RULES OF THE ROAD INFORMATION FOR BOAT OWNERS.

Government Regulations For Owners of Boats—If You Own a Boat, Cut This Out and Learn it By Heart.

The following rules and regulations are excerpts from the government rules and regulations for the government of pilots of vessels propelled by steam, gas, fluid, naphtha or electric motors, and all other vessels propelled by machinery.

A gasoline launch, under these rules and regulations, is classed as a steam vessel.

These rules are designed to make navigation safe, and avoid collision both by day and night.

Port: The port side of a vessel is the left hand side looking forward.

The starboard side of the vessel is the right hand side looking forward.

The weather side of the vessel is the side on which the wind strikes the vessel.

The lee side of the vessel is the side sheltered from the wind.

A vessel is under way when she is not at anchor or made fast to the shore, wharf, dock, or any other stationary object.

Whistle Signals.

One blast means that a vessel is directing her course to starboard.

Two blasts she is directing her course to port.

Rules For Passing.

When two vessels are meeting head-on or nearly so, the fundamental rule is to blow one blast of the whistle, and so turn the steering wheel that your boat will turn to the right or starboard, passing the approaching vessel on your left.

When two vessels are approaching each other in an oblique direction, the vessel which has the other on her starboard side must give way to that vessel.

The steamer which has the other on her own port side shall hold her course, and the other must keep clear by crossing astern of the steamer that is holding her course.

In all events steam vessels must make way for sailing vessels.

Lights.

The law compels all vessels at night to carry three lights, a red light on the port side, a green light on the starboard side, and a white light placed above the hull in the centre and forward part of the vessel.

All lights must be put in place at sunset and carried until sunrise.

For the use of small launches the government allows what is known as a combination light—a light which has three colors in one; the red on the left side or the port; the white in the centre, and the green on the right or starboard side.

Sailing vessels must carry the red and green side lights in their respective positions, but they do not have to carry a white light at the mast-head. This is the only distinguishing feature between a steam and sailing vessel at night.

Row boats must carry a plain white light, and it must be displayed in case of danger, or to give warning on the approach of a vessel.

The red and green lights must be placed on their respective sides of the vessel, and are of such a character as not to show across the bow of the vessel.

In other words, as government regulations define them, they must show an unbroken arc over ten points of the horizon from two points abeam the beam to right ahead but not across the bow. The white light must be visible over an arc of twenty degrees of the horizon, but must not show abaft the beam.

Vessels lying at anchor must display a white light in some convenient part of the vessel, visible all around the horizon.

Vessels when towing must carry two white lights at the mast-head—one above the other—besides the regulation green and side lights.

If the case of a vessel, which is in tow of another vessel, and the towing vessel is lying at anchor, and the vessel towed is hanging by the hawser to the towing vessel, that vessel must display a red light at her foremasthead, and also one at her stern masthead, or from a convenient pole in the after end of the vessel.

Fog Signals.

Always run slow in foggy weather.

A steamer when under way shall sound at intervals of not more than one minute—three short blasts of the whistle.

A sailing vessel must sound a horn.

If she is on the starboard tack, that is with the wind striking her on the starboard side, she must blow one blast of the fog horn.

If she is on the port tack, with the wind striking her on the port side, she must sound two blasts of the fog horn.

If she is running with the wind she must sound three blasts of her fog horn, thus by listening to a sailing vessel's fog horn one can easily tell by the number of blasts she blows, and by the direction of the wind, just how she is heading, and can thus avoid risk of collision.

A vessel at anchor in a fog must sound her bell repeatedly—at least once a minute.

A vessel in tow of a steam vessel in a fog must sound her bell four times at intervals of a minute as follows—two strokes, silent interval, two strokes, same as time is sounded on a ship's bell at four bells.

Engine Room Signals.

One whistle or bell when engine is stopped. Ahead.

One whistle or bell when engine is in operation. Back.

Two whistles or bells. Stop.

Three whistles or bells when engine is either working forward or reverse. Slow.

Four whistles or bells. Full speed.

When engine is working ahead two whistles or bells is always a signal to stop and reverse full speed.

