MEDICAL INSPECTION.

The Brantford public school board has acted on the report made by one of its committees some time ago in regard to medical inspection, and has appointed a trained nurse to make regular examinations of the pupils in all the schools under the board's care. The Examiner in commencing the action of the board, points out that "medical inspection is now being very commonly adopted in the schools, not merely for the purpose of preventing contagion—and in this respect the state has a responsibility which it cannot ignore—but to correct in youth many physical defects which would otherwise mar the progress of the child through life."

Medical inspection of schools is coming to be regarded as a necessary feature of all up-to-date school systems. The better the subject is understood, and the more fully the results are investigated the more important this work appears. The chief objection that has been urged so far, is the expense; but a small outlay in dollars and cents should count for little in comparison with the results obtained. It is a grave mistake to think that it is only the children of the poor who suffer from physical defects which interfere with their healthy mental development during the school age. W. H. Allen, in an article in the current North American Review, points out that even in rural schools, systematic medical inspection is needed quite as much as in the urban schools. The country child, while getting plenty of food, is far from a dentist and a doctor, and may suffer a great deal from decayed teeth, adenoids, eye strain and the like. Then the fact that he lives in an ocean of fresh air, does not always mean that he breathes it at home and in the school-room. Says Mr. Allen:

"As for unsanitary school conditions, New York and sister cities have no apologies to make to rural districts. Unadjustable desks, dry-sweeping, leather dusts, shiny blackboards, harassing discipline that wrecks nerves, excessive home study, are not peculiar to great cities. In a little western town, a competition between two self-governing brigades for merit-points was determined by the amount of home study; looking back fifteen years, I can see that I was encouraging anaemic and over-ambitious children to rob themselves of play, sleep and vitality. Many a rural school violates more laws of health than any city factory."

Referring particularly to the Manhattan schools the writer points out that of the children reported for malnutrition, only 145 out of 1,400—less than one-seventh—had home incomes of $10 a week or less, while one-third had over $20 a week. The chief difference that is reported between the very poor and the comfortably situated is that a larger proportion of the latter refused to believe that their children could have any ailments. Children's physical defects are, in general, traceable to methods of eating rather than to quantity or character of food, and not so much to food as to decayed teeth, and unsanitary school and home condition.

The tendency in educational matters at the present time is towards the practical and the useful. Under proper restrictions this is a healthy tendency and should be encouraged. The years of the school life are too precious to have any portion of them wasted. Above all, the health of the children is too serious a matter for trifling or indifference. The writer referred to contends for a national system of inspection. One may go far with safety as to say that as the state makes attendance at school compulsory, the state should see to it that the school conditions are as favorable as it is possible to make them for mental and physical development.

THE FUTURE OF QUEEN'S.

Prof. Dupuis, in Queen's Quarterly, presents strong views upon the situation of the university, now that the Presbyterian assembly has pronounced upon the question of separation and declared that the institution shall remain under denominational government. The professor recalls the circumstances which led to the founding of the School of Mines. The hope was that it might become an integral part of the university, and the action of the assembly has extinguished it. The School of Mines is affiliated with Queen's, for the purpose of getting degrees for its students, but it could be affiliated with any other college for the same cause. No trustee or professor of Queen's has any control over the school and cannot have it while it is the recipient of government aid.

"If Queen's is to become," continues Prof. Dupuis, "what her friends wish her to be, or in many cases ignorantly suppose her to be, a great and complete university, she must either incorporate the School of Mining as an integral part, or establish, for herself, full departments, with all necessary professors and assistants, and fully equipped laboratories in the experimental sciences. The first of these alternatives can be easily effected, and the university be put in the very forefront of literary and scientific education, both theoretical and practical, by a slight change in creating the indifference with which would leave her undenominational. But the second alternative cannot be realized on $500,000."

The situation is not pleasing to the staff of the School of Mines, and the work of the Presbyterian assembly, it is alleged, will go far towards increasing the indifference with which its members regard the success or non-success of the university. And why? "The assembly has no care or regard for the future of the school, and so it must look to its own interests rather than to those of Queen's, seek its own endowments by appeals to its own friends and graduates as distinct from those of Queen's, and apart from anything that the university may do or care. And no person can reasonably suppose that this can tend to bring the two institutions into closer alliance, even if it does not drive them asunder. And certainly it will not strengthen Queen's or help in any way to make her more complete as a university."

This expression of discontent is heard with very great regret. The future of Queen's depends upon the consolidation of its interests. The spirit of a great man, the spirit of Principal Grant, rises up to chide those who would separate the School of Mines from the university, or to set them in antagonism with each other. They should occupy the closest relations and they should represent a board of management whose aims are one in every respect.

It is unfortunate that the Presbyterian assembly did not settle the future of the college at its recent session. If it wants the honor of directing a great institution it should, as it can, endow Queen's fairly, and give its staff all the advantages men similarly placed can get in connection with any other seat of learning.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Hon. Dr. Pym has gone to England to study industrial training when the technical schools are closed. He may want the outing more than the information.

