KING'S GARDEN PARTY.

Nearly Ten Thousand Were Present at Royal Levee.

The sun came out in all his glory to assist the King and Queen of England in welcoming their guests at the garden party at Windsor. It was the fairest of summer days, with a cool wind tempering the heat. The East-Lawn of the castle never looked better, and never framed a fairer scene. Possibly memories of last year's festival, when from time to time as the afternoon wore on, the guests were driven for shelter to the marques, lent added zest to the pleasures of an afternoon of untroubled delight.

The first batch of guests traveling by railroads from London were due shortly after 3 o'clock. Along the lawn the appointed hour, the King led the royal procession, and those who would watch it paid well to obtain places in the first and second row. Later comers were not content to avail themselves of the best seats of chairs, which, when the critical moment came, proved to be a delusion and a snare. At the approach of the royal procession those in front sprang to their feet. The third and fourth rows of onlookers mounted on the chairs, and woe to those still further back!

Estimates of the number present vary between 20,000 and 10,000. On the spacious East-Lawn a thousand more or less are of no account. Except when the procession was passing and immediately after, when the first rush was made for the sumptuously stocked refreshments, there was nothing in the way of a crash.

The increase in the number of guests compared with last year was generally attributed to the extension of invitations to visitors to London in connection with the Pan-Anglican Conference. The clerical garb was, however, not conspicuous among the mass and maze of color grouped and fluttering about the lawn, with the contribution from the Indian princes. The bright blue turban of the Maharajah of Kochi Behar was as notable in its throng as was the white plumed hat of Navarre in quite another troupe. His Highness the Jam of Nawansar, more familiar at Lord's in the fashions of which Mr. Kipling has disrepectfully written, also modified European dress by wearing a turban.

Of European princes were the Grand Duke Michael of Russia, the blind Landgrave of Hesse, Prince Louis and Prince Antoine of the royal house of Bourbon, and his Imperial Highness Prince Hiroyasa of Japan.

The Prime Minister and Mrs. Asquith did not arrive till quite late, their motor journey from town having proved not uneventful. They made up for coming late by remaining long, staying on as their Majesties' week-end guests. Other Cabinet Ministers of whom glimpses were caught were Mr. Haldane, Mr. Lewis Harcourt, Mr. Birrell, and Lord Crewe.

Sir Edward Strachey and the Master of Elibank were in attendance on royalty in their several capacities as Treasurer and Comptroller of the Household. Mr. Arthur Balfour, who escorted his sister, came late and went away early. Among the Diplomatic Corps were Mr. Whitelaw Reid, accompanied by Mrs. Reid, and Count Albert Renoford, who, by way of living up to his position as ambassador of the dual monarchy of Austria and Hungary, goes everywhere.

There was a notable gathering of stars from the stage still in the zenith. Miss Ellen Terry was warmly greeted, among a crowd of other old friends, by His Majesty. Other players and play-writers were Miss Lena Ashwell, Miss Julia Neilson and her husband, Mr. Fred Terry, Sir Squire Bancroft, Mr. and Mrs. George Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. Pinero, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Arthur Jones, Mr. Beerbohm Tree, Mr. George Grossmith, Miss Clara Butt and Mr. Kemnerly Rumford home from Australia, bringing their sheaves with them.

Lord Ashtown Again.

Lord Ashtown, who has secured damages against the Waterford County Council for the destruction of a grouse covey, simply revels in opposition and enjoys being boycotted. He has played a prominent part in opposing the operations of the United Irish League. He keeps a scrapbook of newspaper cuttings recording all the denunciations hurled at him. One day, while traveling with a friend in an Irish jaunting-car with a loaded rifle between them and an armed policeman cycling behind, Lord Ashtown was asked if the game was worth the candle, if he were not better to sell out and take up his residence in England. Lord Ashtown, with a laudable reply: "J'y suis j'y resterai."

"I was born an Irish landlord and I will die one. I like the Irish life, and it is a great sporting country. I want my son to enjoy the Irish sportsman's life after me."

