At Deseronto a farmer named George Saxsmith was found guilty of neglecting to provide suitable clothing and food to school a Marchant but named Harold Thompson. A nominal fine was imposed. It was also alleged that the boy had been unmercifully beaten by Saxsmith but this could not be established.

THE 5 P.M. EDITION AT THE POLICE COURT

ABUSIVE LANGUAGE CASE ON THE DOCKET.

City Scavenger Charged With Failing to Carry Out His Duties—Case Was Adjudged Until Friday.

"No, your worship, it's not true, because I never use bad language." Matthew Stinson, accused of using abusive and threatening language towards Patrick Burns, made the foregoing statement to Magistrate Farrell, when arraigned in police court this morning. Burns said that Stinson pushed his fist up into his face, and swore at him. Stinson admitted telling Burns to go away, but denied that he had used any bad language. A witness called, stated that Stinson threatened to kill Burns, with an iron bar, and used bad language.

"What was your reason for interfering?" asked the court of Stinson.

"I did not," said Stinson. "This man gave me a beating and I complained to the police, but someone hid him and he found. He is a fighting man, but I am not; I do not like quarrelling."

"You seem to have had fight in you this time," said the magistrate. "You went out of your way to fight. I will impose a fine of $2 and costs."

"Thank you, your worship," said Stinson, as he walked out of the court room.

Robert Reeves, city scavenger, was charged by the medical health officer, with refusing to remove garbage, when ordered to do so. The by-law requires that the city scavenger shall remove garbage when requested, and in this case it appears that a lady living on Stuart street, sent in three orders for a scavenger, and that all three orders were ignored by Mr. Reeves. Mr. Reeves claimed that the trouble was due to a misunderstanding.

Magistrate Farrell said that the work of the scavenger must be properly attended to, and that if the men employed for the work, did not care to do it, they should be discharged and other men secured. The health of the city was the all important question, and the work should be properly looked after. The case was adjourned until Friday.

SUCCESSFUL EXCURSION.

Six Hundred People Attended Searchlight.

On Monday evening, at 7.30 o'clock, the steamer America left Folger's wharf for a tour of the islands, carrying six hundred people. The excursion was run under the auspices of St. Andrew's Street Methodist church, and was a grand success from every point of view. The weather was ideal for such an outing, and the large crowd enjoyed themselves very much. The steamer went down through the Thousand Islands, passing through the Admiralty Group, and up by Gananoque. After it became dark the powerful searchlight was put on, and added greatly to the pleasure of the outing. As the steamer slowly sailed through the groups of islands, passing so close that one could almost jump over onto land, the searchlight came in very handy, picking out the pretty cottages, some small and some large, that were hidden by the trees and rocks. After passing Gananoque the steamer went through another group of islands, arriving home about twelve o'clock. This was the first searchlight of the season, and it certainly was a success, and the young ladies in charge deserve great credit for it.

IT COST $1,220

To Construct the Park Avenue Roadway.

A citizen, this morning, made the statement that he understood it cost $3,000 to rebuild and drain Park avenue, from West to Harris streets. The city engineer was asked about the matter and said it cost $870 to build the road and $350 to drain it; that would be $1,220 in all. Without the drainage, the road wouldn't last any time. That thoroughfare is now excellently drained, and the engineer says the money was well expended.

The gates are not looked on with favor among the young people.

After the ceremony a supper was served at the bride's home. Mr. and Mrs. Lodge left, on the midnight train, for Calgary, followed by the best wishes of a host of friends for their future happiness. THIRTY YEARS GIVEN TO THE KINGSTON MILLING COMPANY

To Utilize Certain Streets to Carry Power From Kingston Mills to Their Flour Mills on Ontario Street.

There was quite a discussion at the city council meeting last evening on the question of a thirty-year franchise to the Kingston Milling Company, giving the right to use Montreal, Queen and Ontario streets for the purpose of erecting poles to carry wire from Kingston Mills to bring power to the company's flour mills here. A thirty-year franchise was adopted by a vote of 12 to 7.

Ald. Chown moved that a by-law be drafted for the Kingston Milling Company granting them privileges similar to those granted in the original agreement of Dec. 19, 1904, for a period of thirty years. He said that a less period would not pay the company.

The Light, Heat and Power committee recommended a franchise of fifteen years with the privilege of renewing for another fifteen years if agreeable to the city.

Ald. Givens opposed the thirty-year franchise. Fifteen years was enough, he said. The city should not be tied down to thirty years, but have a chance to cancel the franchise if it proved detrimental.

Ald. Toye said that it would cost the company $40,000 to finance its scheme, and a fifteen year franchise would not be enough for such an expenditure. The speaker bought $25,000 worth of flour every year, and wouldn't buy from the Kingston Milling company because it couldn't sell as cheaply as outside companies that had water supply.

Ald. Elliott thought fifteen years was quite sufficient to develop the scheme proposed and no longer should be granted by the city.

Ald. Chown stated that the company couldn't accept a fifteen-year franchise, as it was no good to them.

Ald. Carson favored giving thirty years, and not playing the dog in the manger. Let the company be encouraged to beat the scheme.

Ald. Hoag didn't think the city was giving away anything valuable except the use of a few streets for transmission of power.

Ald. Angrove referred to the time when Mr. Campbell had been appointed by the city to report upon Kingston Mills as an electric power producer, and he had reported that it was of little account. Now his company had the nerve to come back and ask for the use of the streets to bring power from the same mills. When it was a 'citizens' proposition it was no good; but all right for a company to develop power there.

The company has the right of developing power at Kingston Mills for sixty-three years.

Ald. Nickle said he couldn't see how the city was tying itself up in granting thirty years' use of the streets. All it was proposed to give was the right to bring in a wire from Kingston Mills over the streets. There was nothing exclusive about the matter. No competition was at stake. There was no danger to the city. He favored pushing the scheme ahead.

The thirty-year franchise carried on this division:

Yeas—Mayor Ross, and Alds. Carson, Chown, Craig, Graham, Hanley, Henderson, Nickle, Rigney, Robertson, Toye, Hoag—12.

Nays—Ald. Angrove, Couper, Elliott, Free, Givens, McCann, McCartney—7.

GIVEN THREE YEARS.

For the Theft of Three Bags of Wool.

Three years in Kingston penitentiary, for the theft of three bags of wool from a farmer.

This was the severest penalty handed out to Samuel Williams, a Russian Jew, who cannot speak a word of English, by Magistrate E. H. Smith, of North Middlesex. A constable from London, arrived in the city this morning, with the prisoner, on the early morning train. The prisoner spent the night in a cell at the police station, and at ten o'clock this morning was removed to the big prison.

The fact that the prisoner has only been out in this country a short time, cannot speak English, and is not accustomed to the laws, has unusual interest among the Russian Jews in London, and some of the prisoner's relations in Toronto, and it is understood that they will petition for the release of the prisoner.

It is held that the sentence meted out was altogether too severe, and the minister of justice will be asked to take action in the case.

The prisoner was engaged as peddler around the country. He is married, and the members of his family are now out on the way to this country.

Good Warm Weather.

The weather for the past four days has been good and warm. But still the people grumble. It was too cool of late; now it's too warm. This is just nice, comfortable weather, even if the thermometer does register 80 degrees on the shady lanes and your under clothes stick to your back.
