SCENES IN GREAT FRANCO-BRITISH EXHIBITION.

Imre Kiraly, Who Planned and Carried Out this Unique Exhibition.

These palaces are twenty in number, ranging from great double-winged machinery palaces, with its eight acres of floor space, to the delightful pavilion of the City of Paris itself. The exhibition to which all London would flock if it stood in a busy thoroughfare. In addition to these are smaller buildings by the score, some erected by the French colonies, others by concessionaires who will manufacture and sell all manner of useful articles, from glassware to newspapers, and ginger beer to cigarettes.

Passing from an inspection of these the visitor will find three complete villages, each with its complement of 200 to 500 men, women and children. Finally he will come to the stadium and discover the greatest sports grounds in the world, a huge oval, surrounded by tier upon tier of seats, with a cinder path and a cycle track, three laps to the mile, seats for 68,000 persons, and standing room for nearly 40,000 more.

In the construction of this great city the builders used, in less than a twelve-month, 75,000 tons of steel, 800 tons a day of Thames ballast, 18,000 tons of plaster and 60,000 square yards of fireproof slabs. As he tramps from building to building along the three miles of main road and the thirty-miles of garden paths and smaller avenues, or rests upon one of the 10,000 chairs and 13,000 garden seats, the visitor will gain a further impression of the immense labor which has gone to the making of the exhibition. He will understand the reason for the issue of 15,000 workmen's passes during every day of the last busy months.

Should the idea of fire enter his mind, he will be comforted by the thought of sixty fire hydrants in the buildings and forty in the grounds, each with a head of 200 feet of water and four chemical fire engines, 200 hand-extinguishers, and 200 aerators.

Water will enter largely into the scheme of the exhibition. The lagoons and canals, a mile and a half in length, will require 4,000,000 gallons to flood them to a depth of three feet in order that a fleet of ten electric launches and twenty swan boats may carry visitors through the Court of Honor and the Elite Gardens. The various sections is estimated at $25,000,000 to $30,000,000, and the French ceramic exhibit includes one collection alone valued at $1,200,000.

Who will pay for it all? If the weather is propitious, Imre Kiraly estimates an attendance at one shilling a head of at least 30,000,000 persons.

Each of these may be expected to pay something more toward the cost by the purchase of food and drink, by payment at the entrance gates of the Stadium and the many exciting and amusing "side shows."

One of the most interesting features of the exhibition, and one which Americans are sure to appreciate, is the Irish village. This contains the house in which President McKinley's ancestors were born, the stones having been brought over from the north of Ireland.

PROOF OF MAN'S DESCENT.

From Apes, in Teeth Furnished With:

Teeth vary in form and number more than any other animal organ. An elephant, for instance, has usually only four teeth in use, besides tusks. But they are big enough to make up in size what they lack in number. The teeth of the elephant tribe are so different from those of other animals that, when a fossil is dug up, the geologist can at once determine to what race of creatures it belonged, and is able to reconstruct the gigantic mastodon, or hairy mammoth, in whose jaw it originally grew.

The sharp tusks of the crocodile and all flesh-eating lizards need only to be seen once to be easily identified afterwards. Some reptiles are toothless. A frog may easily be distinguished from a toad from the fact that the latter has no teeth, while the former has teeth in the upper jaw, but none in the lower.

As for monkeys, it is one more proof, according to scientists, of the descent of man from these animals that all monkeys and apes have thirty-two teeth, arranged very similarly to our own.

Penetrates And Heals.

When you buy Smith's White Liniment you secure the most penetrating and healing remedy on the market for sprains, swelling, neuralgia, inflammation, lameness, and all aches and pains. Every drop filled with utmost curative power and the remedy never fails to cure promptly and thoroughly. In big bottles, only 25c., at Wade's Drug Store.

Often the father of a bride who gives her away would be willing to throw in a mother-in-law for good measure.

If you had taken two of Carter's Little Liver Pills before retiring you would not have had that coated tongue or bad taste in the mouth this morning. Keep a vial with you for occasional use.

Romance makes a less list for the tall timber when a man begins to refer to his wife as the "old woman."

By looking wise and keeping his mouth shut, many a man has passed through life as the real thing.

Prescription For Curing Hiccups and Heartburn.

Nothing irritates such magical relief as slowly sipping a few drops of Nervilene, the patented water. Nervilene cures the conditions that cause the hiccups, just as it does all other disorders of the stomach and bowels.

For stomach pains, bloating, indigestion and cramps nothing can equal the sure cure of Polson's Nervilene.

KAISER WITNESSES A PAGEANT

TWELFTH CENTURY CASTLE RESTORED BY THE KAISER.

Berlin, June 4.—The Kaiser, who was accompanied by the kaiserin, took part last week, in spite of pitiless rain, in a splendid pageant at the ancient castle, the Hohenzollerns, which his majesty has had rebuilt and restored at a cost of $450,000.

