Nickle proceeded to demonstrate that the city makes money by giving power to the cars for 1.66 cents a kilowatt hour, even if it does cost 1.94 cents for its production. He declared that the street railway was the best customer the city had, and without it the cost of electrical production would be higher. If the street railway was to drop out as a customer of the city plant, all the city would lose would be $281 a year for the salary of one man kept to run the street railway engine, Ald. Nickle claimed. The other running expense of the plant, he held, would be the same. Ald. Nickle quoted J. M. Campbell, Ross & Holgate (Montreal), George Osborne and Prof. Gill as stating that the street railway power arrangement was an advantage to the city. Prof. Gill figured that the city made $400 from the street railway in 1907, although it gave it electricity at 1.66 cents when the cost of production was 1.94 cents.

Ald. Nickle then dealt with the street railway company's finances, and stated that the line was not paying. He would not have given out this information, he said, had it not been for Ald. Toye, but he wasn't going to stand everything without hitting back. He wasn't going to have his career spoiled by continuing to not notice unfair statements made concerning himself and the railway. Since January 1st, 1906, not three per cent had been made on the investment. The debenture interest due last January, had not been paid, and the company had to borrow $1,500 from the bank to clear the tracks of snow last winter. The owners went into the courts for public quietness and were prepared to stand by it. The $6,000 spent upon new car barns did not come out of the road's earnings, Ald. Nickle said, but out of the stockholders' pockets. Ald. Nickle stated that when the street railway bill came before the railway committee at Toronto, Mr. Pense had commended it and voted for it, and yet his newspaper was continually attacking him on street railway matters, and said that he had gone to Toronto to force class legislation.

The street railway question he claimed should never have been thrown into this campaign. In concluding, Ald. Nickle stated that when changes were made to the cars, the company gave up its privilege of paying only $2.50 a car a day for power, and paid by meter. That could be verified by reference to the city's books. In reply, Ald. Toye said that Ross & Holgate had reported that the street railway company as a power consumer was of small actual advantage to the city. When that report was made, it cost 1.86 cents to produce a kilowatt hour of power. Now it cost 1.94 cents and it was, therefore, very doubtful if the street railway as a power consumer was

THE HUMANE SOCIETY

HAS CLOSED A YEAR OF GOOD RESULTS.

The Annual Meeting in the Whig Hall—Addresses by Principal Gordon, Prof. Macnaughton, Dr. Massie and Others.

The annual meeting of the Kingston Humane Society was held in the Whig hall, on Thursday evening. The president, E. J. B. Pense, occupied the chair. There was a large attendance, the hall being comfortably filled with members and visitors. In his opening remarks the president said that the society had accomplished much during the year in many ways. He spoke of Inspector Aniel and of the good work he was doing. So far this month, three horses have been destroyed. The president stated that the effect of the blue paper of the law was showing up here, as the same way as it did in the Children's Aid Society. It did much to influence a drunken and cruel father, and it now does much to influence a good work done by the two veterinary surgeons, Drs. Massie and Nicholls.

The secretary's report for the year just ended was then read, and showed a most satisfactory year's work in all departments. The following is a summary of the inspector's work during the year: Horses inspected, 38; horses humanely destroyed, 17; horses ordered to be fed, 3; horses to be shod, 1; horses to be rested, 7; cows inspected, 13; cows medically treated, 10; cats destroyed, 3; dogs destroyed, 3; convictions, 2; case dismissed, 1. The prosecutions appear small, but this is owing to the many obstacles the society has to cope with, such as witnesses' unwillingness to come forward and give evidence, and the fear that many have of losing trade by assisting the society.

THE SPORT REVIEW.

A Two Mile Race in Gananoque Next Thursday.

A two-mile race will be held in Gananoque on Thursday afternoon next. The race will be run on the half-mile track. Two local runners will enter, Leslie Wood of Gananoque, and P. McMaster. Wood ran in the twelve-mile race here on Victoria day and was well up with the bunch when he quit, owing to the Brockville team jockeying him. He is a fast two or three mile man and should be in the money. McMaster also is a fast runner although he has not been figuring very prominently lately. Quite a number of local sports will accompany the boys to Gananoque. Horse races are also to be held on that day in Gananoque.

The Baseball League.

A full meeting of the executive of the Kingston Baseball Club was held in the Randolph hotel on Thursday evening. President Frederick McFarland, presiding. The schedule was considered, and the representatives of the Mc-Macs were present and stated that the team had not dropped out, but would play their games on Saturday. N. Mathewson and B. Harrison were present as representatives of the Emeralds, and applied for admission to the senior series. The matter was discussed, put to a vote, and the motion was lost by a small margin. The representatives of the C.C. team stated that after considering the game with the R.C.H.A., which did not come off a week ago Saturday, they decided not to accept it by default, but to play it off. They will take the game that the Mc-Macs did not play on Saturday last.

