

EAT ORANGES

IF YOU WANT TO KEEP WELL

Careful tests have proved beyond question that orange juice has clearly defined medicinal virtues. Those who suffer with indigestion are compelled to diet—and that after eating oranges regularly for breakfast there is no distress, no palpitation.

Where there was a tendency towards constipation, the eating of oranges regulated the bowels.

In skin troubles, those who began the morning meal with an orange were noticeably improved.

There is, however, a quicker way to get better results. This is to take one or two "Fruit-a-tives" tablets at bedtime in addition to the juice of an orange before breakfast the next morning. "Fruit-a-tives" are the juices of oranges, apples, figs and prunes in which the medicinal action is many times intensified by the special way of combining them. Valuable tonics are then added.

Take the juice of an orange before breakfast—take "Fruit-a-tives" at night—and you will quickly be rid of indigestion, stomach troubles, constipation and biliousness. "Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c a box—for $2.50. Sent on receipt of price by "Fruit-a-tives" Limited, Ottawa.

Glendower Notes. Glendower, June 19.—Many Timmerman and son, Daniel, left, last Tuesday, for Cobalt. James Wilson has his collar nearly completed. A. and G. Timmerman are repairing A. Hoppins' barn. A. Letman has returned home from New Ontario. Conductor Young and Mr. Cook, Kingston, are out on a fishing excursion. James Campbell is at J. Wilson's. Miss G. Timmerman is visiting at Hartington.

Desmond Wedding Reception. Desmond, June 19.—On Thursday evening, June 11th, a very enjoyable evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Quinn, the occasion being a reception in honor of their son, Charles, and his bride, on their return from their wedding trip. The house and lawn were decorated with flowers, flags and evergreens. The newly wedded couple were the recipients of many beautiful presents, among them being a lovely mantle clock, presented to the bride by the choir, as a slight token of their appreciation in the Methodist church here. The young couple will take up their residence in Lansdowne.

Fair View Notes. Fair View, June 22.—Rain is needed in this vicinity. Strawberry picking is the order of the day; the crop will be light if we do not get rain. Ettie McDonald at A. D. Snider's, on Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. S. Loucks attended the circus on Thursday, and a number of others also. Mrs. John McKeown, of British Columbia, is visiting her sisters, Mrs. Vanalstine, Bert Vanalstine on Saturday visited his aunt and father and mother. Robert Hudson is digging his cellar for his new house. John Milling is working with his stone crusher near Odessa. A. D. Snider is laid up with a carbuncle. Road work continues on Monday. Stanley Fife is pathmaster.

Tidings From Kepler. Kepler, June 18.—Sherman Powley has sold his farm to Herbert E. Johnston. Sigmund Bues is getting along well with his new house. William A. Lawson, Rochester, N.Y., is visiting at his parents'. A "young farmer" has taken up his abode at Herbert Buck's. A wee baby girl has come to stay at J. Smith's. Mrs. Harry Knapp and daughter are spending a few days at her father's. Miss Viola Lawson and Mrs. Townsend attended the W. M. S. meeting in Sydenham Street Methodist church, Kingston, last week. Miss Mabel Orser, visiting in the city has returned home. Mrs. Sydney Gunn, Salses, N.S., at Stanard Gunn, Draper, Tamworth, and Mrs. Freeman, Perth Road, at Ambrose Orser's. T. F. Lawrence and wife at G. Lawson's. Miss Libbie Sharpe and J. Smith have been visiting friends in Ernestown.

Harlowe Happenings. Harlowe, June 19.—Mr. and Mrs. J. Black, Ardoe, are visiting friends in this vicinity. Mr. Smith and daughter, Mrs. Hamilton, Ardoe, visited his daughter, Mrs. J. Gray, on Monday last. Miss N. Critchley has returned to Kingston. J. Clancy, Dead Creek, visited at G. Bott's on Saturday last. N. Mills spent Sunday last at his father's at Flinton. G. Bradshaw and Mrs. G. Palmator, and Master Vernon Palmator, Twed, visited this week at Mrs. A. Palmator's. "Coot Nook," Miss Bell spent Saturday and Sunday last at S. Parry's. Miss P. F. Taylor and pupils will hold a picnic at Gull Lake on the 27th. F. Bishop spent Sunday at his uncle's, J. Bishop's, Arden. J. Thompson intends to move to Northbrooke next fall on a farm he has purchased. His son, Elijah, Webbwood, will move on his father's farm.

Pine Hill Personal. Pine Hill, June 19.—G. King is laying out his road grant of $300 on the road here. Mrs. Alexander Dopkins, Enterprise, is spending a week with

NEWS OF NEIGHBORS

WHAT WHIG CORRESPONDENTS TELL US

The Tidings From Various Points in Eastern Ontario—What People Are Doing And What They Are Saying.

