HIGH PRICE WHEAT BEING SOLD BY NORTHERN IDAHO FARMER.

Abraham Adams Harvested 70,000 to 75,000 Bushels of Wonderful New Alaskan Variety OF 700 Acres—The World's Record Yield.
Spokane, Wash., Aug. 25.—In the Juliaetta country, in northern Idaho, Abraham Adams, formerly a lumberman in Wisconsin, will clean up more than $1,000,000 from 700 acres of land this season, in addition to producing grain which gives every promise of revolutionizing the wheat production of the world. Conservative estimates place the crop at from 70,000 to 75,000 bushels of grain, which Adams and his son-in-law, O. K. Hobe, a wholesale lumber dealer of Minneapolis, have contracted to sell to farmers at $20 a bushel, not more than one-bushel going to each buyer.
Adams acquired a tract of land in the Gem State six years ago and sowed his land to wheat, harvesting from 23 to 30 bushels of blue stem club and other varieties from every acre under cultivation.
One day early in the fall he received a single stalk of wheat, picked by a friend in one of the fertile valleys in Alaska, and sowed the kernels in his back yard. A crop of seven pounds resulted the following summer. This Adams planted in the spring of 1906, harvesting 1,545 pounds of grain in July, or over 220 bushels per acre. Emboldened by his success he sowed the entire crop in the fall of 1906, and last summer cut enough grain to sow 700 acres of land, from which is now being cut what is believed to be the world's record yield.

Growth in Alberta.
Canadian Gazette.
Progress is the keynote of the Canadian West, and the Hon. A. C. Rutherford, Prime Minister of Alberta, has been expressing himself at Montreal in enthusiastic terms over the prospects of his young Province. According to his calculations, the population, which is now 250,000 only, will have reached over a million within ten years, and he expects that, in the near future, it will be larger than that of Quebec and Ontario. As an example of the growth of the towns and villages, he mentioned Strathcona. Thirteen years ago it had a population of only 300, which had now risen to 4,500, while Edmonton, the capital, he claimed a population of 20,000. As regards educational work in the province, Mr. Rutherford said that since the birth of Alberta in September, 1905, up to Jan. 1, 1908, no fewer than 340 common schools had been organized, while 200 more would be in operation by the end of this year. As to higher education, the provincial university was being established at Strathcona, with Dr. H. M. Tory as its principal.

One-Cent Drop Letter Rate.
Toronto Globe.
Twenty years ago the rate was, by a Conservative Ministry, raised from one cent to two cents for the very purpose of raising the revenue, which was then greatly needed by the government. In those days the customs tariff was not a good fiscal measure; the duties on many articles were so high as to be practically prohibitive of importation, and, therefore useless for revenue-producing purposes. There was a chronic deficit in the operation of the Postoffice Department itself, and the increase of the postage rate was made for the purpose of cutting this down as much as possible. Meanwhile, as the investigations of ten to twelve years ago conclusively proved, money was squandered all over the whole Dominion in the letting of contracts for carrying the local mails. The stopping up of this particular leak went far toward establishing an equilibrium between departmental receipts and expenditures.

Nearly A Tragedy.
London Scraps.
At a seaside resort a lady fell into the water from a landing stage while entering a boat. Her husband appeared frantic and cried in the most beseeching tones:
"For heaven's sake, save her! She is my wife."
A young man gallantly plunged into the water and brought back the poor woman.
The look of gratitude the husband gave fully repaid him for his efforts.
On recovering his equanimity the husband thrust his hand into his wife's wet pocket, pulled out a somewhat bulgy purse, and with infinite relief said:
"Old woman, the next time you tumble overboard just leave that purse behind, will you? You almost scared me to death!"

Toronto Beats Detroit.
Toronto Telegram.
Toronto, with 5,051 buildings erected last year and $14,225,800 spent thereupon, was not second to any other great city on the continent in its rate of progress.
Detroit points with pride to a marvellous expenditure of $14,000,000 on new buildings in 1907.
A fairly liberal estimate credits Detroit with 400,000 population.
Toronto's population can be reckoned at 300,000.
Thus the city, with at least 100,000 less population than Detroit, spent more on new buildings last year.
Detroit's growth is considered one of the marvels of the American continent, and Detroit is not growing as fast as Toronto.