MARINE NOTES.

The Vessels Are Beginning to Move.

The steam yacht "Spain" which is David's dry dock for repairs. Steamer Dundas was here, on sailing, on the way to Montreal. Tig Peter Smith, Toronto, arrived here, to-day, on the way to Montreal for pulpwood. Steamer Kilgarry will arrive from Toronto to load wheat at Richardson's, for Montreal. The steamers City of Montreal, Brockville, and Victoria are here for overhauling in dry dock. Steamer Simla arrived at Richardson's, this morning, from Fort William with 50,000 bushels of wheat. At M. T. Co.'s Steamers Algonquin and Winona cleared for the upper lakes; no arrivals, to-day. Swift's Steamers Aetha, from bay points; City of Montreal, from Montreal; North King, for Rochester, on first trip of the season, to-night; schooner Kewatin cleared for Oswego with coal.

First Road To Be Built.

Men are at work on Park avenue (Bagot street from West to Barrie streets) making trenches and sewers on the sides of the road, preparatory to its rebuilding. This will likely be the first piece of road to be macadamized. The engineer wishes to test the new road machinery on this piece of road, which is entirely through city property on both sides, and where no inconvenience will be caused if there are delays. The road in question is in bad shape anyway. The road machinery has not yet arrived.

A Creamy Delight.

Good ice cream soda is the most delicious beverage made. Our soda is made right and served right. A liberal quantity of pure ice cream is given, pure crushed fruits and fruit syrups, only are employed, and our glasses and everything else about the fountain are absolutely pure. Wade's drug store.

An English Estate.

The late John Pearson, of Sheffield, England, who died in June, 1906, left an estate in Ontario valued at $5,668, of which $2,238 is in debts and notes, and $3,430 in real estate, at 75 West avenue, Toronto. The legatees are: Jessie Pearson, daughter, and Mrs. Euphemia B. Murray, daughter, of Kingston, Ont., and Mrs. Georgina B. Crossland, daughter, Mrs. Lillian Maxwell, daughter, and three sons, Henry, John and James, all of this city.

Christy's And Scott's.

Celebrated hats are to be had in Kingston at Campbell Bros., the leaders in men's hats. H. B. Archer, a labor delegate from London, Ont., to the Industrial Education association convention here, said, on his return: "The delegates were entertained royally. The convention was most successful, and we enjoyed ourselves immensely."

In moving the adoption of the above report, Principal Gordon gave an interesting address, especially to the young members of the Band of Mercy, at the meeting. The speaker stated that it gave him great pleasure to move the adoption of the above report. He spoke of the usefulness of the lover animals through the country, how we must depend on them, for good clothes and many other things. He spoke of the dog, saying that those who have had the pleasure of keeping a good dog know the pleasant companionship derived from him. Intelligence of the lower animals, especially the dog, appears very strongly to us. The speaker went on to speak of the intelligence of the sheep dog, how it will herd sheep on the hills, in the city or any place it was required to do so. He also spoke of a dog in Scotland which for years never left its master's grave, only once a day when it would go for food. Principal Gordon referred to the Indians, and to a trip through their country. He stated that he was watching to see how much the Indians were becoming civilized, and noticed in one agent's report that they were fast becoming so, as some of them kept rates. He stated that that was the first time he ever heard the cat held up as a test of civilization. In closing he pointed out to the children how necessary it was for them to keep these things in mind, how necessary it was that attention should be drawn to the subject in the school. Prof. Macnaughton seconded the motion.

RALPH STUART AT GRAND.

"Strongheart" Last Night, a Delightful Play.

"Strongheart," by William C. DeMille, was given at the Grand, last night by Ralph Stuart and his company, and the play proved a most delightful one. There was only a fair-sized audience.

The story centres around the life of "Strongheart," who is the son of an Indian chief, and a hero of the gridiron. He enters Columbia University plays on the football team, and falls in love with his chum's sister. The girl's relatives object strenuously to his suit, and although she is willing to go with him, his people object to her at the time of his future chief, and he is forced to give her up.

The play gives a true picture of college life of to-day, and of special note is the second act. In this is shown the training quarters, and the scene enacted is highly dramatic and has a sensational climax. "Strongheart" is a sensational play, but upon investigation is found to be most delightful one. There was only a fair-sized audience.