Glendower Notes. Glendower, June 19.—Many Timmerman and son, Daniel, left, last Tuesday, for Cobalt. James Wilson has his collar nearly completed. A. and G. Timmerman are repairing A. Hoppins' barn. A. Letman has returned home from New Ontario. Conductor Young and Mr. Cook, Kingston, are out on a fishing excursion. James Campbell is at J. Wilson's. Miss G. Timmerman is visiting at Hartington.

Desmond Wedding Reception. Desmond, June 19.—On Thursday evening, June 11th, a very enjoyable evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Quinn, the occasion being a reception in honor of their son, Charles, and his bride, on their return from their wedding trip. The house and lawn were decorated with flowers, flags and evergreens. The newly wedded couple were the recipients of many beautiful presents, among them being a lovely mantle clock, presented to the bride by the choir, as a slight token of their appreciation in the Methodist church here. The young couple will take up their residence in Lansdowne.

Fair View Notes. Fair View, June 22.—Rain is needed in this vicinity. Strawberry picking is the order of the day; the crop will be light if we do not get rain. Ettie McDonald at A. D. Snider's, on Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. S. Loucks attended the circus on Thursday, and a number of others also. Mrs. John McKeown, of British Columbia, is visiting her sisters, Mrs. Vanalstine, Bert Vanalstine on Saturday visited his aunt and father and mother. Robert Hudson is digging his cellar for his new house. John Milling is working with his stone crusher near Odessa. A. D. Snider is laid up with a carbuncle. Road work continues on Monday. Stanley Fife is pathmaster.

Tidings From Kepler. Kepler, June 18.—Sherman Powley has sold his farm to Herbert E. Johnston. Sigmund Bues is getting along well with his new house. William A. Lawson, Rochester, N.Y., is visiting at his parents'. A "young farmer" has taken up his abode at Herbert Buck's. A wee baby girl has come to stay at J. Smith's. Mrs. Harry Knapp and daughter are spending a few days at her father's. Miss Viola Lawson and Mrs. Townsend attended the W. M. S. meeting in Sydenham Street Methodist church, Kingston, last week. Miss Mabel Orser, visiting in the city has returned home. Mrs. Sydney Gunn, Salses, N.S., at Stanard Gunn, Draper, Tamworth, and Mrs. Freeman, Perth Road, at Ambrose Orser's. T. F. Lawrence and wife at G. Lawson's. Miss Libbie Sharpe and J. Smith have been visiting friends in Ernestown.

Harlowe Happenings. Harlowe, June 19.—Mr. and Mrs. J. Black, Ardoe, are visiting friends in this vicinity. Mr. Smith and daughter, Mrs. Hamilton, Ardoe, visited his daughter, Mrs. J. Gray, on Monday last. Miss N. Critchley has returned to Kingston. J. Clancy, Dead Creek, visited at G. Bott's on Saturday last. N. Mills spent Sunday last at his father's at Flinton. G. Bradshaw and Mrs. G. Palmator, and Master Vernon Palmator, Twed, visited this week at Mrs. A. Palmator's. "Coot Nook," Miss Bell spent Saturday and Sunday last at S. Parry's. Miss P. F. Taylor and pupils will hold a picnic at Gull Lake on the 27th. F. Bishop spent Sunday at his uncle's, J. Bishop's, Arden. J. Thompson intends to move to Northbrooke next fall on a farm he has purchased. His son, Elijah, Webbwood, will move on his father's farm.

Pine Hill Personal. Pine Hill, June 19.—G. King is laying out his road grant of $300 on the road here. Mrs. Alexander Dopkins, Enterprise, is spending a week with

CANADA'S NARROW ESCAPE

Might Have Been Republic if Fenian Plans Had Succeeded.

If in 1868 the Fenians had acted on the advice of William Wilkerson and attacked Manitoba, instead of attacking from St. Alban's, Vermont, Canada might now have been in their possession. Western Canada, at least, would have been theirs. This is the firm opinion of former Police Justice Thomas S. King of Buffalo.

"But for the stubbornness of Gen. John O'Neill, the Fenian leader, and the majority of his associates in the Fenian senate," declared Justice King, "Manitoba would, almost beyond the possibility of a doubt, have become the realization of that Utopian dream, an Irish republic."

