A splendid series of motor boat races were also pulled off, and some very fast boats took part. None of the Kingston boats were in these races.

The chief interest of the day was centred in the second contest for the George challenge cup, in which the Kathleen of Kingston, was challenger, and the Crescent of Watertown, the defender. The start was at 10 a.m., in a moderate breeze from the north east, which blowing out of the bay, gave smooth water. The Kathleen had a few seconds the better of the start, and was closely followed by the Crescent, only a few boat lengths separating them as far as the second turn.