Job For Mr. Sifton.
Canadian Courier.
And now that a Dominion election impends, the talk is that Clifford Sifton will return to the cabinet to straighten out the west. And his portfolio? Well, considering the needs and prospects of Canada, and her growing importance in the world's markets, what portfolio would you think? Only one guess. Why, the portfolio of Trade and Commerce, of course.
Is Waving It Now.
Ottawa Journal.
If Sir Wilfrid is so powerful a wizard that at will he can transform the financial situation and ensure work for the unemployed, it is a pity he did not wave his magic wand and make everything quite comfortable last winter, and put an end to the financial depression the past spring and present summer.

GEORGIA'S DISGRACE. Life of a Black Man Lightly Esteemed.

London Advertiser.
Recent revelations in regard to the peonage system in Georgia, under which the labor of state convicts is leased to contractors, have proven too much even for people accustomed to race riots and lynchings. Investigation has revealed a state of affairs worse than the slavery of half a century or more ago. Self-interest, if nothing else, prevented the slave-owner from taking the life of the slave, just as it would cause him to preserve the life of a horse; but when a human brute has merely a leasehold interest in a slave even that safeguard is gone. The victim's labor is paid for only so long as he lives, and if he is worked to death his place is soon filled.
In many instances the offences of which these unfortunates have been convicted were of the most trivial character, such as spitting on the sidewalk, and the convicts have been sold into slavery in order that the state might derive a revenue, which has amounted to about $250,000 a year, the money being distributed among the various counties to assist common school education.
Some of the stories told before the committee of the Legislature were shocking in the extreme. For instance, a white boy of 16 years, who was sent to penitentiary for stealing two cans of potted ham, was lashed 68 times with a heavy strap for a trifling offence committed during his term. His death resulted within a week, and the death certificate gave consumption as the cause. A notorious negro criminal, the slayer of several men, was employed to force a mutinous convict into a stockade, and in the struggle the negro admitted one more murder to his record, using a pickaxe for his work.
Much of the evidence is too revolting to be repeated in detail. For days the committee listened to the story of a convict who was whipped, sometimes by the guard who administered the fatal whipping being both in the employ of the state, and on the payroll of the convict lessee. The lessee's only object seems to have been to get all the work possible out of the men whose labor they had bought. In this way the state became a slave-driver of the worst sort. Shocking cruelties were perpetrated and hushed up. Men who failed to perform their daily tasks were severely whipped; sometimes they were under the lash, and the death certificate ascribed it to consumption, or, as in one case, to "drinking too much water."
Great public indignation has been aroused by these revelations. Public meetings at which the peonage system has been roundly condemned, have been held all over the state, and it would seem that the popular sentiment will not be satisfied until this horrible means of raising educational funds is abandoned forever.

Cranky Vessels.
Even the best designers never know how their ships will turn out when completed. They may break all records for speed, or they may be so slow, as to be entirely useless—a mere waste of money. Years ago two masted barges were built at San Francisco, exactly alike, constructed from one design. One of them was quite commonplace, but the other raced every barge in the bay and beat them all, raced every yacht on the Pacific coast and beat them. She was so fast that yachts were built on her lines, but turned out mere barges for sloth. Nobody could see how this craft differed from her crawling sisters or from the yachts, in 1881 the American went to Cowes, England, and raced for a prize cup. She won that trophy, and then an Englishman bought her and improved her hull, stiffening it with knees throughout. After that she lost every race.

He Proved It.
Bob burst into the house in a state of high excitement. His hands and clothing were smeared with a liberal amount of sticky substance, and his face wore a glow of triumphant satisfaction.
"I say, mother, those new people across the road did a know much!" he exclaimed. "They got a notice, and their front door that says 'Wet Paint.'"
"And you've been getting into it!"
"You ought to be ashamed of yourself!" said his mother severely. "That notice was put up to warn people to keep away from the door."
"Yes, I know," persisted Bob, with the enthusiasm of a rightly rewarded investigator. "But it wasn't paint, and I proved it. It's only varnish!"

August time tells on the nerves. But that spiritless, no ambition feeling can be easily and quickly altered by taking what is known by druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Within forty-eight hours after beginning to use the Restorative improvement will be noted. Of course, full health will not immediately return. The gain, however, will surely follow. And best of all, you will realize and feel your strength and ambition as it is returning. Outside influences depress first the inside nerves; then the stomach, heart, and kidneys will usually fail. Strengthen these failing nervus with Dr. Shoop's Restorative and see how quickly health will be yours again. Sold by all dealers.