Ontario has its grievance on the boundary question—that Manitoba gets too big a slice of Keweenaw. When it comes to a division of the spoils there is the usual row.

The commons will need a great fumigating after the session. There will have to be something besides the incense the opposition has been burning at the altar of scandal.

Judging of late reports as to current tariffs for service and accommodation it will cost something to visit Quebec and see the pagant. There is always money in the crowd of sight-seers.

Parliament, so far as the opposition could make it, was, during the session just closed, a school for scandal. And the idle talk of parliament is being continued in the conservative press.

Now it is the Toronto World that wants publicity in connection with Toronto University affairs. Sooner or later Mr. Mackay's ideas will prevail, and without any one referring to them as heresies.

Manitoba metaphorically weeps because the whole of Keweenaw, 320,000 miles square, was not given to it. "The spoiled child of confederation" is the manner in which Manitoba has been referred to by the Hamilton Herald, and the expression is an apt one.

H. F. Gadsby becomes the editor of the Canadian edition of Collier's, and his originality will have full opportunity for its expression. By the way is Mr. Haggood, the editor of the American edition, of the same paper, not a Canadian? Collier's appreciates talent without regard to nationality.

Helps To Purchase Organ. Ottawa, July 17.—Andrew Carnegie has responded to the request of an acquaintance of the congregation of St. Matthew's church, Ottawa, by subscribing $1,250 towards a new pipe organ, on condition that the remainder of the cost of the organ is raised by the congregation. The organ is to cost $3,500.

TOWN OF GANANOQUE IS TO HAVE A TEMPERANCE HOTEL

A Former Kingston Girl Married at Lansdowne—Man Killed on Railway Track Was Under the Influence of Liquor.

Gananoque, July 16.—Miss Jennie E. daughter of the late Charles Meade, Kingston, was quietly married to Frankland T. Hricland, at J. Goddall's hotel, Lansdowne village, by Rev. T. F. Hensley, pastor of the Chalmers Presbyterian church, yesterday afternoon. The bride was assisted by Miss Lettie Goodall and the groom by Charles Goodall.

The coal schooner Briton pulled out of Gananoque river yesterday morning en route for Oswego. The popular steamer New Island Wanderer took out quite a large excursion party on her searchlight trip among the islands to enjoy the illumination on the American side. She was accompanied by the Citizens' Band.

The women's missionary society of Grace church, had a very pleasant outing yesterday afternoon, going on Percival's large launch to Prof. Dupuis' cottage on Bontic Island, occupied by Mrs. (Rev.) William Timbrell and family for the summer, and taking their picnic baskets. Some thirty enjoyed the trip.

The Canada Cabinet company has disposed of some $1,500 worth of its machinery during the past few days through Elliott Bros., of Prescott, and expects to have a purchaser for the balance in the near future.

Louis Peor, Victoria avenue, has rented the American hotel property, is having it thoroughly renovated, and will start a Temperance hotel there on or about August 1st.

The first of a series of fourteen-daily races took place on Wednesday afternoon. A handsome silver cup has been donated for competition in that class by Vice-Commodore Oliver Adams, of the G.Y.C. The event was contested, resulting as follows: 1, Clyde Gillies; 2, W. Rouse; 3, R. Britton.

There will be a big double-header baseball game at Grasshopper Park on Saturday afternoon when Napanea and the Ganoques will play the return game in the Bay of Quinte league series and the West and South wards will play their regular scheduled game in the St. Lawrence series.

Further details in the sad affair that took place on the railroad near here yesterday morning go to prove that the young man was under the influence of liquor. He had come up from Brockville, where he had been in the hospital for treatment, on No. 5, and had sat down on the track to remove his boots, and then he fell asleep.

Mrs. W. E. Joyce, of Toronto, who has been spending a week here with parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Kee, Garden street, has returned home. Miss Lettie Eric, of Brockville, is spending a couple of weeks with friends in town. The Misses Flew and Usher, of Alexandria, are the guests of their aunt, Mrs. R. Hinton, Victoria avenue. Miss Edith Dempster, of Toronto, is spending a short vacation here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dempster, King street west.

Miss Maud Barnes, trained nurse of St. Luke's hospital, New York, city, spending a two weeks' furlough here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Barnes, Princess street, has returned to her duties. Mrs. Frederick Robinson, of Seaforth, spending a week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Davis, Spring street, has returned home. Miss Georgina Johnson, of Kingston, is spending a few weeks with friends and relatives in town.

Miss Dorcy, of London, Eng., is the guest of Miss N. Hiscok, Stone street. Miss A. Belle, of St. Joseph, Mo., is spending her vacation here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Belle, Market street.

TO HAVE A PARK. Pictou Will Seek to Get One Centrally Located.

