THE BEER MUST GO.

Methodist church conferences continue to condemn the cantons at military camps. The church people seem to exaggerate the evil that flows from the sale of beer to members of the militia under military regulations. As a matter of fact the sales seldom amount to any large amount. Young men who are sober in civil life, are sober, as a rule, under canvas and in uniform. The smallness of the cantens sales, under ordinary circumstances however, is an indication that beer might be dropped from the list of things kept without serious protest. The canten idea would hardly have originated in Canada, in recent years at any rate.—Montreal Gazette.

Before a military camp is organized supplies are advertised for, and arrangements made for all the requirements of the men. The food they are given is ample, sweet, and clean. That is as it should be. There is no provision for beer and spirits, and whatever is not covered by government regulation, and found conducive to the health of the soldier, should be banished from the camp. There was a time when rum was served on board the ironclad as regularly as any other supply. There was a time when British stupidity associated liquor with the prowess of the navy. That time was long ago. As rum has been abolished from the battleship, beer and whiskey should be abolished from the military camp. There is no excuse for their presence, and the mothers of the young men who join the militia have a right to cry out against them.

The fee system of paying government officials is decidedly wrong. If men were compelled to account for their collections the case would not be so bad. But when officials refuse to say what their income is—suspicion suggests that the sum is unduly large.

HAND-PICKED IMMIGRANTS. The American people have entered upon a new and important work. They propose to study the immigration question in an original way, and to determine the value of foreign blood when mingled with that which is of their own race. The plan is to study social conditions at home and abroad, and to determine the character and characteristics of those who, coming from Europe or Asia, become lost as individuals in the life of the nation.

Burbank, the great florist, should be the head of this new commission since he has already studied the question and given publicity to his views. He has taken stock of the population, flowing into the United States in a year, and shown how the foreigners marry (excepting the Chinese and the Jews, and even they are not exceptional), and how there is a manifest improvement of the race as a consequence. Indeed in no other country in the world is there such an infusion of new blood, and it makes for manhood, for physical betterment, for national vigour. To be sure there is a difference in the quality of this new blood. Coming from some parts of Europe it is impoverished and the enrichment of it comes from the American, the native of the soil, the man or woman who has been born into new conditions.

The investigation of the question will be exhaustive. It will lead to many discoveries, and will tend to confirm some that have already been made. In recent years the United States government has sought to exclude the physically undesirable, the vagrant and criminal classes. Now it will proceed to determine the immigrants whose contact with the American means gain or loss to the nation. The selection will be carried out by methods the adoption of which will follow the expert study of alien life. The enquiry will cover every phase of the subject, and to it will be brought the experience of doctors, teachers, philanthropists, immigration agents and examiners, hospital superintendents and nurses, and all specialists who have had to do in any respect with the direction, treatment, and care of immigrants.

The work will be a stupendous one, but it will be the greatest and most valuable of its kind, and will have its effect in the education of the world on the question of citizenship.

The government could not appoint one to do Judge Cassels' work in the exchequer court, because the act that was relied upon was found to be insufficient. It is wonderful how some things can happen when there are so many lawyers around.

How will the coloured vote go in the next presidential election? That is the question that is bothering the Taft committee. The coloured men are naturally republicans, but in recent years the government has been antagonizing them.

CLAMOUR OF THE FILIPINOS.

Self-government is now demanded by the Filipinos, and it is variously regarded by the Americans, whose words these somewhat obstinate people happen to be. The conquest of a land implies serious responsibilities. It has been studied for some time by the neighbouring republic, but so far as the Filipinos are concerned it is still a complex problem. The seizure of the islands some years ago, and the destruction by Dewey of the Spanish fleet which protected them, seemed to be a great event, and it was. There began a new experience in the life of "America" and of the untutored race which occupies the Philippines.

