THE WHIG, 75th YEAR

DAILY BRITISH WHIG, published at 206-210 King Street, Kingston, Ontario, at 25 per week. Editions at 2.30 and 4 o'clock p.m.

Daily Whig.

SICK OF THE DICKER. Mr. Nickle's paper says that in his nomination address he announced that he was against the letting or contracting of prison labour in competition with free labour.

MODEL SCHOOL WANTED. Is Frontenac going to have a model school this year, or next? Mr. Gallagher ought to know, and Mr. Gallagher will be to blame if the model school students have to go to some other county for the education they should get at home.

MEANWHILE IT BECAME EVIDENT that the models could not be wholly abolished. It was suggested that fewer of them might do, but that district schools would be necessary.

THE MINISTER OF EDUCATION—that roosting politician who knows more about the caucus than the school—had the matter referred to him for action, and it is presumed that during the campaign he has been getting calls from the "educationists," and giving such diplomatic answers as the situation required.

A demand from Frontenac should certainly have been made upon the minister, and the conservative party should have done a little pushing on its own account, seeing that Mr. Gallagher has been so helpless in the past.

Kingston, as an educational centre, should have a model school, and a committee of the Board of Education has been deputed to lay the matter before the education department.

"Some members of parliament," says the Freeman, "grow weaker in political strength, but to-day stands more popular than he did when he made his appearance as a parliamentary candidate."

A LESSON IN FAIR PLAY. From Saskatchewan, one of the newer provinces, come lessons that our provincial farmers can lay lovingly to heart.

There has been so much humouring of the sub-leaders, Foster, Fowler, Bennett, Sproule, Taylor, and others, that they have assumed the direction of affairs and Mr. Borden has been pushed aside.

Do not be deceived by appearances. In 1878 the Mackenzie government seemed to be strongly entrenched in power—and was defeated.

ANOTHER SCALP IN SIGHT. The Whig has been challenged to fight. With every turn of the wheel of fortune—or with every change in the proprietorship of our contemporary—some one has assumed the airs of a Goliath of Gath.

Always a mighty warrior made a great exhibition of himself. He was a phenomenon in his profession. He had seen foreign service. He had entered into many a combat.

The Whig stayed its answer as long as possible, exercising great forbearance under provocation, but it had at length to send its David forth, unpretentiously, with sling and stone, and the enemy was his.

Lately a truce was proclaimed. The Philistines were understood to have had enough of war. They appear, however, to have spent their time in retreat binding up their wounds and preparing for a new engagement.

The ex-finance minister is now referred to as the "sinless Foster." It is a pretty phrase, but does it fit?

there is a sally forth of our striping, and the thirtieth forelock or head will decorate the walls of the liberal sanatorium.

The advice of Mr. Whitney when in opposition, is good and should be followed when bribery is attempted. "Take the money," said Mr. Whitney in effect; "vote as you like, and inform on the crooks afterwards."

BRIBERY IN THE COUNTY. The boast of Mr. Gallagher, on nomination day, was that he had secured a larger grant than usual this year, and he could have given the reason—because there is a provincial election and a certain candidate is in need of help.

A reasonable inference followed—that Mr. Gallagher knew what his man Friday was doing and was a party to it. What is of more consequence—and a scandal of no mean proportions—is the charge that the colonization roads money is being used for corrupt purposes.

The Whitney government has claimed credit for its ability to do things because it had lots of money, and the charge that it is being improperly spent is not confined to Frontenac.

The local incident is not without some value as indicating the scars that is on the conservative party. Mr. Gallagher is sure of re-election—oh, so sure—but he is getting like a man who has very serious doubts about it.

EDITORIAL NOTES. If the people want free school books they must look to the liberals for them.

Mr. Gallagher denies that he knows of the corrupting influence of his road overseer. Why not accept the challenge of Mr. Reynolds and have a test case?

No employee or staff writer of the Whig has had to take the oath of allegiance. No one has been denied it. No one has, therefore, been refused the right to vote.

So Mr. Pense is a gentleman and a citizen all right. So Mr. Nickle's paper admits. It's the staff that give annoyance. What's the matter? Are they not all British subjects and loyal to the king?