The emperor drove to the castle where he was received by a guard of honor. After unveling the Hohenzollern coat-of-arms, which he had emblazoned above the principal gate, his majesty retired to a tent pitched just outside the building, and there awaited the arrival of a herald, who announced the approach of the Sieben Freien, the three brothers to whom the Hohenzollerns belonged in 1530, and their little army of followers. As soon as the messenger returned with permission to enter the picturesque procession issued from the green forest, filed past his majesty and marched straight into the castle, to take up military positions in the fighting galleries on the battlements and at the embrasures. The mail-clad knights wore genuine armor taken from a museum, while the pretences of the men-at-arms were historically correct in every detail, as also were the weapons used. The emperor himself originally intended to don armor and lead the cavalcade in person.

First came the three brothers in full armor, immense blue and white plumes on their helmets, strong lances and their little army of followers.

As soon as the messenger returned,

HAVE MANY NOVELTIES ANOTHER AMERICAN CLUB IN LONDON.

Guides to Shopping and Show the City and Everyone of Its Features.

London, June 4.—Grosvenor Court, Mayfair, is the home of London's latest club—the Anglo-American—which will be opened in a few days by the Countess of Stratford.

Many society leaders have identified themselves with the club, the list of vice-presidents including the Marchioness of Dufferin and Ava, the Countess of Seaford, Lady Duff Gordon, Viscountess Franklin, Viscountess Helmsley, Lady Abinger and others. A president has not yet been appointed.

Receptions will be given during the month, "at homes" will be organized for the members, bridge tournaments will be arranged, while an information department and a woman guides bureau have been installed. For the latter 100 guides have been engaged, and they will assist the American visitors on their shopping tours and sightseeing expeditions. A number of "army men" will also act in a similar capacity for the gentlemen members of the club.

Suites of rooms will be let to members, who may arrange their own private "at homes," and a special feature will be the provision of little papers after the opera and theaters. The information department will undertake the arrangement of railway trips, motor excursions, in river trips, etc.

The premises are well appointed, the reception rooms on the first floor com-

CURE BY CUTICURA AT CITY MISSION

Young Woman Found in Awful Condition with Scabies—Body a Mass of Sores from Scratching—Tried Many Remedies for Seven Weeks —Result Was Discouraging, But

ITCHING TORTURES YIELDED TO CUTICURA

"While I was doing missionary work in the lower portion of several cities I found myself compelled to know a little of the efficacy of a few medicines and after a while I found that a little knowledge of Cuticura was about all I needed. One of the very bad cases I had to treat was that of a young woman who had come to us not only broken in spirit but in a most awful condition physically. Our doctor examined her and told us that she had scabies (the itch), impetigo, ringworm, etc., brought on from exposure and the effects of her ragged-edged life. Her poor body was a mass of sores from scratching and she was not able to retain solid food, but tried many things. A cold tonic was prescribed and bathed with a rubbing of lard and sulphur. We worked hard for seven weeks and you can imagine how discouraged we were when, after all that time, we could see no signs of improvement. One day I happened to see a Cuticura advertisement telling how a little baby had been cured of a bad case of skin eruption, and although I had but 97 cents (four shillings) with me, bought a bottle of Cuticura Resin. When I reached home I bathed our patient well and gave her a full dose of the Resin. She slept that night without a scratch. The next day she had been with us and the next day I located the price of a box of Cuticura Ointment. I am not exaggerating when I say that in exactly five weeks this young woman was well enough for a position to bring in enough to work and full of ambition. In another month she left the home, strong and well. Laura Jane Bates, 85 Fifth Ave., New York, N. Y., U. S. A., Mar. 11, '07.

pris a lounge, drawing, reading, writing and smoking rooms, while the dining room—which is on the sixth floor—has seating accommodation for 200 persons. The bedrooms, of which there are ninety, are fitted with cabinetwork. A distinguished hostess will preside at receptions throughout the season.

A unique attraction is the club's country house, this is Ashdown Park, a beautiful residence among the Surrey hills, where in the extensive grounds members may play golf, lawn tennis, etc. Carriages and motor cars are also provided for their use.

Jumper Gown Of Linen Or Voile.

Particulars regarding examinations, entrance requirements, courses of study, fees, etc., can be obtained on application to

The illustration shows a simple and smart little gown for summer wear, the design being suitable for linen, voile or such fabrics. The model was of pale bluish gray cotton voile, the panel in front being cut in one with the jumper. Owing to malformations of white filet lace, embellished with a little hand embroidery in black, was used on the corsage and the band of the waist, which outlined the garment and edged the open sleeves, were embroidered in black dots. The jumper was worn over a chemise and above of tucked white batiste, and the yoke and collar were of dotted filet net.

Notes From Odessa.

Odessa, June 5.—The Moscow football team drove to Odessa on Saturday afternoon, and played a friendly game. A company of twelve men repairing the Bell telephone.