Pictou, July 17.—Soldier boys to the number of forty, of Prince Edward's gallant 16th, in command of Capt. Jarcis, Millard, left, on the steamer Caspian, this morning, en route to Quebec. They will spend the week in the limestone city, and join the composite regiment, under Col Sylvester, of Lindsay, and proceed to the historical citadel city. Capt. A. S. McDonald, Concession, will be senior subaltern of the Prince Edward's, and Capt. S. Gilmore, Pictou, junior subaltern.

The cadette comes out, this afternoon, strongly advocating the purchase of a site for a public park. President Davison, of the board of trade, is so enthused with the suggestion that he has called a meeting for Tuesday night, to talk over the matter with a view to securing the property adjoining the public library, and fronting Main street.

George Morrow, a prominent Hillier farmer, lies in a critical condition, with little hope of recovery. He was in the lot of his barn, when a board broke and he was thrown to the cement floor.

The crop outlook has changed little within the week. Rain is badly needed. Literally speaking, a perfect stream of wagons filled with peas are going to the canning factories which are working full time now. The late varieties are a good crop, but are scorched and parched in growth for lack of rain. The fields of tomatoes and corn are looking healthy, and many blossoms and small fruit are ready on the former. Yield was so good to a bumper yield. Hay is being cut and, says farmers, has good stout timothy, but the crop is far below average, and a shortage of hay is again looked for this winter. Barley, rye and oats do not seem to be suffering to any great extent.

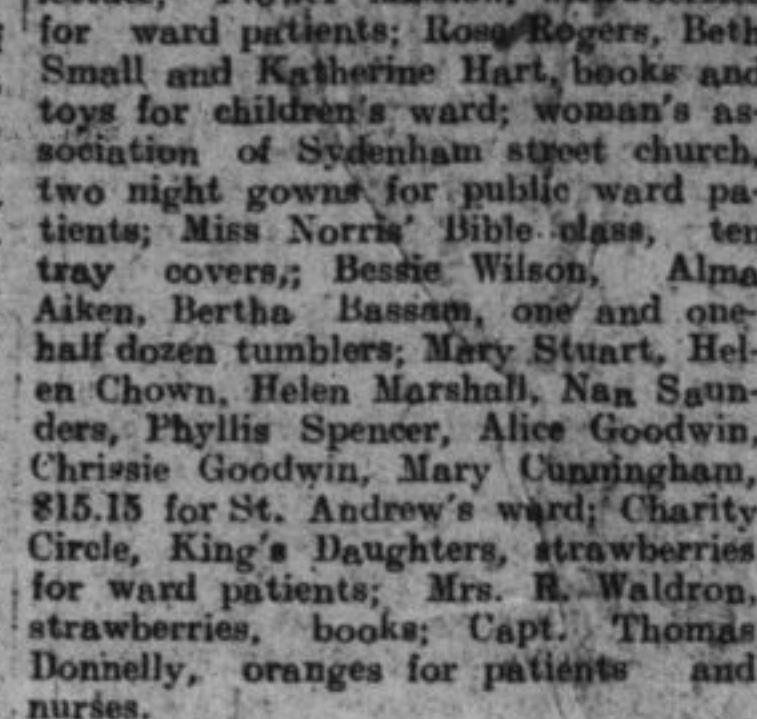

Rideau Lakes and Ottawa. Rideau King and Queen leave for Ottawa, Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday, at 6 a.m., and for Ixton, N.Y., Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday at 6:15 p.m. James Swift & Co., Agents.

FASHION'S FORM. Useful Gown of Silk, Crepe De Chine, Etc.

A gown of this silk, such as Indian or fowl, or of crepe de chine in a dark shade, will be found very useful for short trips or shopping tours during the summer, and in the accompanying plate such a gown is shown. In black, dark blue, brown or dark blue gray the design would make up with excellent effect, the model being in dull woadwood blue crepe de chine, trimmed with narrow bias folds of the material, and small buttons also made of the crepe. The yoke was detachable, and was of fine white washable net and cluny beading.

SEWED $1,140 IN SKIRT. Found By Nurses Caring For Patient. Sewed in the hem of her old black skirt Miss Bridget Heslin had $1,140 in 85 bills when the nurse at the City Hospital, St. Louis, undressed her for bed. She is sixty-five years old, unmarried, and lived in the rear of No. 573 South Second street. She worked in a factory and saved the money from her wages. Her neighbors notified the police that she was acting strangely. A policeman took her to the hospital for medical investigation. Physicians at the hospital said she was demented, and that she must be undressed, bathed and put to bed and watched. She fought against the nurses when they began to take off her clothing, and she clung to her faded skirt. The nurses felt a lump in it and ripped it open and found the money. "McConkey's choice of royalty" candy are sold in Kingston, only at Gibson's Red Cross Drug Store, Phone 230.