"I've a scheme which beats O'Neill's pet idea all hollow, and is sure to win," said Wilkerson to King, then Associated Press correspondent in Buffalo. "It's to assemble all the Fenians here, St. Paul, and from there march on to Winnipeg and take that place, and the capture of the rest of Manitoba will be easy. But before the Fenians are concentrated at St. Paul, I want you to go to the Riel, the revolutionist who is itching for trouble, and give him $10,000, which I will hand you. Have Riel promise his direct co-operation in the taking of Winnipeg, and when that is done issue bonds in the name of the new Irish republic, as well as his own. Send the bonds to me and I will dispose of them to the end that the new republic will be well financed, so that it will have no difficulty in finding the necessary arms and wherewithal to defend itself."

"Saturated with the impression that everybody interested in the success of the Fenian movement must look upon his project with eyes the same as his own, Wilkerson proceeded to the room where the Fenian senate was in session. He tapped lightly, Frank Gallagher answering the call. When the door was opened Gen. O'Neill was seen at the head of the table. Wilkerson took hold of Gallagher and pulled him out into the hall and into the corner where I stood. Then he told him of his scheme, just as he had told me. Gallagher also thought well of it, and went back into the conference to lay before those about the table. Shortly after Wilkerson was invited in.

"There was a long debate. O'Neill didn't seem to like the plan. In vain did Wilkerson dilate upon his success. He said that St. Paul was but a hundred miles from Winnipeg, and the Fenian forces could march there without any undue fatigue.

"On the other hand, the British regulars there were no closer than Toronto, and would have to march the whole of that long, weary distance, as the United States would not permit any armed body of men to pass through its territory, even if they were aboard the cars. When they did arrive at Winnipeg they would be worn out by their long hike, and would be in no condition to cope with the fresh troops of the Fenians. The latter, in a large measure, were as good soldiers as the British regulars, as many of them had served in either the Union or Confederate armies in the civil war, ended but two years before.

"Wilkerson asserted that he would furnish the $10,000, and had a man who he knew could secure the co-operation of Riel, telling them about me. Many, if not all, know me, and wanted by opinion. I acceded what Wilkerson said, and did Gallagher.

"Some of them doubted the practicability of disposing of bonds issued by Riel, so that at last the determined opposition of O'Neill won, and Wilkerson's proposal was defeated.

Mr. Boyle was born in Greenock, Scotland, in 1842 and came to this country with his father at the age of 14 years. He worked his way up, teaching school near Quebec for two years and was principal of Flora public school for another ten years. About 1880 he opened a book store on Yonge street, Toronto, and devoted all his spare moments to archaeology. He founded the collection which formed the nucleus of the present Provincial Museum in Toronto, which is at present the largest and best of its kind in Canada and is a monument to the industry, knowledge and public spirit of its founder and first curator.

In recognition of his deep interest in the Iroquois race he was on the Queen's birthday, 1893, formally adopted by them as a "full-blooded" Indian Mohawk of the turtle lozenge and the name bestowed on him was Ri-ri-wa-no-neh, which signifies one appointed to do intertribal business. In 1894 he, in company with two distinguished scientists from Iceland, investigated the ancient dwelling sites along the west of the Charles river, Massachusetts. His services on this occasion were spoken of very highly by the late Horatio Hale, F.R.S.C. For many years Mr. Boyle has been the official correspondent in Canada of the Anthropological Institute, of Great Britain and Ireland, and his annual report as curator of the Provincial Museum is eagerly sought for by scientific men the world over.

Mr. Boyle was born in Greenock, Scotland, in 1842 and came to this country with his father at the age of 14 years. He worked his way up, teaching school near Quebec for two years and was principal of Flora public school for another ten years. About 1880 he opened a book store on Yonge street, Toronto, and devoted all his spare moments to archaeology. He founded the collection which formed the nucleus of the present Provincial Museum in Toronto, which is at present the largest and best of its kind in Canada and is a monument to the industry, knowledge and public spirit of its founder and first curator.

In recognition of his deep interest in the Iroquois race he was on the Queen's birthday, 1893, formally adopted by them as a "full-blooded" Indian Mohawk of the turtle lozenge and the name bestowed on him was Ri-ri-wa-no-neh, which signifies one appointed to do intertribal business. In 1894 he, in company with two distinguished scientists from Iceland, investigated the ancient dwelling sites along the west of the Charles river, Massachusetts. His services on this occasion were spoken of very highly by the late Horatio Hale, F.R.S.C. For many years Mr. Boyle has been the official correspondent in Canada of the Anthropological Institute, of Great Britain and Ireland, and his annual report as curator of the Provincial Museum is eagerly sought for by scientific men the world over.

Mr. Boyle was born in Greenock, Scotland, in 1842 and came to this country with his father at the age of 14 years. He worked his way up, teaching school near Quebec for two years and was principal of Flora public school for another ten years. About 1880 he opened a book store on Yonge street, Toronto, and devoted all his spare moments to archaeology. He founded the collection which formed the nucleus of the present Provincial Museum in Toronto, which is at present the largest and best of its kind in Canada and is a monument to the industry, knowledge and public spirit of its founder and first curator.