118 Miles of Writing.

At a Mansion House banquet, London, recently in aid of the London Hospital, Sidney Holland, chairman of the hospital, stated that during the last year he had written 17,000 letters to men and 100,000 letters to women, which meant 118 miles of continuous writing.

Told in Twilight

Mrs. Theodore Lyman, "Calderwood," is having a home-coming of her sons and daughters. Mr. Henry Lyman, who has been here from Montreal, has returned home. Miss Adele Lyman is here from Oxford, Ohio; Mr. Philip Lyman from Cambridge, Mass., and both will stay till the end of the summer. Miss Julia Lyman and her little niece, Eleanor, are staying down among the islands, with Miss Eleanor's grandfather, Mr. Curtis.

Hosts of old friends here will have a warm welcome for a Queen's graduate, Miss Grace Clark, of Toronto, who has become assistant teacher at "Batescourt." Miss Clark has been abroad for some time, and during her travels taught for a time in a school in Constantinople. Miss Clark will be remembered not only for charms of manner, but for musical gifts of an exceptionally high order.

The croquet party, yesterday, was a very pleasant one. Mrs. Jeremy Taylor was one hostess and Miss Helen Fraser the other. Mrs. Taylor did not play and her four guests were Mrs. E. J. B. Pense, Mrs. Richard Hooper, Miss Gertrude Strange, and Miss Lily-Norton-Taylor. Miss Fraser made up her four with Mrs. Ned Kent, Mrs. Montague Strange and Miss Deacon.

The usual Wednesday evening dance will be held at the Yacht Club tonight. At the ten this afternoon, the hostesses were Mrs. Frederick Brownfield, Mrs. Jeremy Taylor, Mrs. Ramsey Duff, Mrs. Campbell Strange, and their assistants were Miss Mabel Brownfield and Miss Jean Duff.

The Sketch Club members, with their usual hospitality, asked several people to come with them on their last picnic to Colling Bay. The afternoon was thoroughly enjoyed, and many lovely bits transferred to canvas.

There was a picnic party at Lake Ontario park, on Saturday, with Miss Mollie Clarke, of Rochester, N.Y., as guest of honor.

Miss Bessie Smythe, West street gave a little supper party on Monday night.

Miss Edith Harmon-Brown of New York, came to town last Friday, and is the guest of Mrs. Allaire Shortt, at "Otterburn." Miss Harmon-Brown and her sister, visited Mrs. Shortt some twelve years ago, and many friends, made then, will remember them. Another visitor at "Otterburn" is Mlle. Louise de Ciney, of Staten Island.

Master Guy Gansby, and Allen Shortt are camping on Indian Lake.

Mrs. Stratford Dawson and her little son are up from Montreal, and are the guests of Canon and Mrs. Loucks, Barrie street.

Miss Rose McGreev came down from Deseronto on Monday, and is staying with Miss Mary Lewin, Brock street.

Miss Emily Mackleton, William street, is home again.

Mr. Christopher Abrams, of Brooklyn, N.Y., Mrs. Sophie Abrams and Master Lester, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Weir, Alfred street.

Mr. and Mrs. John Wright, Picton, and Miss Nina Wright, were in town on Monday, and Tuesday, on their way to Quebec.

Miss Etta Smith, Bagot street, is in Picton.

Miss Lillian Kent, George street, left, yesterday, to make one of Mr. Beaverholt Tree, Mr. George Grossmith, Miss Clara Butt and Mr. Kemnerly Rumford home from Australia, bringing their sheaves with them.

Mr. Robert Thompson, Clergy street, is visiting in Melbourne.

Mr. and Mrs. R. N. F. McFarlane, and Master Lester, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Macfarlane, Watertown.

Mr. Frank Despard, Toronto, is very ill at the home of his sister, Mrs. Herbert Stone McDonald, "Woodlawn," Brockville.

Mr. Guy Gansby, King street, and little Miss Marjery have gone down to Lansdowne.

Mr. Ivor Martin, "Underwood," has been spending a few days in Picton.