The Montreal Witness is persuaded that there are some men who would vote for the wicked One if he invited their support under certain circumstances. Are any of these in Kingston?

Mr. Nickle's paper is going to do some harm to the Whig staff if it does not let Mr. Nickle alone. The Whig's young men may require police protection, but heretofore they have been able to take care of themselves.

Knocking a rich corporation when it is getting more than its share and more than it is paying for, is a trifling thing compared with the knocking of one's country. There is a limit to this knocking, too.

The numbered ballot has had its day—as a method of detecting how the public officials voted. It was used only once in this connection, in a bye-election, in Kingston, and by a conservative government.

The siege at Ottawa is being lifted. Mr. Borden, who some time since said he could stand on duty until he became as lean as a pipe stem, is about ready to surrender. He has endured enough for Bob Rogers.

The Spectator has it that Mr. Pense "has not yet specifically denied that he talked the C.N.E. matter over with his leader." Yes, he has, and the Spectator refuses to accept his denial. Which is not worthy of the great Spectator.

The men who would not give the liberal candidate a hearing at the nomination—who feared what he had to say and kept up a continual interruption—made votes for Mr. Pense. It is remarkable how voters have tendered their support since Monday evening.

Mr. Metcalfe says he doesn't pine to go to parliament just to see how it feels. He has been there before. Mr. Pense has had his experience. But Mr. Nickle—he can't be elected. That is Mr. Metcalfe's opinion, and it is the opinion of others. Mr. Nickle's paper will please copy.

The libel on Mr. Folger—the declaration that he is a grafter—and the libel, indirectly, upon the family eschaton, remains in the conservative literature. Mr. Nickle's paper has not yet kicked against it. The party is, therefore, allowed to knock the Folgers with impunity.

The Toronto News has been collecting information with regard to the election and upon this prepares a forecast. The inspiration in every case is conservative, and yet Kingston is conceded to be liberal.

Mixing Is Bad, Hamilton Spectator. Alexander Wright, of Toronto, seems to have caught Mr. McPherson with his dates mixed. In a case like this mixing dates is more disastrous than mixing drinks.

Canada's Own Business. A member of the British House of Commons has asked a question as to the appointment of William Mackenzie as secretary for imperial and foreign correspondence. When will these English M.P.'s learn that Canada is a self-governing country and that she has the right to manage her own affairs?

A Neat Dodge, Hamilton Times. The time for receiving tenders for the transmission line has been extended by the hydro-electric commission from June 2nd till July 12th. Of course the object is to let "people all over the world tender." But, of course, also, this will conveniently delay dealing with the tenders until the election is over.

The Resemblance, Guelph Mercury. Our own James Whitney resembles Theodore Roosevelt in some respects, to boot, his choice of phrases. Recently Teddy was quoted as advising an American boxer on route for England "to knock the tar out of them."

A Better Time Coming, Montreal Gazette. Charles M. Schwab, formerly president of the United States Steel Corporation, says the steel trade has passed through the greatest depression in its history, but the conditions are improving. The latter is the good part of the news. The demand for Gamey Doing Well. This is what Mr. Gamey very evidently is. Nothing is too good for the man from Manitowish. So determined are they that this precious political life shall not be lost that they are proceeding to extraordinary lengths to insure his re-election.

Dodging The Point. When Whitney was asked if Mr. Crothers' statement at Welland, that Whitney was to provide free school books, was true, the noble premier, who boasts that he is bold enough to be honest, and honest enough to be bold, miserably fumbled the question.

Street Car Accident. The report of J. F. Wise, inspector of the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board, on the electric street railway rear-end collision, finds that J. T. Carroll, the motorman, was in the presence of mind and control of his car owing to his being disconnected and hampered by the passengers on the front seat.

THE STRENUOUS LIFE Pulls So Hard on the Stomach It Must Have Help. The stress and strain of the strenuous life in both city and country makes stomach troubles. Five people suffer to-day where one did ten years ago with sick headache, dizziness, flatulence, distress after eating, specks before the eyes, bloating, nervousness, sleeplessness and the many other symptoms from indigestion as Miconia. So reliable is Miconia that G. W. Mahood with every 50c. box he sells gives a guarantee to refund the money unless the remedy cures.
