ON SIGNAL WATCH.

Experience That Makes a Sailor's Heart Hot. It is customary for a man-of-war to fire a national salute (21 guns) whenever she enters a foreign port, says a writer in St. Nicholas. The port acknowledges the salute, gun for gun. This time in entering Yeddo Bay we were requested to waive the salute, probably because we come so often it is like one of the family coming home to dinner.

The emperor's birthday was so very similar to 364 other festivals annually celebrated in Tokio that it is not worth chronicling. I saw their royal highnesses the emperor and the empress, but so have millions of others, and the pageant impressed me less than a little affair of my own that subsequently occurred. I was on signal watch on the after bridge; an ordnance officer four feet away stood looking shoreward through his binoculars as the admiral's barge proper straight for the ship. At the proper moment he commanded, "Fugler, call the guard." Then all the red tape required to get an admiral aboard was unwound. This accomplished Lieutenant Dorn came at me fairly leaping at the mouth, "What are you doing on the bridge?" he roared.

"I am on signal watch, sir." "Then why did you not report the admiral's launch coming?" "Because you saw it, sir." "Because I saw it! What right have you to say I saw it?" "I saw you looking at it through your glasses, sir." "You don't know that I was looking at the admiral's barge; you have no right even to think what I am looking at. Your duty was to report to me what you saw coming toward the ship. Failing to do so, you shall answer on Saturday morning. I put you down for carelessness, disobedience, neglect of duty and insolence."

I swallowed my heart and my rage, as I have done many a time and oft since I have worn this uniform, and, in fancy, saw myself go down into the brig for thirty days. The brig means handcuffs or ankle irons, a diet of two hardtacks and a tumbler of water three times a day, with full rations every fifth day. I have seen men come out of the brig looking like the end of a forty days' fast in a monastery. I have seen men in for three days wearing double irons. They looked like pirates. Their crime was smoking out of hours. To return to my own case: On Friday night Lieutenant Dorn sent for me and gave me a kindly talk, winding up with the promise that he would make a sailor out of me. I was on the shore list for the next morning, but for reasons of my own tarried on the ship. This same officer, noticing me, asked why I was there. I answered: "Broke, sir!"

He told me to go to his room and where to find it, which I went to take, get ashore as quickly as possible, and not to forget to return it on the next day.

Charlemagne Tower. Pittsburgh Dispatch. At the Philadelphia club a Philadelphia advertiser to Charlemagne Tower's great popularity with the Kaiser and the German court. "It is not surprising," he said, "Mr. Tower has a pretty wife. My sister, who lives in Berlin, tells me the Kaiser, inviting Mr. Tower to dine with him informally, called him in the invitation the most engaged man in Berlin. Mr. Tower in his reply said: 'The most engaged man in Berlin will be too happy to dine with the most engaging one.'"

Campbell Bros', Summer Hats. Are the ones that have made the big hit.

People Of The Rocks. Montreal Witness. There is in the northern part of Madagascar the most remarkable natural fortress in the world. It is occupied by a wild tribe who call themselves the People of the Rocks. The fortress is a precipitous rock, over a thousand feet high and eight square miles in area. Its sides are so steep that it cannot be climbed without artificial means. Within it is hollow, and the only entrance is by a subterranean passage.

Jimmie's Way. New York Life. A little pecuniary transaction had taken place between Jimmie and his grandfather. "You might as well just give me the other nickel," Jimmie said. "Minnie'll only waste it. She puts her money in the bank right away. I buy things with mine."

One of Lanark's most familiar figures, James Spence, passed away, on Monday, after a short illness. Deceased had been troubled with his heart since James Spence was born August 29th, 1861, at Pater's Bridge, Yorkshire, England. He came to Canada twenty-six years ago.

The death occurred at Brockville on Wednesday of Capt. Stephen Griffin, Alexandria Bay. Recently Capt. Griffin stumbled and fell on the sidewalk in his native village, receiving an injury to one elbow. Nothing was thought of at the time, but complications developed requiring his removal to Brockville for treatment. Finally blood poisoning set in and he passed away suddenly yesterday. Captain Griffin was seventy-three years of age.

On Monday the sad intelligence came of the sudden death of Mrs. O. McLenaghan, at McDonald's Corners. One of her boys was awakened by his mother's moans, and with the assistance of his little brother they summoned the neighbors, who procured medical assistance, but it proved of no avail, as she passed away a few hours afterwards.

Point Road Budget. Point Road, June 11.—The dry weather is making the farmers think, as crops were never in a more serious condition than at present. The farmers are afraid to do any planting as it is useless unless it rains, as the seed will not sprout.

H. H. Reynolds had his majority at No. 1 poll, Barriefield, which is an unusual thing for a Brit. The Editor's Table.

"The Romance of the Reaper" by Herbert N. Casson; Doubleday, Page & Co., New York, 184 pages, $1. Here is presented in attractive form the first inside history of the growth for eighty years of one of the greatest American businesses, the manufacture of agricultural machinery. It reads more like a tale of "The Arabian Nights" than the detail of practical activities. It is also informing and reassuring in its portrayal of the vast benefits derived by nations from the use of labor-saving machines. There is an inspiration for every recruit of industry in this exposition of the results of enterprise.

"Croyan Hall, The Mail of the Mass, A Tale of Rotterdam," by Rev. Palmer Baker; William Briggs, Toronto, 100 pages. A very welcome addition to the best class of literature and a promising advent into the field. These are but preliminary compositions; a more substantial work is promised.

THE PARAGRAPH PULPIT Unitarian. REV. C. W. CASSON.

Where To Find God. Would you find God? You will find Him in the great movements of the present time—in the endeavors made by men to establish justice and realize brotherhood and promote peace. You may find traces of God in the past, but God Himself you will only find in the present. Sinai will sound its echo, but here and now there sounds the Voice. In the sacred books of the field of nature and on every heart of man God writes. Move not a step from where you stand. Look not a single foot away or a single moment behind. God is here—the living, moving, inspiring, eternal God!

Address, Rev. C. W. Casson, at 25 Beaton street, Boston, Mass., for the literature.

What is Going On In The Business World.

The Montreal street railway has to issue $1,000,000 more stock at 125 to shareholders of record on June 30th. Canada is the richest mineral country in the world. More than $100,000,000 have already been invested in Canadian mines, but the work of development is still in its infancy.

It is rumored that the wages of the employes of the United States Steel Corporation will be cut. The reduction is said to be based on the cutting of steel prices, which gives an excuse for this action.

The Chalk government has accepted the proposal made by a French concern to construct the harbor works at Valparaiso. The work will begin this year and be completed in 1913. The improvements will cost in the neighborhood of $20,000,000.