In recognition of his deep interest in the Iroquois race he was on the Queen's birthday, 1893, formally adopted by them as a "full-blooded" Indian Mohawk of the turtle lozenge and the name bestowed on him was Ri-ri-wa-no-neh, which signifies one appointed to do intertribal business. In 1894 he, in company with two distinguished scientists from Iceland, investigated the ancient dwelling sites along the west of the Charles river, Massachusetts. His services on this occasion were spoken of very highly by the late Horatio Hale, F.R.S.C. For many years Mr. Boyle has been the official correspondent in Canada of the Anthropological Institute, of Great Britain and Ireland, and his annual report as curator of the Provincial Museum is eagerly sought for by scientific men the world over.

Mr. Boyle was born in Greenock, Scotland, in 1842 and came to this country with his father at the age of 14 years. He worked his way up, teaching school near Quebec for two years and was principal of Flora public school for another ten years. About 1880 he opened a book store on Yonge street, Toronto, and devoted all his spare moments to archaeology. He founded the collection which formed the nucleus of the present Provincial Museum in Toronto, which is at present the largest and best of its kind in Canada and is a monument to the industry, knowledge and public spirit of its founder and first curator.

In recognition of his deep interest in the Iroquois race he was on the Queen's birthday, 1893, formally adopted by them as a "full-blooded" Indian Mohawk of the turtle lozenge and the name bestowed on him was Ri-ri-wa-no-neh, which signifies one appointed to do intertribal business. In 1894 he, in company with two distinguished scientists from Iceland, investigated the ancient dwelling sites along the west of the Charles river, Massachusetts. His services on this occasion were spoken of very highly by the late Horatio Hale, F.R.S.C. For many years Mr. Boyle has been the official correspondent in Canada of the Anthropological Institute, of Great Britain and Ireland, and his annual report as curator of the Provincial Museum is eagerly sought for by scientific men the world over.

Mr. Boyle was born in Greenock, Scotland, in 1842 and came to this country with his father at the age of 14 years. He worked his way up, teaching school near Quebec for two years and was principal of Flora public school for another ten years. About 1880 he opened a book store on Yonge street, Toronto, and devoted all his spare moments to archaeology. He founded the collection which formed the nucleus of the present Provincial Museum in Toronto, which is at present the largest and best of its kind in Canada and is a monument to the industry, knowledge and public spirit of its founder and first curator.

In recognition of his deep interest in the Iroquois race he was on the Queen's birthday, 1893, formally adopted by them as a "full-blooded" Indian Mohawk of the turtle lozenge and the name bestowed on him was Ri-ri-wa-no-neh, which signifies one appointed to do intertribal business. In 1894 he, in company with two distinguished scientists from Iceland, investigated the ancient dwelling sites along the west of the Charles river, Massachusetts. His services on this occasion were spoken of very highly by the late Horatio Hale, F.R.S.C. For many years Mr. Boyle has been the official correspondent in Canada of the Anthropological Institute, of Great Britain and Ireland, and his annual report as curator of the Provincial Museum is eagerly sought for by scientific men the world over.

Mr. Boyle was born in Greenock, Scotland, in 1842 and came to this country with his father at the age of 14 years. He worked his way up, teaching school near Quebec for two years and was principal of Flora public school for another ten years. About 1880 he opened a book store on Yonge street, Toronto, and devoted all his spare moments to archaeology. He founded the collection which formed the nucleus of the present Provincial Museum in Toronto, which is at present the largest and best of its kind in Canada and is a monument to the industry, knowledge and public spirit of its founder and first curator.

In recognition of his deep interest in the Iroquois race he was on the Queen's birthday, 1893, formally adopted by them as a "full-blooded" Indian Mohawk of the turtle lozenge and the name bestowed on him was Ri-ri-wa-no-neh, which signifies one appointed to do intertribal business. In 1894 he, in company with two distinguished scientists from Iceland, investigated the ancient dwelling sites along the west of the Charles river, Massachusetts. His services on this occasion were spoken of very highly by the late Horatio Hale, F.R.S.C. For many years Mr. Boyle has been the official correspondent in Canada of the Anthropological Institute, of Great Britain and Ireland, and his annual report as curator of the Provincial Museum is eagerly sought for by scientific men the world over.

Mr. Boyle was born in Greenock, Scotland, in 1842 and came to this country with his father at the age of 14 years. He worked his way up, teaching school near Quebec for two years and was principal of Flora public school for another ten years. About 1880 he opened a book store on Yonge street, Toronto, and devoted all his spare moments to archaeology. He founded the collection which formed the nucleus of the present Provincial Museum in Toronto, which is at present the largest and best of its kind in Canada and is a monument to the industry, knowledge and public spirit of its founder and first curator.