THEY'VE GOT PELLAGRA.

Had It For Some Time and Didn't Know It.

Milan, July 17.—An American physician, James Woods Babcock, superintendent for the state hospital, for the insane, at Columbus, S.C., has succeeded in solving the question which has been under investigation for a long time as to whether the disease pellagra, common among the peasants of Italy, and in the south of Europe, exists in the United States. According to Dr. Babcock, pellagra was unknown in the United States until after the importation, after the civil war, of immature and unsound corn. It is thought that his discovery may lead to government inspection of corn.

Got Illegal Advances.

Lisbon, July 17.—The crowning scandal of the "Portuguese Panama" has been brought out by the publication of a long list of names of influential government officials, generals, court dignitaries and members of the nobility, and like the late King Carlos, received illegal advances from the state treasury. According to the newspaper, Generals Oura, Costa and Lopez each received $50,000 and the Portuguese minister to Pekin, recently recalled, drew twenty years salary in advance. The total of these illegal payments reaches several million dollars.

Champlain His Ancestor.

Montreal, July 17.—A man in New York, named Champlain, who claims to be a direct descendant of Champlain, the founder of Canada, has sent a letter to Major Howe, United States consul-general, of Montreal. The letter went into details of the claimant's genealogy, which seemed in perfect order. The writer asked the authorities of Quebec to provide him with a place from which to view the celebration in honor of his ancestor.

Advantages Jeopardized.

London, July 17.—The Standard's Berlin correspondent, respecting trade relations of France and Germany with Canada, says he is sure the advantages, which the countries respectively would go in for from agreements with Canada, are jeopardized by the alluring but delusive hope of gaining some advantage from the United States.

LIVED IN MORTAL FEAR

MRS. HORNER THREATENED BY MAN SHE SHOT.

States That Until Recently She and Her Daughter Went to Neighbors at Night For Shelter—Dr. Simpson Had Demanded Money.

Northport, L.I., July 17.—Mrs. Ella E. Horner, the aged and wealthy woman who is charged with shooting her son-in-law, Dr. James W. Simpson, at her home here last Monday, said, to-day, that she and her daughter had lived in mortal fear of the man for a long time. Until very recently, she said, she did not dare to remain in their home over night, but went to the neighbors for shelter. Mrs. Horner asserted that her daughter, Mrs. Simpson, had received from the doctor several threatening letters of recent date, in which he had demanded money. Supreme Court Justice William J. Gaynor, before whom Mrs. Horner was arraigned, to-day, at St. James, held her for examination before the grand jury in $5,000 bail. Even if Dr. Simpson, who now lies in a dangerous condition in Roosevelt hospital, does not press the shooting charge against Mrs. Horner, District Attorney Furman, in charge of the case, said that he would prosecute it vigorously.

Again In Commission.

After a lay-off of several weeks as the result of running too close to the United States shoals near Thousand Island Park on its first trip of the season, the Arculeid passed down the river, Monday night, for the first time since its accident. The boat has been mended, the hull repaired. The accident cost the Star-Cole line thousands of dollars. The boat is carrying the customary large crowds.

Men Are Powerless

To Fight Against Disease Unless They Strike at the Underlying Cause.

To treat Dandruff, and Falling Hair, with irritants or oils on which a parasitic germ will prosper, is like scooping water from the ocean to prevent the tide from rising. You cannot accomplish a satisfactory cure without having a right understanding of the fundamental causes of the trouble.

You must kill the Dandruff Germ. Newbro's Herpicide does this because it is specially made to do that very thing.

When the germ is removed, the hair has no choice but to resume healthy growth and beauty.

Are You A Slave?

Are you a slave? You indignantly deny it, whatever may be the real facts. But it may be that in spite of your denial or your ignorance you may be really a slave. There can be no doubt of it if you are in bondage to any creed or conception. If you are not willing or able to give up the old cherished, if you adhere conscientiously to some form of faith because you were born into it, if you declare that in religion you will never change, you may know yourself to be a slave. It is only when you are free to choose and to change that you are really free. Assert your freedom.