ORDERS THE LASH WELL-MERITED SENTENCE GIVEN COLORED MAN.

Peta Harris, Enticed Girl From Grandmother's Care—Pretended to Be Her Father—Five Years and Forty Lashes.
Chatham, Aug. 25.—Five years' imprisonment in the penitentiary was the sentence handed out by Judge Bell to Pete Harris, a colored man. The sentence will be supplemented with twenty lashes within a month of the beginning of the term and an additional twenty within a month of its expiration. The victim was a thirteen-year-old girl, who while living with her grandmother in Detroit was enticed over the line by Harris, who pretended to be her father and declared he had a position for her as a domestic in Chatham. By the use of threats he kept her with him in the vicinity of Charming Cross, living a nomadic life, till the girl escaped to Chatham and informed the authorities. Detective Skirving arrested Harris.

Sympathetic Comprehension.
Toronto Star.
There rushed into the Agnes street police station a citizen of Hebrew features and accent who called excitedly for a member of the force.
"What's the matter?" asked a splendid young constable of Irish birth and of six-feet-three stature.
"I have a lodger," said the complainant, "and I am from York street and I have a lodger who is trying to get away without leaving me de money. I want him seized—and I have a witness."
"But this isn't the place to make a complaint like that," responded the other; "it's another court ye want," and he explained to the excited landlord the procedure for gaining his dues. However, after repeated advice and expostulation the gentleman from York street still plainly remarked:
"But I have a witness. I tell you he must not get away."
"This is no place for ye," said the officer in final anger; "get out of this with ye."
The wailing landlord departed, the man in blue turned to a newspaper reporter and said with a sigh: "Think of the time Moses must have had with the like of him for forty years."

Considerable Of A Land-Lady.
St. Louis Post-Dispatch.
Kingsville, Texas, claims to have as a resident the largest female landholder in the United States. Her name is Mrs. King, and she is a widow. Her possessions aggregate the enormous total of 1,170,000 acres, and she lives in a palatial ranch home at Kingsville. But recently she added 190,000 acres to her holdings with a little fuss as the average persons buy a small tract. Most of her land is valued at from $15 to $20 an acre, and her other property, including cattle and other property, is estimated at $30,000,000. Her estate is managed by her son-in-law, but Mrs. King is consulted about every important matter. Agricultural operations are carried on on an extensive scale, and live stock is raised in great numbers on the vast ranch. Mrs. King inherited a large part of her property from her late husband, but she has been a shrewd investor, and has more than doubled her inheritance.

Paid For Their Last Tribute.
In a letter written by Count Grzymala, who was an ardent admirer of Chopin, the last moments of the great musician are thus referred to: "A few hours before he died he asked Mme. Potocka to sing some melodies by Rossini, and she did so, and he died sobbing in her voice. Listening to her voice he passed away." Speaking of the funeral, the writer says: "Mozart's requiem and his own funeral march were performed with the assistance of Madame Viardot, the concert society. It was characteristic of the times that the artists should have asked 2000 francs for this last tribute to Chopin. One would have thought that pride would have kept them from selling their gifts on such an occasion."
How The Turks Keep Time.
New York Tribune.
There is one custom at least in the Ottoman dominions in Europe that causes foreign visitors a great deal of trouble and confusion. This is the Turkish system of reckoning time. A Turk holds that the day begins exactly at sunset, and accordingly at that time he sets his clocks and watches at the hour of twelve, and the clock strikes at midnight. In view of the fact that the sun has the same habits in presiding over Turkey that it exercises with reference to other localities, it follows that this system of reckoning time requires setting the clocks every day. It appears that a watch that runs for weeks without gaining or losing a minute would be of no special value to a Turk.