In recognition of his deep interest in the Iroquois race he was on the Queen's birthday, 1893, formally adopted by them as a "full-blooded" Indian Mohawk of the turtle lozenge and the name bestowed on him was Ri-ri-wa-no-neh, which signifies one appointed to do intertribal business. In 1894 he, in company with two distinguished scientists from Iceland, investigated the ancient dwelling sites along the west of the Charles river, Massachusetts. His services on this occasion were spoken of very highly by the late Horatio Hale, F.R.S.C. For many years Mr. Boyle has been the official correspondent in Canada of the Anthropological Institute, of Great Britain and Ireland, and his annual report as curator of the Provincial Museum is eagerly sought for by scientific men the world over.

Mr. Boyle was born in Greenock, Scotland, in 1842 and came to this country with his father at the age of 14 years. He worked his way up, teaching school near Quebec for two years and was principal of Flora public school for another ten years. About 1880 he opened a book store on Yonge street, Toronto, and devoted all his spare moments to archaeology. He founded the collection which formed the nucleus of the present Provincial Museum in Toronto, which is at present the largest and best of its kind in Canada and is a monument to the industry, knowledge and public spirit of its founder and first curator.

In recognition of his deep interest in the Iroquois race he was on the Queen's birthday, 1893, formally adopted by them as a "full-blooded" Indian Mohawk of the turtle lozenge and the name bestowed on him was Ri-ri-wa-no-neh, which signifies one appointed to do intertribal business. In 1894 he, in company with two distinguished scientists from Iceland, investigated the ancient dwelling sites along the west of the Charles river, Massachusetts. His services on this occasion were spoken of very highly by the late Horatio Hale, F.R.S.C. For many years Mr. Boyle has been the official correspondent in Canada of the Anthropological Institute, of Great Britain and Ireland, and his annual report as curator of the Provincial Museum is eagerly sought for by scientific men the world over.

Mr. Boyle was born in Greenock, Scotland, in 1842 and came to this country with his father at the age of 14 years. He worked his way up, teaching school near Quebec for two years and was principal of Flora public school for another ten years. About 1880 he opened a book store on Yonge street, Toronto, and devoted all his spare moments to archaeology. He founded the collection which formed the nucleus of the present Provincial Museum in Toronto, which is at present the largest and best of its kind in Canada and is a monument to the industry, knowledge and public spirit of its founder and first curator.

In recognition of his deep interest in the Iroquois race he was on the Queen's birthday, 1893, formally adopted by them as a "full-blooded" Indian Mohawk of the turtle lozenge and the name bestowed on him was Ri-ri-wa-no-neh, which signifies one appointed to do intertribal business. In 1894 he, in company with two distinguished scientists from Iceland, investigated the ancient dwelling sites along the west of the Charles river, Massachusetts. His services on this occasion were spoken of very highly by the late Horatio Hale, F.R.S.C. For many years Mr. Boyle has been the official correspondent in Canada of the Anthropological Institute, of Great Britain and Ireland, and his annual report as curator of the Provincial Museum is eagerly sought for by scientific men the world over.

Mr. Boyle was born in Greenock, Scotland, in 1842 and came to this country with his father at the age of 14 years. He worked his way up, teaching school near Quebec for two years and was principal of Flora public school for another ten years. About 1880 he opened a book store on Yonge street, Toronto, and devoted all his spare moments to archaeology. He founded the collection which formed the nucleus of the present Provincial Museum in Toronto, which is at present the largest and best of its kind in Canada and is a monument to the industry, knowledge and public spirit of its founder and first curator.

In recognition of his deep interest in the Iroquois race he was on the Queen's birthday, 1893, formally adopted by them as a "full-blooded" Indian Mohawk of the turtle lozenge and the name bestowed on him was Ri-ri-wa-no-neh, which signifies one appointed to do intertribal business. In 1894 he, in company with two distinguished scientists from Iceland, investigated the ancient dwelling sites along the west of the Charles river, Massachusetts. His services on this occasion were spoken of very highly by the late Horatio Hale, F.R.S.C. For many years Mr. Boyle has been the official correspondent in Canada of the Anthropological Institute, of Great Britain and Ireland, and his annual report as curator of the Provincial Museum is eagerly sought for by scientific men the world over.

Mr. Boyle was born in Greenock, Scotland, in 1842 and came to this country with his father at the age of 14 years. He worked his way up, teaching school near Quebec for two years and was principal of Flora public school for another ten years. About 1880 he opened a book store on Yonge street, Toronto, and devoted all his spare moments to archaeology. He founded the collection which formed the nucleus of the present Provincial Museum in Toronto, which is at present the largest and best of its kind in Canada and is a monument to the industry, knowledge and public spirit of its founder and first curator.