Spain had done nothing towards improving the condition of the Filipinos. They lived in ignorance, in servitude, in misery. They were simply held in check by force, and the leash being loosed by Spain they became turbulent and rebellious. The taking over of the Philippines was a costly proceeding on the part of the United States. It was attempted at once, with the steps which were necessary to introduce civilization as it is understood to-day. Many men of many ideas were drafted into this service, among them Mr. Taft, who is now the republican candidate for the presidency. The methods he inaugurated were the beginning of that process of self-education which is preliminary to self-government. The people are learning, gradually, what the term means, but it is a question whether the time has come when they can be trusted to carry out the work of local development without the care of their present supervisors.

There was one break in the relations between the Filipinos and the American people, and it came soon after the Philippines became a dependency of the United States. They resisted the new authority, and it cost something to put down the insurrection. Since then there has been marked progress in the science of government, but whether the demand of the local assembly can be conceded is a very serious question. The Filipinos are not to be compared with the Cubans in political intelligence and management, and yet the latter failed when all too soon they essayed to direct their own affairs. Keeping in view the Cuban experience the Americans may well hesitate about granting self-government to the Filipinos, but it has been promised at the earliest possible date, and the impatience of the affected people has to be considered.

EDITORIAL NOTES. The conservative members of the special committee have decided to drop the Hodgins' charges. It is the only thing they could do when Major Hodgins dropped them.

In Cleveland's death the United States has lost one of its greatest men. He was a democrat who could lead his party, and he succeeded in two elections because he set the pace and kept it up.

The Manila Fibra Association has admitted that it was in a combine to force up prices, and is subject to fines aggregating $48,000. But it can stand that, seeing that its profit was $1,000,000 annually.

Hon. Mr. Monteith will leave the government. That has been settled. Had he been a pronounced success, which the Toronto News declared, a seat would have been secured for him. That is a reasonable conclusion.

Mr. Northey, of Toronto, writes to the papers about his diaphanous. He explains why they are so costly. There is little demand for them, and a fortune had to be spent before they could be produced. He should have told all this to the Cassels commission.

Rev. J. R. Seymour, late of the Yukon, now on his way to Yale University for a post-graduate course, is the last to describe the Pringle statements as a gross misrepresentation. The evidence is accumulating.

Mr. Holgate, Canada's expert, thinks the Quebec bridge can be built by Canadians, with Canadian labour, and material, and in a better and safer plan. Until the details are worked out the cost cannot be calculated.

Laurier Will Win Anyway. Victoria Times. An eastern contemporary says the public were in a mood to support governments on the 8th of the present month, and if the dominion election had been held on the same day as those of Ontario and Quebec, Sir Wilfrid would have been supported just as strongly as either Whitney or Gouin.

TOWN OF GANANOQUE.

Two Ladsome Marriages—Movement of Ministers. Gananoque, June 26.—The residence of Mr. and Mrs. Wallis, of Lansdowne village, was the scene of a very pretty and interesting event, Wednesday, when their daughter, Helen Wallis, was united in marriage to James A. Peck, of Lansdowne township, a prosperous young farmer. The ceremony was performed by Rev. T. P. Heaney, pastor of Chalmers' Presbyterian church, before immediate relatives. After a wedding repast Mr. and Mrs. Peck left to spend their honeymoon in the western states and Hamilton, Ont. The bride's presents were numerous.

Another pretty wedding also took place at the home of Mrs. B. B. Warren, Lansdowne, Wednesday morning, being the occasion of the marriage of her daughter, Miss Etta, to J. A. Covey, of Toronto. The ceremony was performed before the immediate relatives of the contracting parties, by Rev. William Pearson, pastor of the Lansdowne Methodist church, assisted by Rev. William Warren, of Nebraska, brother of the bride. The bride was attended by Miss Minnie Foley, while the groom's interests were looked after by his brother, Wesley Covey. After the ceremony the bridal party sat down to an excellent repast, following which Mr. and Mrs. Covey left for the west to spend their honeymoon.