Feast Of The Garlands.
In several of the more remote Swiss cantons there is held what is known as the "feast of the garlands." The marriageable maidens assemble at sunset, sing, dance and make merry. Each wears a chaplet of flowers on her forehead and carries a nosegay tied with bright colored ribbon in her hands. If a lad is attracted by a maid he plucks a flower from her bunch. She pretends not to notice, then but when the merrymaking breaks up at dawn she will, if she reciprocates his feelings tie the entire bouquet by the ribbon to the handle of the door of the cabin wherein he resides, or alternatively fling it through the open casement of his bedchamber.
Chair Not Enough.
He was a collector for an installment house, new at the business and sensitive about performing an unpleasant duty. He was particularly embarrassed because the lady upon whom he had called to perform this unpleasant duty was an exceedingly possumy stuff. The van was at the door, the lady was in arrears in her payments, and he remembered his duty.
"Good morning," said the lady. "It's a beautiful day, isn't it?"
"Beautiful," he agreed.
"Want you take a chair?" she said.
"Er—no, thank you, not this morning," he stammered. "I've come to take the piano!"

A DRESS ALLOWANCE. It Develops Individually and Taste in Clothes.

The uninitiated who read the sensational newspaper firms believe that the daughter of the rich has a private income that would support a dozen orphan asylums, and that she never wears a frock but once, and then only for half an hour, says Mrs. Osborn in the August Delineator.
On the contrary, it is quite a pad among the fashionable at present to put the daughters on a dress allowance—and not a large one, either—at a very early age. I have seen girls of fifteen and sixteen struggling with the problem of keeping within their incomes that promises well for the well-planned wardrobe of the next generation of American women.
They are very conscientious about it, too, these small business women in short skirts. The mother who instituted the allowance is only too often the weaker member of the contracting parties. It is an amusing reversal of old conditions to hear the daughter arguing economy and common sense.
The mother, weakly, "But really, darling, I think you ought to have it."
The child, kindly but firmly: "No, mother I do not need that pink pongee; my white linen is good enough."
It is quite a hobby of mine that you cannot begin too early to give a girl a sense of proportion; to develop her feeling of fitness of things in dress, to educate her taste as carefully as you would train her voice or her mind. She ought to be taught the beauty of completion when she is dressing her dolls, and discriminations of colors when she is picking out her hair ribbons.
The mother who keeps her child's clothes entirely in her own hands until she has reached young-womanhood is doing her a great injustice. A well-dressed woman isn't made in a day, and a fine discernment and discrimination in dress only comes with years of experience, during which the faculty of selection can be developed to a very high degree of perfection.

Our One Moving Orator.
Canadian Courier.
We have got a long way from Sir Wilfrid's holiday. After his holiday, he is to address a number of meetings in Ontario. Prior to most elections, Sir Wilfrid makes an appeal to Ontario, and usually Ontario has not responded very warmly. This year, however, he makes his appeal under new conditions. There will be no discredited Liberal leaders of the party against every Liberal leader. He will be more in the position that he occupied in 1896 when his tour through this province aroused great enthusiasm. Certainly he is the best public tribune that the country possesses. His platform appeal is far and away more effective than that of any other man in Canadian political life. He is our one moving orator. We have other convincing speakers, logical debaters and masters of platform humour, but we have in political life only one orator, and he is the Prime Minister of Canada. Whether or not Sir Wilfrid will attract votes in his tour, he will infallibly attract listeners.

Climb It.
Milwaukee Free Press.
He had just finished telling the elevator boy in one of the office buildings on Wisconsin street about the disadvantage of working inside. He called the attention of the lad to his own physical condition and said: "My boy I've lived out of doors most of my life. There is one thing that is next to physical culture for development, and that is climate."
The boy smiled as the healthy one completed his discourse.
"Remember, boy," he added, "climb it!"
He left the building, returning half an hour later to find the elevator out of order. The elevator boy greeted him.
"Well, mister, here's where you get a chance to demonstrate your policy."
"How?" was the question.
"Climb it," said the boy, and the healthy one did.

Ottawa Versus All Others.
Canadian Courier.
Mayor Ashdown, who is second to none among the prominent business men of Winnipeg, and who is a Liberal in politics, declares against the present long sessions of parliament. When asked if he intended to be a candidate for the House of Commons he declared that "it would not be possible to attend to business in Winnipeg and spend half the year or more in Ottawa. One or the other would be neglected."
Mount Everest, of the Himalayas, is the highest mountain peak in the world, being over 29,000 feet high. The 15,000,000 packets representing one year's output of "Salada" Tea, would, if placed end to end, produce a pyramid 5,600,000 feet in height, or 193 times higher than the highest mountain in the world. Can you grasp the magnitude of the demand for "Salada" Tea?