In recognition of his deep interest in the Iroquois race he was on the Queen's birthday, 1893, formally adopted by them as a "full-blooded" Indian Mohawk of the turtle lozenge and the name bestowed on him was Ri-ri-wa-no-neh, which signifies one appointed to do intertribal business. In 1894 he, in company with two distinguished scientists from Iceland, investigated the ancient dwelling sites along the west of the Charles river, Massachusetts. His services on this occasion were spoken of very highly by the late Horatio Hale, F.R.S.C. For many years Mr. Boyle has been the official correspondent in Canada of the Anthropological Institute, of Great Britain and Ireland, and his annual report as curator of the Provincial Museum is eagerly sought for by scientific men the world over.

Mr. Boyle was born in Greenock, Scotland, in 1842 and came to this country with his father at the age of 14 years. He worked his way up, teaching school near Quebec for two years and was principal of Flora public school for another ten years. About 1880 he opened a book store on Yonge street, Toronto, and devoted all his spare moments to archaeology. He founded the collection which formed the nucleus of the present Provincial Museum in Toronto, which is at present the largest and best of its kind in Canada and is a monument to the industry, knowledge and public spirit of its founder and first curator.

In recognition of his deep interest in the Iroquois race he was on the Queen's birthday, 1893, formally adopted by them as a "full-blooded" Indian Mohawk of the turtle lozenge and the name bestowed on him was Ri-ri-wa-no-neh, which signifies one appointed to do intertribal business. In 1894 he, in company with two distinguished scientists from Iceland, investigated the ancient dwelling sites along the west of the Charles river, Massachusetts. His services on this occasion were spoken of very highly by the late Horatio Hale, F.R.S.C. For many years Mr. Boyle has been the official correspondent in Canada of the Anthropological Institute, of Great Britain and Ireland, and his annual report as curator of the Provincial Museum is eagerly sought for by scientific men the world over.

Mr. Boyle was born in Greenock, Scotland, in 1842 and came to this country with his father at the age of 14 years. He worked his way up, teaching school near Quebec for two years and was principal of Flora public school for another ten years. About 1880 he opened a book store on Yonge street, Toronto, and devoted all his spare moments to archaeology. He founded the collection which formed the nucleus of the present Provincial Museum in Toronto, which is at present the largest and best of its kind in Canada and is a monument to the industry, knowledge and public spirit of its founder and first curator.

In recognition of his deep interest in the Iroquois race he was on the Queen's birthday, 1893, formally adopted by them as a "full-blooded" Indian Mohawk of the turtle lozenge and the name bestowed on him was Ri-ri-wa-no-neh, which signifies one appointed to do intertribal business. In 1894 he, in company with two distinguished scientists from Iceland, investigated the ancient dwelling sites along the west of the Charles river, Massachusetts. His services on this occasion were spoken of very highly by the late Horatio Hale, F.R.S.C. For many years Mr. Boyle has been the official correspondent in Canada of the Anthropological Institute, of Great Britain and Ireland, and his annual report as curator of the Provincial Museum is eagerly sought for by scientific men the world over.

Mr. Boyle was born in Greenock, Scotland, in 1842 and came to this country with his father at the age of 14 years. He worked his way up, teaching school near Quebec for two years and was principal of Flora public school for another ten years. About 1880 he opened a book store on Yonge street, Toronto, and devoted all his spare moments to archaeology. He founded the collection which formed the nucleus of the present Provincial Museum in Toronto, which is at present the largest and best of its kind in Canada and is a monument to the industry, knowledge and public spirit of its founder and first curator.

In recognition of his deep interest in the Iroquois race he was on the Queen's birthday, 1893, formally adopted by them as a "full-blooded" Indian Mohawk of the turtle lozenge and the name bestowed on him was Ri-ri-wa-no-neh, which signifies one appointed to do intertribal business. In 1894 he, in company with two distinguished scientists from Iceland, investigated the ancient dwelling sites along the west of the Charles river, Massachusetts. His services on this occasion were spoken of very highly by the late Horatio Hale, F.R.S.C. For many years Mr. Boyle has been the official correspondent in Canada of the Anthropological Institute, of Great Britain and Ireland, and his annual report as curator of the Provincial Museum is eagerly sought for by scientific men the world over.

Mr. Boyle was born in Greenock, Scotland, in 1842 and came to this country with his father at the age of 14 years. He worked his way up, teaching school near Quebec for two years and was principal of Flora public school for another ten years. About 1880 he opened a book store on Yonge street, Toronto, and devoted all his spare moments to archaeology. He founded the collection which formed the nucleus of the present Provincial Museum in Toronto, which is at present the largest and best of its kind in Canada and is a monument to the industry, knowledge and public spirit of its founder and first curator.

In recognition of his deep interest in the Iroquois race he was on the Queen's birthday, 1893, formally adopted by them as a "full-blooded" Indian Mohawk of the turtle lozenge and the name bestowed on him was Ri-ri-wa-no-neh, which signifies one appointed to do intertribal business. In 1894 he, in company with two distinguished scientists from Iceland, investigated the ancient dwelling sites along the west of the Charles river, Massachusetts. His services on this occasion were spoken of very highly by the late Horatio Hale, F.R.S.C. For many years Mr. Boyle has been the official correspondent in Canada of the Anthropological Institute, of Great Britain and Ireland, and his annual report as curator of the Provincial Museum is eagerly sought for by scientific men the world over.

CORNPLANTER MEDAL

Given to David Boyle, Curator of Ontario's Provincial Museum.

The Cayuga (N.Y.) County Historical Society recently bestowed upon David Boyle, curator of the Provincial Museum of Ontario, the Cornplanter medal in recognition of his achievement in Iroquois Indian research. This honor has been conferred upon but two other persons distinguished for original researches connected with the Six Nations. A short time ago Mr. Boyle was made an honorary member of the Anthropological and Ethnological Society of Italy, one of the most exclusive of European scientific bodies.

Mr. Boyle was born in Greenock, Scotland, in 1842 and came to this country with his father at the age of 14 years. He worked his way up, teaching school near Quebec for two years and was principal of Flora public school for another ten years. About 1880 he opened a book store on Yonge street, Toronto, and devoted all his spare moments to archaeology. He founded the collection which formed the nucleus of the present Provincial Museum in Toronto, which is at present the largest and best of its kind in Canada and is a monument to the industry, knowledge and public spirit of its founder and first curator.

In recognition of his deep interest in the Iroquois race he was on the Queen's birthday, 1893, formally adopted by them as a "full-blooded" Indian Mohawk of the turtle lozenge and the name bestowed on him was Ri-ri-wa-no-neh, which signifies one appointed to do intertribal business. In 1894 he, in company with two distinguished scientists from Iceland, investigated the ancient dwelling sites along the west of the Charles river, Massachusetts. His services on this occasion were spoken of very highly by the late Horatio Hale, F.R.S.C. For many years Mr. Boyle has been the official correspondent in Canada of the Anthropological Institute, of Great Britain and Ireland, and his annual report as curator of the Provincial Museum is eagerly sought for by scientific men the world over.

Mr. Boyle was born in Greenock, Scotland, in 1842 and came to this country with his father at the age of 14 years. He worked his way up, teaching school near Quebec for two years and was principal of Flora public school for another ten years. About 1880 he opened a book store on Yonge street, Toronto, and devoted all his spare moments to archaeology. He founded the collection which formed the nucleus of the present Provincial Museum in Toronto, which is at present the largest and best of its kind in Canada and is a monument to the industry, knowledge and public spirit of its founder and first curator.

In recognition of his deep interest in the Iroquois race he was on the Queen's birthday, 1893, formally adopted by them as a "full-blooded" Indian Mohawk of the turtle lozenge and the name bestowed on him was Ri-ri-wa-no-neh, which signifies one appointed to do intertribal business. In 1894 he, in company with two distinguished scientists from Iceland, investigated the ancient dwelling sites along the west of the Charles river, Massachusetts. His services on this occasion were spoken of very highly by the late Horatio Hale, F.R.S.C. For many years Mr. Boyle has been the official correspondent in Canada of the Anthropological Institute, of Great Britain and Ireland, and his annual report as curator of the Provincial Museum is eagerly sought for by scientific men the world over.

Mr. Boyle was born in Greenock, Scotland, in 1842 and came to this country with his father at the age of 14 years. He worked his way up, teaching school near Quebec for two years and was principal of Flora public school for another ten years. About 1880 he opened a book store on Yonge street, Toronto, and devoted all his spare moments to archaeology. He founded the collection which formed the nucleus of the present Provincial Museum in Toronto, which is at present the largest and best of its kind in Canada and is a monument to the industry, knowledge and public spirit of its founder and first curator.

In recognition of his deep interest in the Iroquois race he was on the Queen's birthday, 1893, formally adopted by them as a "full-blooded" Indian Mohawk of the turtle lozenge and the name bestowed on him was Ri-ri-wa-no-neh, which signifies one appointed to do intertribal business. In 1894 he, in company with two distinguished scientists from Iceland, investigated the ancient dwelling sites along the west of the Charles river, Massachusetts. His services on this occasion were spoken of very highly by the late Horatio Hale, F.R.S.C. For many years Mr. Boyle has been the official correspondent in Canada of the Anthropological Institute, of Great Britain and Ireland, and his annual report as curator of the Provincial Museum is eagerly sought for by scientific men the world over.

Mr. Boyle was born in Greenock, Scotland, in 1842 and came to this country with his father at the age of 14 years. He worked his way up, teaching school near Quebec for two years and was principal of Flora public school for another ten years. About 1880 he opened a book store on Yonge street, Toronto, and devoted all his spare moments to archaeology. He founded the collection which formed the nucleus of the present Provincial Museum in Toronto, which is at present the largest and best of its kind in Canada and is a monument to the industry, knowledge and public spirit of its founder and first curator.

In recognition of his deep interest in the Iroquois race he was on the Queen's birthday, 1893, formally adopted by them as a "full-blooded" Indian Mohawk of the turtle lozenge and the name bestowed on him was Ri-ri-wa-no-neh, which signifies one appointed to do intertribal business. In 1894 he, in company with two distinguished scientists from Iceland, investigated the ancient dwelling sites along the west of the Charles river, Massachusetts. His services on this occasion were spoken of very highly by the late Horatio Hale, F.R.S.C. For many years Mr. Boyle has been the official correspondent in Canada of the Anthropological Institute, of Great Britain and Ireland, and his annual report as curator of the Provincial Museum is eagerly sought for by scientific men the world over.

Mr. Boyle was born in Greenock, Scotland, in 1842 and came to this country with his father at the age of 14 years. He worked his way up, teaching school near Quebec for two years and was principal of Flora public school for another ten years. About 1880 he opened a book store on Yonge street, Toronto, and devoted all his spare moments to archaeology. He founded the collection which formed the nucleus of the present Provincial Museum in Toronto, which is at present the largest and best of its kind in Canada and is a monument to the industry, knowledge and public spirit of its founder and first curator.

In recognition of his deep interest in the Iroquois race he was on the Queen's birthday, 1893, formally adopted by them as a "full-blooded" Indian Mohawk of the turtle lozenge and the name bestowed on him was Ri-ri-wa-no-neh, which signifies one appointed to do intertribal business. In 1894 he, in company with two distinguished scientists from Iceland, investigated the ancient dwelling sites along the west of the Charles river, Massachusetts. His services on this occasion were spoken of very highly by the late Horatio Hale, F.R.S.C. For many years Mr. Boyle has been the official correspondent in Canada of the Anthropological Institute, of Great Britain and Ireland, and his annual report as curator of the Provincial Museum is eagerly sought for by scientific men the world over.

Mr. Boyle was born in Greenock, Scotland, in 1842 and came to this country with his father at the age of 14 years. He worked his way up, teaching school near Quebec for two years and was principal of Flora public school for another ten years. About 1880 he opened a book store on Yonge street, Toronto, and devoted all his spare moments to archaeology. He founded the collection which formed the nucleus of the present Provincial Museum in Toronto, which is at present the largest and best of its kind in Canada and is a monument to the industry, knowledge and public spirit of its founder and first curator.

In recognition of his deep interest in the Iroquois race he was on the Queen's birthday, 1893, formally adopted by them as a "full-blooded" Indian Mohawk of the turtle lozenge and the name bestowed on him was Ri-ri-wa-no-neh, which signifies one appointed to do intertribal business. In 1894 he, in company with two distinguished scientists from Iceland, investigated the ancient dwelling sites along the west of the Charles river, Massachusetts. His services on this occasion were spoken of very highly by the late Horatio Hale, F.R.S.C. For many years Mr. Boyle has been the official correspondent in Canada of the Anthropological Institute, of Great Britain and Ireland, and his annual report as curator of the Provincial Museum is eagerly sought for by scientific men the world over.

Mr. Boyle was born in Greenock, Scotland, in 1842 and came to this country with his father at the age of 14 years. He worked his way up, teaching school near Quebec for two years and was principal of Flora public school for another ten years. About 1880 he opened a book store on Yonge street, Toronto, and devoted all his spare moments to archaeology. He founded the collection which formed the nucleus of the present Provincial Museum in Toronto, which is at present the largest and best of its kind in Canada and is a monument to the industry, knowledge and public spirit of its founder and first curator.

In recognition of his deep interest in the Iroquois race he was on the Queen's birthday, 1893, formally adopted by them as a "full-blooded" Indian Mohawk of the turtle lozenge and the name bestowed on him was Ri-ri-wa-no-neh, which signifies one appointed to do intertribal business. In 1894 he, in company with two